It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

THE
LIFE OF DR. YOUNG.

THE pen of biography cannot be better employed, than in the service of an author, who displayed eminent genius and abilities in the cause of virtue and religion. Such was Dr. Young, the subject of these Memoirs.

His father, whose name was also Edward Young, was Fellow of Winchester College, Rector of Upham in Hampshire, and, in the latter part of his life, Dean of Sarum; chaplain to William and Mary, and afterward to Queen Anne. Jacob tells us that the latter, when Princess Royal, did him the honor to stand godmother to our poet; and that, upon her ascending the throne, he was appointed Clerk of the Closet to her Majesty.

It does not appear that this gentleman distinguished himself in the Republic of Letters, otherwise than by a Latin Visitation Sermon, preached in 1686, and by two Volumes of Sermons, printed in 1702, and which he dedicated to Lord Bradford, through whose interest he probably received some of his promotions. The Dean died at Sarum in 1705, aged 62; after a very short illness, as appears by the exordium of Bishop Burnet's sermon at the Cathedral on the following Sunday. "Death (said he) has been of late walking round us, and making breach upon breach among us, and has now carried away the head of this body with a stroke; so that he, whom you saw a week ago distributing the holy mysteries, is now laid in the dust. But he still lives in the many excellent directions he has left us, both how to live and how to die."

Our author, who was an only son, was born at his father's rectory, in 1681, and received the first part of his education (as his father had formerly done Winchester College ; from whence, in his 19th he was placed on the foundation of New College Oxford ; whence again, on the death of the War the same year, he was removed to Corpus C. In 1708, Archbishop Tennison nominated him law fellowship at All Souls, where, in 1714, he the degree of Bachelor of Civil Law, and five afterward that of Doctor.

Between the acquisition of these academic honours Young was appointed to speak the Latin Oratio the foundation of the Codrington Library ; which afterwards printed, with a dedication to the Lady that family, in English.

In this part of his life, our author is said to have been that ornament to virtue and religion which he afterwards became. This is easy to be accounted for. He had been released from parental authority by his father's death ; and his genius and conversation had introduced him to the notice of the witty, profligate Duke of Wharton,* and his gay companions, by whom his finances might be improved, not his morals. This is the period at which he is said to have told Warburton, our young author, "much genius without common sense ;" and it seems likewise, that he possessed a zeal for religion with little of its practical influence ; for, in his gaiety and ambition, he was an advocate of Revelation and Christianity. Thus when Tinian, an atheistical philosopher, used to spend much time at All Souls, he complained : "The only one I can always answer, because I know where they have their arguments, which I have read many times ; but that fellow Young, is continually confusing me with something of his own."

This apparent inconsistency is rendered striking from the different kinds of company which, at this period, he was engaged : viz. a Panegyric on the new Lord Lansdowne.

* At the instigation of this peer, he was once carried to Parliament, but without success, and the expenses were great.

sacred Poem on The Last Day, which was written in 1710, but not published till 1713. It was dedicated to the Queen, and acknowledges an obligation, which has been differently understood, either as referring to her having been his godmother, or his patron ; for it is inferred from a couplet of Swift's, that Young was a pensioned advocate of government :

" Whence Gay was banish'd in disgrace,
" Where Pope will never shew his face,
" Where Y—— must torture his invention,
" To flatter knaves, or lose his pension."

This, however, might be mere report, at this period, since Swift was not over nice in his authorities, and nothing is more common than to suppose the advocate, and the flatterer of the great, an hireling. Flattery seems indeed to have been our poet's besetting sin through life ; but if interest was his object, he must have been frequently disappointed : and to those disappointments we probably owe some of his best reflections upon human life.

Of his Last Day, (his first considerable performance) Dr. Johnson observes, that it " has an equability and propriety which he afterwards either never endeavored for, or never attained. Many paragraphs are noble, and few are mean ; yet the whole is languid : the plan is too much extended, and a succession of images divides and weakens the general conception : but the great reason why the reader is disappointed is, that the thought of The Last Day makes every man more than poetical, by spreading over his mind a general obscurity of sacred horror, that oppresses distinction and disdains expression." The subject is indeed truly awful, and was peculiarly affecting to this celebrated critic, who never could, without trembling, meditate upon death, or the eternal world. The poet's theological system, moreover, was not, at least when he wrote this, the most consistent and evangelical : I mean he had not those views of the Christian Atonement, and of pardoning grace, which gave such a glory to his Night Thoughts, and would much more have illumined the composition. All the preparation he seems there in view, is

“ By tears and groans, and never-ceasing care,
“ And all the pious violence of prayer,”

to fit himself for the Tribunal. Moreover, the subject of future misery is too awful for poetic treatment, and makes the piece too terrible to read with pleasure ; while the attempt to particularise the solemnities of judgment, lowers their sublimity, and makes some parts of the description, as Dr. Johnson has observed, appear mean, and even border on the burlesque. This poem, however, was well received upon the whole, and the better for being written by a layman ; and it was commended by the ministers of their party, because the dedication flattered the Countess and her government—far too much, in the nature of the subject.

Dr. Young's next poem was entitled, The Death of Religion, and founded on the deaths of Lady Grey and her husband. “ It is written with enough,” according to Dr. Johnson ; but was not popular :” for “ Jane is too heroic to be imitated.” The dedication of this piece to the Countess of Derby, was also inexcusably fulsome, and, in some respects, profane. Indeed the author himself seems to have thought so ; for when he collected his poems into volumes, he very judiciously suppressed this and most of his other dedications.

In some part of his life Young certainly visited Ireland,* and was there acquainted with the satirical Dean Swift ; and his biographers seem to think that this was, most probably, during his confinement with the Duke of Wharton, who went thither in 1727. But he cannot have long remained there, as in 1728 he brought out his first tragedy of Busiris, at London, and dedicated it to the Duke of Newcastle. This tragedy had been written some years

* From his seventh satire it appears also, that he was probably about this time, and saw a field of battle, and was slain ; and it is affirmed that once, with a classic in his hand, he was ordered into the enemy's encampment, and had some success in convincing them, that he was only an absent poet and not a now first performed ; for it is to our author's credit, that many of his works were laid by him a considerable time before they were offered to the public. Our great dramatic critic pronounces this piece " too far removed from known life " to affect the passions.

His next performance was The Revenge, the dramatic character of which is sufficiently ascertained by its still keeping possession of the stage. The hint of this is supposed to have been taken from Othello ; " but the reflections, the incidents, and the diction, are original. "—The success of this induced him to attempt another tragedy, which was written in 1721, but not brought upon the stage for thirty years afterwards ; and then without success, as we shall have farther occasion to observe. It has been remarked, that all his plays conclude with suicide,* and I much fear the frequent introduction of this unnatural crime upon the stage, has contributed greatly to its commission,

We have passed over our author's Paraphrase on part of the Book of Job, in order to bring his dramatic performances together. The Paraphrase has been well received, and has often been printed with his Night Thoughts. This would be admired, perhaps, as much as any of his works, could we forget the original : but there is such a dignified simplicity even in our prose translation of the poetic parts of scripture, that we can seldom bear to see them reduced to rhyme, or modern measures.

His next, and one of his best performances, is entitled, The Love of Fame the Universal Passion, in Seven characteristic Satires, originally published separately, between the years 1725, and 1728. This, according to Dr. Johnson, is a " very great performance. It is said to be a series of epigrams, and if it be, it is what the author intended : His endeavor was at the production of striking distichs, and pointed sentences ; and his distichs have the weight of solid sentiment, and his points the sharpness of irresistible

* Our author seems early to have been enamoured with the Tragic Muse, and with the charms of melancholy. Dr. Ridley relates, that when at Oxford, he would sometimes shut up his room, and study by a lamp, at mid-day.

th. His characters are often selected with discretion, and drawn with nicety; his illustrations are often happy, and his reflections often just. His style of satire is between those of Horace and Juvenal; he has the gaiety of Horace without his laxity of numbers; and the morality of Juvenal, with greater variety of images."—Swift indeed has pronounced these Satires, that they should have been either "more merry, or more severe:" in that case, they might probably have caught the popular taste more; but this does not prove that they would have been better. The opinion of the Duke of Grafton, however, is of more worth than all the opinions of the wits, if it be true as related by Mr. Spence, that his grace presented the author with two thousand pounds. "Two thousand pounds for a poem!" said one of the Duke's friends: to whom his grace replied, that he had made an excellent bargain, for he thought it worth four.

On the accession of George I. Young flattered him with an Ode, called Ocean, to which was prefixed an introductory Ode to the King, and an Essay on Lyric Poetry: of these the most observable thing is, that the poet and the critic could not agree: for the Review of the Essay condemned the Poetry, and the Poet set at defiance the maxims of the Essay. The biographer of British poets has truly said, "he had no success in his lyric attempts, in which he seemed to have been under some malignant influence: he was always laboring to be great, and at last is only tired."

We now leave awhile the works of our author, to contemplate the conduct of the man. About the time his studies took a more serious turn; and forsaking the law, which he had never practised, when he was almost fifty he entered into orders, and in 1728, appointed Chaplain to the King. One of his biographers relates, that, on this occasion Young applied to his brother poet for direction in his choice, who jocosely recommended Thomas Aquinas; the former taking seriously, he retired to consult with the angelical doctor, till his friend perceived him, and brought him back.

LIFE OF DR. YOUNG.

His Vindication of Providence, and Estimate of Human Life, were published in this year; they have gone through several editions, and are generally regarded as the best of his prose compositions: But the plan of the latter never was completed. The following year he printed a very loyal sermon on King Charles' Martyrdom, intitled, An Apology for Princes. In 1730, he was presented by his college to the rectory of Welwyn in Hertfordshire, worth about 300l. a year, beside the lordship of the manor annexed to it. This year he relapsed again to poetry, and published a loyal Naval Ode, and Two Epistles to Pope, of which nothing particular need be said.

He was married, in 1731, to Lady Elizabeth Lee, widow of Colonel Lee, and daughter to the Earl of Litchfield and it was not long before she brought him a son and heir.

Sometime before his marriage, the Doctor walking in his garden at Welwyn, with this lady and another, a servant came to tell him a gentleman wished to speak to him. "Tell him," says the Doctor, "I am too happily engaged to change my situation." The ladies insisted that he should go, as his visitor was a man of rank, his patron, and his friend; and as persuasion had no effect on him, they took him, one by the right hand, and the other by the left, and led him to the garden-gate. He then laid his hand upon his heart, and in that expressive manner for which he was so remarkable, uttered the following lines:

"Thus Adam look'd when from the garden driven,
"And thus disputed orders sent from Heaven:
"Like him I go, but yet to go am loth:
"Like him I go, for angels drove us both.
"Hard was his fate, but mine still more unkind;
"His Eve went with him, but mine stays behind."

Another striking instance of his wit is related in reference to Voltaire: who, while in England, (probably at Mr. Doddington's seat in Dorsetshire) ridiculed, with some severity, Milton's allegorical personages, Sin and Death; on which Young, who was one of the company, immediately addressed him in the following extemporaneous distich:

"Thou art so witty, profligate, and thin,
"Thou seem'st a Milton, with his Death and Sin."

LIFE OF DR. YOUNG.

Soon after his marriage, our author again indulged his poetic vein in two odes, called the Sea Piece, with a Poetical Dedication to Voltaire, in which the above incident seems alluded to in these lines,

“ On Dorset down, when Milton’s page
“ With Sin and Death provok’d thy rage.”

In 1734 he printed an Argument for Peace, which afterward, with several of his smaller pieces, and most of his Dedications, was consigned by his own hand to merited oblivion : in which circumstance he deserves both the thanks and imitation of posterity.

About the year 1741 he had the unhappiness to lose his wife ; her daughter by Colonel Lee, and this daughter’s husband, Mr. Temple. What affliction he felt for their loss, may be seen in his Night Thoughts, written on this occasion. They are addressed to Lorenzo, a man of pleasure, and of the world ; and who, it is generally supposed, was his own son, then laboring under his father’s displeasure. His son-in-law is said to be characterized by Philander, and his Lady’s daughter was certainly the person he speaks of under the appellation of Narcissa.—(See Night III. line 62.) In her last illness, which was a consumption, he accompanied her to Montpellier ; or, as Mr. Croft says, to Lyons, in the South of France, at which place she died soon after her arrival.

Being regarded as a heretic, she was denied christian burial, and her afflicted father was obliged to steal a grave, and inter her privately with his own hands.*

* I take the liberty of inserting here a passage from a letter written by Mr. W. Taylor, from Montpellier, to his sister, Mrs. Moucher, in the preceding year 1789, which may be considered as curious, and will be interesting and affecting to the admirers of Dr. Young and his Narcissa :

“ I know you, as well as myself, are not a little partial to Dr. Young. Had you been with me in a solitary walk the other day, you would have shed a tear over the remains of his dear Narcissa. I was walking in a place called the King’s Garden ; and there I saw the spot where she was interred. Mr. J——, Mrs. H——, and myself, had some conversation with the gardener respecting it ; who told us, that about 45 years ago, Dr. Young was here with his daughter for her health ; and that he used constantly to be walking backward and forward in this garden (no doubt, as he saw her gradually declining, to find the most solitary spot where he might shew his last token of affection, by leaving her as secure as possible from those savages, who would have denied christian burial : for at that time, an Englishman in this country was

LIFE OF DR. YOUNG.

(See Night III. line 162, &c.) In this celebrated poem he thus addresses Death :

“ Insatiate archer ! could not one suffice ?
 “ Thy shaft flew thrice, and thrice my peace was slain ;
 “ And thrice, ere thrice yon moon had fill'd her horn.”

These lines have been universally understood of the above deaths : but this supposition can no way be reconciled with Mr. Croft's dates, who says, Mrs. Temple died in 1736, Mr. Temple in 1740, and Lady Young in 1741. Which quite inverts the order of the poet, who makes Narcissa's death follow Philander's :

 Night III. line 62.

There is no possible way to reconcile these contradictions : either we must reject Mr. Croft's dates, for which he gives us no authority, or we must suppose the characters and incidents, if not entirely fictitious, as the author assures us that they are not, were accommodated by poetic licence to his purpose. As to the character of Lorenzo, whether taken from real life, or moulded purely in the author's imagination, Mr. Croft has sufficiently proved that it could not intend his son, who was but eight years old when the greater part of the Night Thoughts was written ; for Night the Seventh is dated, in the original edition, July 1744.

looked upon as an heretic, infidel, and devil. They began now to verge from their bigotry, and allow them at least to be men, though not christians, I believe ; and that he bribed the under gardener, belonging to his father, to let him bury his daughter, which he did ; pointed out the most solitary place, and dug the grave. The man, through a private door, admitted the Doctor at midnight, bringing his beloved daughter, wrapped up in a sheet, upon his shoulder : he laid her in the hole, sat down, and (as the man expressed it) ‘rained tears.’ ‘With pious sacrifice a grave I stole.’ The man who was thus bribed is dead, but the master is still living. Before the man died, they were one day going to dig, and set some flowers, &c. in this spot where she was buried. The man said to his master, ‘Don't dig there ; for, so many years ago, I buried an English lady there.’ The master was much surprised ; and as Doctor Young's book had made much noise in France, it led him to enquire into the matter ; and only two years ago it was known for a certainty that this was the place, and in this way : There was an English nobleman who was acquainted with the governor of this place ; and wishing to ascertain the fact, he obtained permission to dig up the grounds, where he found some bones, which were examined by a surgeon, and proved to be the remains of a human body : this therefore was the grave of the girl, and a doubt.

LIFE OF DR. YOUNG.

For the literary merits of this work we shall again refer to the criticism of Dr. Johnson, which is seldom exceptionable, when he is not warped by political prejudices. "In his Night Thoughts," says the Doctor, speaking of our author, "he has exhibited a very wide display of original poetry, variegated with deep reflections, and striking allusions; a wilderness of thought, in which the fertility of fancy scatters flowers of every hue, and of every odor. This is one of the few poems in which blank verse could not be changed for rhyme, but with disadvantage. The wild diffusion of the sentiments, and the digressive sallies of imagination, would have been compressed and restrained by confinement to rhyme. The excellence of this work is not exactness, but copiousness: the particular lines are not to be regarded; the power is in whole; and in the whole there is a magnificence like that ascribed to Chinese plantations, the magnificence of vast extent, and endless diversity."

So far Dr. Johnson.—Mr. Croft says, "Of these poems the two or three first have been perused more eagerly and more frequently than the rest. When he got as far as the fourth or fifth, his original motive for taking up the pen was answered; his grief was naturally either diminished or exhausted. We still find the same pious poet; but we hear less of Philander and Narcissa, and less of the mourner whom he loved to pity."

Notwithstanding one might be tempted, from some passages in the Night Thoughts, to suppose he had taken his leave of terrestrial things, in the alarming year 1745, he could not refrain from returning again to politics; but wrote Poetical Reflections on the State of the Kingdom, originally appended to the Night Thoughts, but never reprinted with them.

In 1753, his tragedy of the Brothers, written thirty years before, now first appeared upon the stage. It had been in rehearsal when Young took orders, and was withdrawn on that occasion. The Rector of Welwyn devoted 1000*l.* to "The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel," and estimating the probable produce of this play at such a sum, he perhaps thought the occasion might sanctify the means ; and not thinking so unfavorably of the stage as other good men have done, he committed the monstrous absurdity of giving a play for the propagation of the gospel ! The author was, (as is often the case with authors) deceived in his calculation. The Brothers was never a favorite with the public : but that the society might not suffer, the Doctor made up the deficiency from his own pocket.

His next was a prose performance, entitled, "The Centaur not Fabulous ; in Six Letters to a Friend on the Life in Vogue." The third of these letters describes the death-bed of "the gay, young, noble, ingenious, accomplished, and most wretched Altamont," whom report supposed to be Lord Euston. But whether Altamont or Lorenzo were real or fictitious characters, it is certain the author could be at no loss for models for them among the gay nobility, with whom he was acquainted.

In 1759 appeared his lively "Conjectures on Original Composition ;" which, according to Mr. Croft, appear "more like the production of untamed, unbridled youth, than of jaded fourscore." This letter contains the pleasing account of the death of Addison, and his dying address to Lord Warwick—"See how a Christian can die !"

In 1762, but little before his death, Young published his last, and one of his least esteemed poems—"Resignation," which was written on the following occasion. Observing that Mrs. Boscawen, in the midst of her grief for the loss of the Admiral, derived consolation from a perusal of the Night Thoughts, her friend, Mrs. Montague, proposed a visit to the author, by whom they were favorably received ; and were pleased to confess that his "unbounded genius appeared to greater advantage in the companion than even in the author ; that the Christian was in him a character still more inspired, more enraptured, more sublime than the poet, and that, in his ordinary conversation, —————"Letting down the golden chain from high,

He drew his audience upward to the sky."

LIFE OF DR. YOUNG.

On this occasion, and at the request of these ladies, the author produced his Resignation, above mentioned, and which has been so unmercifully treated by the Critics ; but it has, in some measure been rescued from their hands by Dr. Johnson, who says, " It is falsely represented as a proof of decaying faculties. There is Young in every stanza, such as he often is in his highest vigor."

We now approach the closing scene of our author's life, of which, unhappily, we have few particulars. For three or four years before his death, he appeared to have been incapacitated, by the infirmities of age, to perform public duty ; yet he perfectly enjoyed his intellect to the last, and even his vivacity ; for in his last illness a friend mentioning the recent decease of a person who had long been in a decline, and observing, that he quite worn to a shell before he died ; " Very likely," replied the Doctor ; " but what has become of the kernel ?"—He is said to have regretted to another friend, that his Night Thoughts, of all his works, most calculated to do good, were written so far above the understanding of common readers, as to contract their sphere of usefulness : This, however, ought not perhaps to be regretted, since there is a great sufficiency of good books for common readers, and the style of that work will always introduce where plain compositions would not be read.

He died at his Parsonage House, at Welwyn, A.D. 1765, and was buried according to his desire on the side of his lady, under the altar-piece of the Church : which is said to be ornamented in a singular manner with an elegant piece of needle-work by L. Young, and some appropriate inscriptions, painted in the direction of the Doctor.

His best monument is to be found in his works ; a less durable one, in marble, was erected by his son and heir, with a very modest and sensible inscription. This son, Mr. Frederick Young, had the greater part of his education at Winchester school, and, coming a scholar upon the foundation, was a consequence thereof, to New College, in Oxford ; but there being no vacancy (though the society for one no less than two years,) he was admitted in the mean time in Baliol, where he behaved so imprudently as to be forbidden the college.* This misconduct disoblged his father so much, that it is said he never would see him afterwards: however, by his will he bequeathed to him the bulk of his fortune, which was considerable, reserving only a legacy to his friend Stevens, the hatter at Temple-gate; and 1000*l.* to his house-keeper, with his dying charge to see all his manuscripts destroyed; which may have been some loss to posterity, though none perhaps to his own fame.

Dr. Young, as a christian and divine, has been reckoned an example of primeval piety.—He was an able orator, but it is not known whether he composed many sermons; and it is certain that he published very few. The following incident does honor to his feelings: when preaching in his turn one Sunday at St. James's, finding he could not gain the attention of his audience, his pity for their folly got the better of all decorum; he sat back in the pulpit, and burst into a flood of tears.

His turn of mind was naturally solemn; and he usually, when at home in the country, spent many hours walking among the tombs in his own churchyard. His conversation, as well as writings, had all a reference to a future life; and this turn of mind mixed itself even with his improvements in gardening: he had, for instance, an alcove, with a bench so well painted in it, that at a distance it seemed to be real; but upon a nearer approach the deception was perceived, and this motto appeared:

Invisibilia non decipiunt.

The things unseen, do not deceive us.

* Mr. Croft denies this circumstance, and calls the poet's son his friend. He does not, however, pretend to vindicate the conduct of the youth; but he relates his repentance and regret, which is far better. Perhaps it is not possible wholly to vindicate the father Great genius, even accompanied with piety, is not always most ornamental to domestic life: and the prose of ordinary occurrences," says Croft, "is beneath the notice of poets."

LIFE OF DR. YOUNG.

In another part of his garden was also this inscription :

Ambulantes in horto audierunt vocem Dei.

They heard the voice of God walking in the garden.

This seriousness occasioned him to be charged with gloominess of temper ; yet he was fond of rural sports and innocent amusements. He would sometimes sit the assembly and the bowling-green ; and we find in his satires that he knew how to laugh at folly. His wit was poignant, and always levelled at those who shewed any contempt for decency or religion ; an instance of which we have remarked in his extemporaneous epigram on Voltaire.

Dr. Young rose betimes, and engaged with his domestics in the duties of Morning Prayer. He is said to have read but little ; but he noted what he read, and many of his books were so swelled with fold down his favorite passages, that they would hardly shut. He was moderate in his meals, and rarely drank wine, except when he was ill ; being (as is usually said) unwilling to waste the succors of sickness on the stability of health. After a slight refreshment, he retired to rest early in the evening, even though he might have company who wished to prolong his stay.

He lived at a moderate expence, rather inclined to parsimony than profusion ; and seems to have possessed just conceptions of the vanity of the world : (such is the inconsistency of man !) he courted honors and preferments at the borders of the grave, even late as 1758 ; but none were then conferred. It has however been asserted that he had a pension of 2000 a year from government, conferred under the auspices of Walpole.

At last, when he was full fourscore, the author of the Night Thoughts,

“ Who thought e’en gold itself might come a day too late.”

Was made Clerk of the Closet to the Princess of Wales. What retarded his promotion is not easy to determine. Some attribute attachment to the Prince of Wales and his friends ; and others assert, that the King thought him sufficiently provided for. Certain it is, that he knew no straits in pecuniary matters ; and that, in the method he has recommended of estimating human life, honors are of little value.

LIFE OF DR. YOUNG.

His merits as an Author have already been considered in a review of his works : and nothing seems necessary to be added, but the following general characters of his composition, from Blair and Johnson.

Dr. Blair says (in his celebrated lectures :) “ Among moral and didactic poets, Dr. Young is of too great eminence to be passed over without notice. In all his works, the marks of strong genius appear. His Universal Passion possesses the full merit of that animated conciseness of style and lively description of character, which I mention as requisite in satirical and didactic compositions. Though his wit may often be thought too sparkling, and his sentences too pointed, yet the vivacity of his fancy is so great, as to entertain every reader. In his Night Thoughts there is much energy of expression ; in the three first, there are several pathetic passages ; and scattered through them all, happy images and illusions, as well as pious reflections occur. But the sentiments are frequently over-strained, and turgid ; and the style is too harsh and obscure to be pleasing.”

The same critic has said of our author in another place, that his “ merit in figurative language is great and deserves to be remarked. No writer, ancient or modern, had a stronger imagination than Dr. Young, or one more fertile in figures of every kind ; his metaphors are often new, and often natural and beautiful. But his imagination was strong and rich, rather than delicate and correct.”

These strictures may be thought severe ; but it should be remembered, that an author derives far more honor from such a discriminate character, from a judicious critic, than from the indiscriminate commendation of an admirer. The following is the conclusion of Dr. Johnson's critique, and shall conclude these memoirs.

LIFE OF DR. YOUNG.

" It must be allowed of Young's poetry, that it abounds in thought, but without much accuracy or selection. When he lays hold of a thought, he pursues it beyond expectation, [and] sometimes happily, as in his parallel of quicksilver with pleasure . . . which is very ingenious, very subtle, and almost exact . . .

" His versification is his own; neither his blank nor his rhyming lines have any resemblance to those of former writers; he picks up no hemisticks, he copies no favorite expressions; he seems to have laid up no stores of thought or diction, but to owe all to the fortuitous suggestions of the present moment. Yet I have reason to believe that, when once he had formed a new design, he then labored it with very patient industry, and that he composed with great labor and frequent revisions.

" His verses are formed by no certain model; he is no more like himself in his different productions, than he is like others. He seems never to have studied prosody, nor to have any direction, but from his own ear. But with all his defects he was a man of genius, and a poet."

P. S. The materials of the above Life are taken from the Article referring to our author in Johnson's Lives of the Poets, written by Mr. Herbert Croft, with the Critique of Dr. Johnson, compared with the Biographia Britannica, and other respectable authorities.

THE

AUTHOR'S PREFACE.

As the occasion of this Poem was real, not fictitious; so the method pursued in it was rather imposed, by what spontaneously arose in the Author's mind, on that occasion, than meditated or designed; which will appear very probable from the nature of it. For it differs from the common mode of poetry, which is from long narrations to draw short morals. Here, on the contrary, the narrative is short, and the morality arising from it makes the bulk of the Poem. The reason of it is, that the facts mentioned did naturally pour these moral reflections on the thought of the Writer.

THE COMPLAINT.

NIGHT I.

ON LIFE, DEATH, AND IMMORTALITY.

TO THE RIGHT HON. ARTHUR ONSLOW, ESQ.
Speaker of the House of Commons.

TIR'D Nature's sweet restorer, balmy Sleep !
He, like the world, his ready visit pays,
Where fortune smiles ; the wretched he forsakes :
Swift on his downy pinions flies from woe,
And lights on lids unsully'd with a tear.

From short (as usual) and disturb'd repose
I wake : how happy they who wake no more !
Yet that were vain, if dreams infest the grave.
I wake, emerging from a sea of dreams
Tumultuous ; where my wreck'd desponding thought,
From wave to wave of fancy'd misery,
At random drove, her helm of reason lost :
Though now restored, 'tis only change of pain,
(A bitter change) severer for severe.
The day too short for my distress ; and night,
Ev'n in the zenith of her dark domain,
Is sun-shine to the color of my fate.

Night, sable goddess ! from her ebon throne,
In rayless majesty, now stretches forth
Her leaden sceptre, o'er a slumbering world.
Silence, how dead ! and darkness, how profound !
Nor eye, nor list'ning ear an object finds ;
Creation sleeps. 'Tis as the general pulse

Of life stood still, and nature made a pause ;
An awful pause ! prophetic of her end.

And let her prophecy be soon fulfil'd :

Fate ! drop the curtain ; I can lose no more.

Silence and darkness ! solemn sisters ! twins
From ancient night, who nurse the tender thought
To reason, and on reason build resolve,
(That column of true majesty in man)

Assist me : I will thank you in the grave ;

The grave, your kingdom : there this frame shall fall
A victim sacred to your dreary shrine.

But what are ye ?—

THOU ! who didst put to flight
Primæval silence, when the morning stars
Exulting, shouted o'er the rising ball ;
O THOU ! whose word from solid darkness struck
That spark, the sun, strike wisdom from my soul ;
My soul, which flies to thee, her trust, her treasure,
As misers to their gold, while others rest.

Thro' this opaque of nature and of soul,
This double night, transmit one pitying ray,
To lighten and to cheer. O lead my mind,
(A mind that fain would wander from its woe)
Lead it thro' various scenes of life and death ;
And from each scene, the noblest truths inspire.
Nor less inspire my conduct, than my song ;
Teach my best reason, reason ; my best will Teach rectitude ; and fix my firm resolve
Wisdom to wed, and pay her long arrears :
Nor let the vial of thy vengeance, pour'd
On this devoted head, be pour'd in vain.

The bell strikes One. We take no note of time,
But from its loss. To give it then a tongue,
Is wise in man. As if an angel spoke,
I feel the solemn sound. If heard aright,
It is the knell of my departed hours :
Where are they ? With the years beyond the flood.
It is the signal that demands dispatch :
How much is to be done ? My hopes and fears
Start up alarm'd, and o'er life's narrow verge
Look down—on what ? a fathomless abyss ;
A dread eternity ! How surely mine !

And can eternity belong to me,
 Poor pensioner on the bounties of an hour?

How poor, how rich, how abject, how august,
 How complicate, how wonderful is man!
 How passing wonder HE, who made him such!
 Who centred in our make such strange extremes!
 From different natures, marvelously mix'd,
 Connection exquisite of distant worlds!
 Distinguish'd link in being's endless chain!
 Midway from nothing to the DEITY!
 A beam ethereal, sully'd, and absorpt!
 Tho' sully'd and dishonor'd, still divine!
 Dim miniature of greatness absolute!
 An heir of glory! a frail child of dust!
 Helpless immortal! insect infinite!
 A worm! a god!—I tremble at myself,
 And in myself am lost! at home, a stranger,
 Thought wanders up and down, surpriz'd, aghast,
 And wond'ring at her own: how reason reels:
 O what a miracle to man is man,
 Triumphantly distress'd! what joy, what dread!
 Alternately transported, and alarm'd!
 What can preserve my life? or what destroy?
 An angel's arm, can't snatch me from the grave:
 Legions of angels can't confine me there.

'Tis past conjecture: all things rise in proof:
 While o'er my limbs sleep's soft dominion spreads,
 What tho' my soul fantastic measures trod
 O'er fairy fields, or mourn'd along the gloom
 Of pathless woods, or down the craggy steep
 Hurl'd headlong, swam with pain the mantled pool,
 Or scal'd the cliff, or danc'd on hollow winds
 With antic shapes? wild natives of the brain!
 Her ceaseless flight, tho' devious, speaks her nature
 Of subtler essence than the trodden clod;
 Active, aerial, tow'ring, unconfin'd,
 Unfetter'd with her gross companion's fall.
 Even silent night proclaims my soul immortal:
 Even silent night proclaims eternal day.
 No human weal, heav'n husbands all events,
 Nor sleep instructs, nor sport vain dreams in vain.

Why then their loss deplore that are not lost ?
Why wanders wretched thought their tombs around,
In infidel distress? are angels there?
Slumbers, rack'd up in dust, ethereal fire?

They live ! they greatly live ! a life on earth
Unkindled, unconceiv'd ! and from an eye
Of tenderness, let heavenly pity fall
On me, more justly number'd with the dead.
This is the desert, this the solitude :
How populous, how vital, is the grave !
This is creation's melancholy vault,
The vale funereal, the sad cypress gloom ;
The land of apparitions, empty shades !
All, all on earth is shadow, all beyond
Is substance : the reverse is folly's creed :
How solid all, where change shall be no more !

This is the bud of being, the dim dawn,
The twilight of our day, the vestibule ;
Life's theatre as yet is shut, and death,
Strong death, alone can heave the massy bar,
This gross impediment of clay remove,
And make us embryos of existence free.
From real life, but little more remote
Is he, not yet a candidate for light,
The future embryo, slumb'ring in his sire.
Embryos we must be, till we burst the shell,
Yon ambient azure shell, and spring to life,
The life of gods, (O transport !) and of man.

Yet man, fool man ! here buries all his thoughts ;
Inters celestial hopes without one sigh.
Pris'ner of earth, and pent beneath the moon ;
Here pinions all his wishes : wing'd by heaven
To fly at infinite ; and reach it there,
Where seraphs gather immortality.

On life's fair tree, fast by the throne of GOD,
What golden joys ambrosial clust'ring glow
In HIS full beam, and ripen for the just !

Where momentary ages are no more !

Where time, and pain, and chance, and death expire !

And is it in the flight of threescore years,
To push eternity from human thought,
And smother souls immortal in the dust ?

A soul immortal, spending all her fires,
 Wasting her strength in strenuous idleness,
 Thrown into tumult, raptur'd, or alarm'd
 At ought this scene can threaten, or indulge,
 Resembles ocean into tempest wrought,
 To waft a feather, or to drown a fly.

Where falls this censure? It o'erwhelms myself.
 How was my heart incrust'd by the world!
 O how self-fetter'd was my grov'ling soul!
 How, like a worm, was I rapt round and round
 In silken thought, which reptile fancy spun,
 Till darken'd reason lay quite clouded o'er
 With soft conceit of endless comfort here,
 Nor yet put forth her wings to reach the skies!

Night-visions may befriend (as sung above :)
 Our waking dreams are fatal : how I dreamt
 Of things impossible ! (could sleep do more ?)
 Of joys perpetual in perpetual change !
 Of stable pleasures on the tossing wave !
 Eternal sunshine in the storms of life !
 How richly were my noon-tide traces hung
 With gorgeous tapestries of pictur'd joys !
 Joy behind joy, in endless perspective !
 Till at death's toll, whose restless iron tongue
 Calls daily for his millions at a meal,
 Starting, I woke, and found myself undone.
 Where's now my frenzy's pompous furniture ?
 The cobwebb'd cottage, with its ragged wall
 Of mould'ring mud, is royalty to me !
 The spider's most attenuated thread,
 Is cord, is cable, to man's tender tie
 On earthly bliss ; it breaks at every breeze.

O ye bless'd scenes of permanent delight !
 Full, above measure ! lasting, beyond bound !
 A perpetuity of bliss, is bliss.
 Could you, so rich in rapture, fear an end,
 The ghastly thought would drink up all your joy,
 And quite unparadise the realms of light.
 Safe are you lodg'd above these rolling spheres ;
 The baneful influence of whose giddy dance
 Sheds sad vicissitude on all beneath.
 Here teems with revolutions ev'ry hour ;

And rarely for the better ; or the best,
 More mortal than the common births of fate.
 Each moment has its sickle, emulous
 Of time's enormous scythe, whose ample sweep
 Strikes empires from the root ; each moment plays
 His little weapon in the narrow sphere
 Of sweet domestic comfort, and cuts down
 The fairest bloom of sublunary bliss.

Bliss ! sublunary bliss !—Proud words, and vain !
 Implicit treason to divine decree !

A bold invasion of the rights of heav'n !
 I clasp'd the phantoms, and I found them air ;
 O had I weigh'd it ere my fond embrace !
 What darts of agony had miss'd my heart !

Death ! great proprietor of all ! 'tis thine
 To tread out empire, and to quench the stars.
 The sun himself by thy permission shines,
 And, one day, thou shalt pluck him from his sphere.
 Amidst such mighty plunder, why exhaust

Thy partial quiver on a mark so mean ?
 Why thy peculiar rancor wreak'd on me ?
 Insatiate archer ! could not one suffice ?
 Thy shaft slew thrice ; and thrice my peace was slain ;
 And thrice, ere thrice yon moon had fill'd her horn.
 O Cynthia ! why so pale ? dost thou lament
 Thy wretched neighbor ? grieve to see thy wheel
 Of ceaseless change outwhirl'd in human life ?
 How wanes my borrow'd bliss ! from fortune's smile,
 Precarious courtesy ! not virtue's sure,
 Self-given, solar, ray of sound delight.

In ev'ry varied posture, place, and hour,
 How widow'd every thought of ev'ry joy !
 Thought, busy thought ! too busy for my peace !
 Thro' the dark postern of time long elasp'd,
 Led softly, by the stillness of the night,
 Led, like a murderer (and such it proves !)
 Strays (wretched rover !) o'er the pleasing past :
 In quest of wretchedness, perversely strays ;
And finds all desert now ; and meets the ghosts
Of my departed joys, a num'rous train !
I rue the riches of my former fate ;
And comfort's blasted clusters I lament ;

I tremble at the blessings once so dear ;
And ev'ry pleasure pains me to the heart.

Yet why complain ? or why complain for one ?
Hangs out the sun his lustre but for me,
The single man ? are angels all beside ?
I mourn for millions : 'tis the common lot ;
In this shape, or in that, has fate entail'd
The mother's throes, on all of woman born,
Not more the children, than sure heirs of pain.

War, famine, pest, volcano, storm, and fire,
Intestine broils, oppression, with her heart
Wrapt up in triple brass, besieg'd mankind.
God's image, disinherited of day,
Here plung'd in mines, forgets a sun was made ;
There, beings, deathless as their haughty lord,
Are hammer'd to the galling oar for life ;
And plough the winter's wave, and reap despair.
Some, for hard masters, broken under arms,
In battle lopp'd away, with half their limbs,
Beg bitter bread, thro' realms their valor sav'd,
If so the tyrant, or his minions, doom.
Want, and incurable disease (fell pair !)
On hopeless multitudes remorseless seize
At once ; and make a refuge of the grave :
How groaning hospitals eject their dead !
What numbers groan for sad admission there !
What numbers, once in fortune's lap high-fed,
Solicit the cold hand of charity !
To shock us more, solicit us in vain !
Ye silken sons of pleasure ! since in pains
You rue more modish visits, visit here,
And breathe from your debauch ; give, and reduce Surfeit's dominion o'er you : but so great
Your impudence, you blush at what is right.

Happy ! did sorrow seize on such alone :
Not prudence can defend, or virtue save ;
Disease invades the chastest temperance ;
And punishment the guiltless ; and alarm,
Thro' thickest shades pursues the fond of peace.
*Man's caution often into danger turns,
And, his guard falling, crushes him to death.
Not happiness itself makes good her name ;*

Our very wishes give us not our wish.
How distant oft the thing we doat on most,
From that for which we doat, felicity !
The smoothest course of nature, has its pains,
And truest friends, thro' error, wound our rest.
Without misfortune, what calamities !
And what hostilities, without a foe !
Nor are foes wanting to the best on earth :
But endless is the list of human ills,
And sighs might sooner fail, than cause to sigh.

A part how small of the terraqueous globe
Is tenanted by man ! the rest a waste,
Rocks, desarts, frozen seas, and burning sands ;
Wild haunts of monsters, poisons, stings, and death,
Such is earth's melancholy map ! but far
More sad ! this earth is a true map of man :
So bounded are his haughty lord's delights
To woe's wide empire ; where deep troubles toss,
Loud sorrows houl, envenom'd passions bite,
Rav'nous calamities our vitals seize,
And threat'ning fate wide opens to devour.

What then am I, who sorrow for myself ?
In age, in infancy, from others' aid
Is all our hope ; to teach us to be kind.
That nature's first, last lesson to mankind ;
The selfish heart deserves the pain it feels ;
More gen'rous sorrow, while it sinks, exalts ;
And conscious virtue mitigates the pang.
Nor virtue, more than prudence, bids me give Swol'n thought a second channel ; who divide,
They weaken too, the torrent of their grief.
Take then, O world ! thy much-indebted tear :
How sad a sight is human happiness,
To those whose thought can pierce beyond an hour !
O thou, what e'er thou art, whose heart exults !
Wouldst thou I should congratulate thy fate ?
I know thou wouldst ; thy pride demands it from me.
Let thy pride pardon, what thy nature needs,
The salutary censure of a friend.
Thou happy wretch ! by blindness thou art blest ;
By dotage dandled to perpetual smiles.
Know, smiler ! at thy peril art thou pleas'd ;

Thy pleasure is the promise of thy pain.
 Misfortune, like a creditor severe,
 But rises in demand for her delay ;
 She makes a scourge of past prosperity,
 To sting thee more, and double thy distress.

Lorenzo, fortune makes her court to thee :
 Thy fond heart dances, while the syren sings.
 Dear is thy welfare ; think me not unkind ;
 I would not damp, but to secure, thy joys.
 Think not that fear is sacred to the storm.
 Stand on thy guard against the smiles of fate.
 Is heav'n tremendous in its frowns ? most sure ;
 And in its favors formidable too :
 Its favors here are trials, not rewards ;
 A call to duty, not discharge from care ;
 And should alarm us, full as much as woes ;
 Awake us to their cause, and consequence,
 And make us tremble, weigh'd with our desert ;
 Awe nature's tumults, and chastise her joys,
 Lest, while we clasp, we kill them ; nay, invert
 To worse than simple misery, their charms.
 Revolted joys, like foes in civil war,
 Like bosom friendships to resentment sour'd,
 With rage envenom'd rise against our peace.
 Beware what earth calls happiness ; beware
 All joys ; but joys that never can expire.
 Who builds on less than an immortal base,
 Fond as he seems, condemns his joys to death,

Mine dy'd with thee, Philander ! thy last sigh
 Dissolv'd the charm ; the disenchanted earth
 Lost all her lustre. Where, her glitt'ring tow'rs ?
 Her golden mountains, where ? all darken'd down
 To naked waste ; a dreary vale of tears :
 The great magician's dead ! thou poor, pale piece
 Of out-cast earth, in darkness ! what a change
 From yesterday ! thy darling hope so near,
 (Long labor'd prize !) O how ambition flush'd
 Thy glowing cheek ! ambition truly great,
 Of virtuous praise. Death's subtle seed within,
 (Sly, treach'rous miner !) working in the dark,
 Smil'd at thy well-concerted scheme, and beckon'd

The worm to riot on that rose so red,
Unfaded ere it fell; one moment's prey!

Man's foresight is conditionally wise.
Lorenzo! wisdom into folly turns
Oft, the first instant; its idea fair
To lab'ring thought is born. How dim our eye!
The present moment terminates our sight;
Clouds, thick as those on doomsday, drown the next;
We penetrate, we prophecy in vain.
Time is dealt out by particles; and each,
Are mingled with the streaming sands of life,
By fate's inviolable oath is sworn Deep silence, "Where eternity begins."

By nature's law, what may be, may be now;
There's no prerogative in human hours.
In human hearts what bolder thought can rise,
Than man's presumption on to-morrow's dawn?
Where is to-morrow? In another world.
For numbers this is certain; the reverse
Is sure to none; and yet on this perhaps,
This peradventure, infamous for lies,
As on a rock of adamant we build
Our mountain hopes; spin our eternal schemes,
As we the fatal sisters would out-spin,
And, big with life's futurities expire.

Not ev'n Philander had bespoke his shroud,
Nor had he cause; a warning was denied:
How many fall as sudden, not as safe!
As sudden, tho' for years admonished home.
Of human ills the last extreme beware,
Beware, Lorenzo! a slow-sudden death.
How dreadful that deliberate surprize!
Be wise to-day: 'tis madness to defer;
Next day the fatal precedent will plead;
Thus on, 'till wisdom is push'd out of life.
Procrastination is the thief of time;
Year after year it steals, 'till all are fled,
And to the mercies of a moment leaves
The vast concerns of an eternal scene.

If not so frequent would not this be strange?
That 'tis so frequent, this is stranger still.

Of man's miraculous mistakes, this bears
The palm, "That all men are about to live,"
For ever on the brink of being born.
All pay themselves the compliment to think
They one day shall not drivel; and their pride
On this reversion takes up ready praise;
At least their own; their future selves applauds.
How excellent that life they ne'er will lead!
Time lodg'd in their own hands is folly's vails;
That lodg'd in fate's, to wisdom they consign;
The thing they can't but purpose, they postpone:
'Tis not in folly, not to scorn a fool;
And scarce in human wisdom to do more.
All promise is poor dilatory man,
And that thro' ev'ry stage: when young, indeed,
In full content we, sometimes, nobly rest,
Un-anxious for ourselves; and only wish,
As duteous sons, our fathers were more wise.
At thirty man suspects himself a fool;
Knows it at forty, and reforms his plan;
At fifty chides his infamous delay,
Pushes his prudent purpose to resolve;
In all the magnanimity of tho't
Resolves; and re-resolves; then dies the same.

And why? because he thinks himself immortal.
All men think all men mortal, but themselves:
Themselves, when some alarming shock of fate
Strikes thro' their wounded hearts the sudden dread;
But their hearts wounded, like the wounded air,
Soon close; where past the shaft, no trace is found.
As from the wing no scar the sky retains,
The parted wave no furrow from the keel;
So dies in human hearts the tho't of death.
Ev'n with the tender tear which nature sheds
O'er those we love, we drop it in their grave.
Can I forget Philander? that were strange:
O my full heart!—But should I give it vent,
The longest night, tho' longer far, would fail,
And the lark listen to my midnight song.
The sprightly lark's shrill matin wakes the morn!
Grief's sharpest thorn hard pressing on my breast,
I strive, with wakeful melody, to cheer

The sullen gloom, sweet Philomel like thee,
And call the stars to listen : ev'ry star
Is deaf to mine, enamour'd of thy lay.
Yet be not vain : there are, who thine excel,
And charm thro' distant ages : wrapt in shade,
Pris'ner of darkness ! to the silent hours,
How often I repeat their rage divine
To lull my griefs, and steal my heart from woe !
I roll their raptures, but not catch their fire.
Dark, tho' not blind, like thee, Mæonides !
Or, Milton ! thee ; ah ! could I reach your strain !
Or his, who made Mæonides our own.
Man too he sung : immortal man I sing.
Oft bursts my song beyond the bounds of life :
What now, but immortality, can please ?
O had he press'd his theme, pursu'd the track,
Which opens out of darkness into day !
O had he mounted on his wings of fire,
Soar'd, where I sink, and sung immortal man !
How had it blest mankind, and rescu'd me !

END OF NIGHT THE FIRST.

THE COMPLAINT.

NIGHT II.

ON TIME, DEATH, AND FRIENDSHIP.

TO THE RIGHT HON. THE EARL OF WILMINGTON.

“WHEN the cock crew, he wept”—smote by that eye

Which looks on me, on all; that pow’r, who bids
This midnight centinel, with clarion shrill,
(Emblem of that which shall awake the dead,) h

Rouse souls from slumber into tho’ts of heav’n.

Shall I too weep? where then is fortitude?

And, fortitude abandon’d, where is man?

I know the terms on which he sees the light;

He that is born, is list’d; life is war;

Eternal war with woe. Who bears it best,

Deserves it least.—On other themes I’ll dwell.

Lorenzo! let me turn my tho’ts on thee,

And thine, on themes may profit; profit there.

Where most thy need. Themes, too, the genuine growth

Of dear Philander’s dust. He, thus, tho’ dead,

May still befriend—What themes? Time’s wond’rous price,

Death, friendship, and Philander’s final scene.

*So could I touch these themes, as might obtain Thine ear, nor leave thine heart quite disengag’d.
The good deed would delight me; half-impress*

On my dark cloud an Iris ; and from grief
Call glory—Dost thou mourn Philander's fate ?
I know thou say'st it : says thy life the same ?
He mourns the dead, who lives as they desire.
Where is that thrift, that avarice of TIME,
(O glorious avarice !) thought of death inspires,
As rumor'd robberies endear our gold ?
O time ! than gold more sacred : more a load
Than lead, to fools ; and fools reputed wise.
What moment granted man without account ?
What years are squander'd, wisdom's debt unpaid ?
Our wealth in days all due to that discharge.
Haste, haste, he lies in wait, he's at the door,
Insidious death ! should his strong hand arrest,
No compensation sets the pris'ner free.
Eternity's inexorable chain

Fast binds ; and vengeance claims the full arrear.

How late I shudder'd on the brink ! how late
Life call'd for her last refuge in despair !
That time is mine, O Mead ! to thee I owe ;
Fain would I pay thee with eternity.
But ill my genius answers my desire :
My sickly song is mortal, past thy cure.
Accept the will ;—that dies not with my strain.

For what calls thy disease, Lorenzo ? Not
For Esculapian, but for mortal aid.
Thou think'st it folly to be wise too soon.
Youth is not rich in time ; it may be poor ;
Part with it as with money, sparing ; pay
No moment but in purchase of its worth ;
And what its worth, ask death-beds ; they can tell.
Part with it as with life : reluctant ; big
With holy hope of nobler time to come ;
Time higher aim'd, still nearer the great mark
Of men and angels ; virtue more divine.

Is this our duty, wisdom, glory, gain ?
(These heav'n benign in vital union binds)
And sport we like the natives of the bough,
When vernal suns inspire ? Amusement reigns
Man's great demand : to trifle is to live ;
And is it then a trifle, too, to die ?

Thou say'st I preach, Lorenzo ! 'tis confess.
 What if, for once, I preach thee quite awake ?
 Who wants amusement in the flame of battle ?
 Is it not treason to the soul immortal,
 Her foes in arms, eternity the prize ?
 Will toys amuse, when med'cines cannot cure ?
 When spirits ebb, when life's enchanting scenes
 Their lustre lose, and lessen in our sight,
 As lands and cities with their glitt'ring spires
 To the poor shatter'd bark, by sudden storm
 Thrown off to sea, and soon to perish there ;
 Will toys amuse ? no, thrones will then be toys,
 And earth and skies seem dust upon the scale.
 Redeem we time ?—Its loss we dearly buy.
 What pleads Lorenzo for his high-priz'd sports ?
 He pleads time's num'rous blanks ; he loudly pleads
 The straw-like trifles on life's common stream.
 From whom those blanks and trifles, but from thee ?
 No blank, no trifle, nature made or meant.
 Virtue, or purpos'd virtue, still be thine ;
 This cancels thy complaint at once ; this leaves
 In act no trifle, and no blank in time.
 This greatens, fills, immortalizes all ;
 This, the blest art of turning all to gold :
 This, the good heart's prerogative to raise
 A royal tribute from the poorest hours ;
 Immense revenue ! ev'ry moment pays.
 If nothing more than purpose in thy pow'r ;
 Thy purpose firm, is equal to the deed :
 Who does the best his circumstance allows,
 Does well, acts nobly ; angels could no more.
 Our outward act, indeed, admits restraint :
 'Tis not in things o'er thought to domineer ;
 Guard well thy thought ; our thoughts are heard in heav'n.
 On all-important time, through ev'ry age,
 Tho' much, and warm, the wise have urg'd ; the man
 Is yet unborn, who duly weighs an hour.
 " I've lost a day"—The prince who nobly cry'd,
 Had been an emperor without his crown ;
 Of Rome ? say, rather, lord of human race :
 He spoke, as if deputed by mankind.

So should all speak : so reason speaks in all ;
 From the soft whispers of that god in man,
 Why fly to folly, why to frenzy fly,
 For rescue from the blessings we possess ?
 Time, the supreme !—Time is eternity ;
 Pregnant with all eternity can give ;
 Pregnant with all that makes archangels smile.
 Who murders time, he crushes in the birth
 A pow'r ethereal, only not ador'd.

Ah ! how unjust to nature, and himself,
 Is thoughtless, thankless, inconsistent man !
 Like children babbling nonsense in their sports,
 We censure nature for a span too short ;
 That span too short, we tax as tedious too ;
 Torture invention, all expedients tire,
 To lash the ling'ring moments into speed,
 And whirl us (happy riddance !) from ourselves.
 Art, brainless art ! our furious charioteer,
 (For nature's voice unstifled would recal)
 Drives headlong tow'rs the precipice of death :
 Death, most our dread ; death thus more dreadful made ;
 O what a riddle of absurdity !
 Leisure is pain ; takes off our chariot wheels ;
 How heavily we drag the load of life !
 Blest leisure is our curse ; like that of Cain,
 It makes us wander ; wander earth around
 To fly that tyrant, Thought. As Atlas groan'd
 The world beneath, we groan beneath an hour.
 We cry for mercy to the next amusement ;
 The next amusement mortgages our fields !
 Slight inconvenience ! prisons hardly frown,
 From hateful time, if prisons set us free.
 Yet when Death kindly tenders us relief,
 We call him cruel ; years to moments shrink,
 Ages to years. The telescope is turn'd,
 To man's false optics (from his folly false)
 Time, in advance, behind him hides his wings,
 And seems to creep decrepit with his age ;
 Behold him, when past by ; what then is seen,
 His broad pinions swifter than the winds ?
 All mankind, in contradiction strong,
 , aghast ! cry out on his career.

ON TIME, DEATH, AND FRIENDSHIP.

Leave to thy foes these errors, and these ills ;
To nature just, their cause and cure explore.
Not short heav'n's bounty, boundless our expence ;
No niggard, nature ; men are prodigals.
We waste (not use) our time ; we breath, not live.
Time wasted is existence, us'd is life.
And bare existence, man, to live ordain'd,
Wrings and oppresses with enormous weight.
And why ? since time was given for use, not waste.
Enjoin'd to fly ; with tempest, tide, and stars,
To keep his speed, nor ever wait for man ;
Time's use was doom'd a pleasure ; waste, a pain ;
That man might feel his error, if unseen ;
And, feeling, fly to labor for his cure ;
Not, blund'ring, split on idleness for ease.
Life's cares are comforts, such by heav'n design'd ;
He that has none, must make them, or be wretched.
Cares are employments ; and without employ
The soul is on the rack ; the rack of rest,
To souls most adverse ; action all their joy.

Here, then, the riddle, mark'd above unfolds :
Then time turns torment, when man turns a fool.
We rave, we wrestle with great nature's plan ;
We thwart the DEITY, and 'tis decreed,
Who thwart his will shall contradict their own.
Hence our unnatural quarrel with ourselves ;
Our thoughts at enmity ; our bosom-broil ;
We push Time from us, and we wish him back ;
Lavish of lustrums, and yet fond of life ;
Life we think long, and short ; death seek and shun ;
Body and soul, like peevish man and wife,
United jar, and yet are loth to part.

Oh the dark days of vanity ! while here,
How tasteless ! and how terrible when gone :
Gone ! they ne'er go ; when past they haunt us still ;
The spirit walks of ev'ry day deceas'd ;
And smiles an angel, or a fury frowns.
Nor death, nor life delight us. If time past,
And time possess, both pain us, what can please ?
That which the DEITY to please ordain'd,
Time us'd. The man who consecrates his hours
By vigorous effort, and an honest aim,

At once he draws the sting of life and death ;
He walks with nature : and her paths are peace.

Our errors cause and cure are seen : see next
Time's nature, origin, importance, speed :
And thy great gain from urging his career.
All-sensual man, because untouch'd, unseen,
He looks on time as nothing. Nothing else
Is truly man's ; 'tis fortune's.—Time's a god.
Hast thou ne'er heard of Time's omnipotence ?
For, or against, what wonders can he do !
And will : to stand blank neuter he disdains.
Not on those terms was Time (Heav'n's stranger) sent
On his important embassy to man.

Lorenzo ! no : on the long-destin'd hour,
From everlasting ages growing ripe,
That memorable hour of wond'rous birth,
When the Dread Sire, on emanation bent,
And big with nature, rising in his might,
Call'd forth creation (for then Time was born)
By godhead streaming thro' a thousand worlds ;
Not on those terms, from the great days of Heav'n,
From old Eternity's mysterious orb,
Was time cut off, and cast beneath the skies ;
The skies, which watch him in his new abode,
Measuring his motions by revolving spheres ;
That horologe machinery divine.
Hours, days, and months, and years, his children play,
Like num'rous wings, around him, as he flies :
Or, rather, as unequal plumes they shape
His ample pinions, swift as darted flame,
To gain his goal, to reach his ancient rest,
And join anew Eternity his sire ;
In his immutability to nest,
When worlds, that count his circles now, unking'd
(Rate the loud signal sounding) headlong rush
To timeless night and chaos, whence they rose.

Why spur the speedy ? why with levities
New-wing thy short, short day's too rapid flight ?
Know'st thou, or what thou dost, or what is done ?
Man flies from time, and time from man, too soon
! sad divorce this double flight must end ;
d then, where are we ? where, Lorenzo ! then

Thy sports ? thy pomps ?—I grant thee, in a state
 Not unambitious ; in the ruffled shroud,
 Thy Parian tomb's triumphant arch beneath.
 Has Death his fopperies ? then well may Life
 Put on her plume, and in her rainbow shine.

Ye well array'd ! ye lilies of our land !
 Ye lilies male ! who neither toil, nor spin,
 (As sister lilies might) if not so wise
 As Solomon, more sumpt'ous to the sight !
 Ye delicate ! who nothing can support,
 Yourselves most insupportable ! for whom
 The winter rose must blow, the sun put on
 A brighter beam in Leo, silky-soft
 Favonious breathe still softer, or be chid,
 And other worlds send odors, sance, and song,
 And robes, and notions, fram'd in foreign looms !
 O ye Lorenzos of our age ! who deem
 One moment unamus'd, a misery
 Not made for feeble man ! who call aloud
 For ev'ry bauble, drivell'd o'er by sense,
 For rattles, and conceits of ev'ry cast,
 For change of follies and relays of joy,
 To drag your patient thro' the tedious length
 Of a short winter's day—say, sages say !
 Wit's oracles ; say, dreamers of gay dreams ;
 How will you weather an eternal night,
 Where such expedients fail ?

O treach'rous Conscience ! while she seems to sleep
 On rose and myrtle, lull'd with syren song ;
 While she seems nodding o'er her charge, to drop
 On headlong appetite the slacken'd rein,
 And give us up to licence, unrecall'd,
 Unmark'd ;—see, from behind her secret stand,
 The sly informer minutes ev'ry fault,
 And her dread diary with horror fills.
 Not the gross act alone employs her pen ;
 She reconnoitres Fancy's airy band,
 A watchful foe ! the formidable spy,
 List'ning o'erhears the whispers of our camp :
 Our dawning purposes of heart explores,
 And steals our embryos of iniquity.
As all-rapacious usurers conceal

Their doomsday-book from all-consuming heirs ;
Thus, with indulgence most severe, she treats
Us spendthrifts of inestimable time ;
Unnoted, notes each moment misapply'd ;
In leaves more durable than leaves of brass,
Writes our whole history ; which death shall read
In ev'ry pale delinquent's private ear ;
And judgment publish ; publish to more worlds
Than this ; and endless age in groans resound.
Lorenzo, such that sleeper in thy breast !
Such is her slumber : and her vengeance such
For slighted counsel ; such thy future peace !
And think'st thou still thou canst be wise too soon ?

But why on time so lavish is my song ?
On this great theme kind Nature keeps a school,
To teach her sons herself. Each night we die,
Each morn are born anew : each day, a life !
And shall we kill each day ? If trifling kills,
Sure vice must butcher. O what heaps of slain
Cry out for vengeance on us ! Time destroy'd
Is suicide, where more than blood is spilt.
Time flies, death urges, knells call, heav'n invites,
Hell threatens : all exerts ; in effort, all ;
More than creation labors !—Labors more.
And is there in creation, what, amidst
This tumult universal, wing'd dispatch,
And ardent energy, supinely yawns ?—
Man sleeps ; and man alone ; and man, whose fate,
Fate, irreversible, entire, extreme,
Endless, hair-hung, breeze-shaken, o'er the gulph
A moment trembles ; drops ! and man, for whom
All else is in alarm ! man, the sole cause
Of this surrounding storm ! and yet he sleeps,
As the storm rock'd to rest.—Throw years away ?
Throw empires, and be blameless. Moments seize ;
Heav'n's on their wing : a moment we may wish,
When worlds want wealth to buy. Bid day stand still,
Bid him drive back his car, and re-import
The period past, re-give the given hour.
Lorenzo, more than miracles we want ;
Lorenzo—O for yesterdays to come !
Which is the language of the man awake ;

His ardor such, for what oppresses thee.
 And is his ardor vain, Lorenzo ? no ;
 That more than miracle the gods indulge ;
 To-day is yesterday return'd ; return'd
 Full-power'd to cancel, expiate, raise, adorn,
 And reinstate us on the rock of peace.

Let it not share its predecessor's fate,
 Nor, like its elder sisters, die a fool.
 Shall it evaporate in fume ? fly off
 Fuliginous, and stain us deeper still ?
 Shall we be poorer for the plenty pour'd ?
 More wretched for the clemencies of heav'n ?

Where shall I find him ? Angels ! tell me where.
 You know him : he is near you : point him out.
 Shall I see glories beaming from his brow,
 Or trace his footsteps by the rising flow'rs ?
 Your golden wings, now hov'ring o'er him, shed
 Protection ; now, are waving in applause
 To that blest son of foresight ! lord of fate !
 That awful independent on to-morrow !
 Whose work is done ; who triumphs in the past ;
 Whose yesterdays look backward with a smile ;
 Nor, like the Parthian wound him as they fly ;
 That common, but opprobrious lot ! past hours,
 If not by guilt, yet wound us by their flight,
 If folly bounds our prospect by the grave,
 All feeling of futurity benumbed ;
 All godlike passion for eternal quench'd ;
 All relish of realities expir'd ;
 Renounc'd all correspondence with the skies :
 Our freedom chain'd ; quite wingless our desire ;
 In sense dark-prison'd all that ought to soar ;
 Prone to the centre ; crawling in the dust ;
 Dismounted ev'ry great and glorious aim ;
 Embruted ev'ry faculty divine ;
 Heart-bury'd in the rubbish of the world.
 The world, that gulph of souls ; immortal souls,
 Souls elevate, angelic, wing'd with fire
 To reach the distant skies, and triumph there
 On thrones, which shall not mourn their masters
 chang'd ;

Tho' we from earth ; ethereal, they that fell.
Such veneration due, O man ! to man.

Who venerate themselves, the world despise.
For what, gay friend ! is this escutcheon'd world
Which hangs out DEATH in one eternal night ?
A night, that glooms us in the noon-tide ray,
And wraps our thought, at banquets, in the shroud.
Life's little stage is a small eminence,
Inch-high the grave above ; that home of man,
Where dwells the multitude ; we gaze around ;
We read their monuments ; we sigh ; and while
We sigh, we sink ; and are what we deplor'd ;
Lamenting, or lamented, all our lot !

Is death at distance ? no : he has been on thee ;
And giv'n sure earnest of his final blow.
Those hours which lately smil'd, where are they now ?
Pallid to thought, and ghastly ! drown'd, all drown'd
In that great deep, which nothing disembogues !
And, dying, they bequeath'd thee small renown.
The rest are on the wing : how fleet their flight !
Already has the fatal train took fire ;
A moment, and the world's blown up to thee ;
The sun is darkness, and the stars are dust.

'Tis greatly wise to talk with our past hours ;
And ask them, what report they bore to heav'n ;
And how they might have borne more welcome news.
Their answers form what men experience call ;
If Wisdom's friend, her best ; if not, worst foe.
O reconcile them ! kind experience cries,
" There's nothing here, but what as nothing weighs ;
" The more our joy, the more we know it vain ;
" And by success are tutor'd to despair."
Nor is it only thus, but must be so.

Who knows not this, tho' grey, is still a child.
Loose then from earth the grasp of fond desire,
Weigh anchor, and some happier clime explore.

Art thou so moor'd thou canst not disengage,
Nor give thy thoughts a ply to future scenes ?
Since, by life's passing breath, blown up from earth,
Light, as the summer's dust, we take in air
A moment's giddy flight, and fall again ;
Join the dull mass, encrease the trodden soil,

And sleep till earth herself shall be no more ;
 Since then (as emmets, their small world o'erthrown)
 We, sore amaz'd, from out earth's ruins crawl
 And rise to fate extreme of foul or fair,
 As man's own choice (controlder of the skies !)
 As man's despotic will, perhaps one hour,
 (O how omnipotent is time !) decrees ;
 Should not each warning give a strong alarm ;
 Warning, far less than that of bosom torn
 From bosom, bleeding o'er the sacred dead !
 Should not each dial strike us as we pass,
 Portentous, as the written wall, which struck,
 O'er midnight bowls, the proud Assyrian pale,
 Ere-while high-flush'd with insolence and wine ?
 Like that, the dial speaks ; and points to thee,
 Lorenzo ! loth to break thy banquet up :
 " O man, thy kingdom is departing from thee ;
 " And, while it lasts, is emptier than my shade."
 Its silent language such : nor need'st thou call
 Thy Magi, to decypher what it means.
 Know, like the Medean, fate is in thy walls :
 Dost ask, how ? whence ? Belshazzer-like, amaz'd !
 Man's make encloses the sure seeds of death !
 Life feeds the murderer : ingrate ! he thrives
 On her own meal, and then his nurse devours.
 But here, Lorenzo, the delusion lies ;
 That solar shadow, as it measures life,
 It life resembles too : life speeds away
 From point to point, tho' seeming to stand still.
 The cunning fugitive is swift by stealth :
 Too subtle is the movement to be seen ;
 Yet soon man's hour is up, and we are gone.
 Warnings point out our danger ; Gnomons, time :
 As these are useless when the sun is set ;
 So those, but when more glorious reason shines.
 Reason should judge in all ; in reason's eye,
 That sedentary shadow travels hard.
 But such our gravitation to the wrong,
 So prone our hearts to whisper what we wish,
 'Tis later with the wise, than he's aware ;
 A Wilmington goes slower than the sun ;
 And all mankind mistake their time of day ;

Ev'n age itself. Fresh hopes are hourly sown
 In furrow'd brows. So gentle life's descent,
 We shut our eyes, and think it is a plain.
 We take fair days in winter, for the spring;
 And turn our blessings into bane. Since oft
 Man must compute that age he cannot feel,
 He scarce believes he's older for his years.
 Thus at life's latest eve, we keep in store
 One disappointment sure, to crown the rest;
 The disappointment of a promis'd hour.

On this, or similar, Philander! thou,
 Whose mind was moral as the preacher's tongue;
 And strong, to wield all science, worth the name;
 How often we talk'd down the summer's sun,
 And cool'd our passions by the breezy stream?
 How often thaw'd and shorten'd winter's eve,
 By conflict kind, that struck out latent truth,
 Best found, so sought; to the recluse more coy!
 Thoughts disentangle, passing o'er the lip;
 Clean runs the thread; if not, 'tis thrown away,
 Or kept to tie up nonsense for a song;
 Song, fashionably fruitless; such as stains
 The fancy, and unhallow'd passion fires;
 Chiming her saints to Cytherea's fame.

Know'st thou, Lorenzo! what a friend contains?
 As bees mix'd nectar draw from fragrant flow'rs,
 So men from FRIENDSHIP, wisdom and delight
 Twins ty'd by nature; if they part, they die.
 Hast thou no friend to set thy mind abroad?
 Good sense will stagnate. Thoughts shut up, want air,
 And spoil, like bales unopen'd to the sun.
 Had thought been all, sweet speech had been deny'd;
 Speech, thought's canal! speech, thought's criterion.
 too!

Thought in the mine, may come forth gold or dross;
 When coin'd in words we know its real worth.
 If sterling, store it for thy future use;
 'Twill buy thee benefit; perhaps renown.
 Thought too deliver'd is the more possess'd;
 Teaching, we learn; and, giving, we retain
 The births of intellect; when dumb, forgot
 Speech ventilates our intellectual fire;

Speech burnishes our mental magazine ;
 Brightens, for ornament, and whets, for use.
 What numbers, sheath'd in erudition lie
 Plung'd to the hilts in venerable tomes,
 And rusted ; who might have borne an edge,
 And play'd a sprightly beam, if born to speech !
 If born blest heirs to half their mother's tongue !
 'Tis thought's exchange, which, like the alternate push
 Of waves conflicting, breaks the learned scum,
 And defecates the student's standing pool.

In contemplation is his proud resource ?
 'Tis poor, as proud, by converse unsustain'd.
 Rude thought runs wild in contemplations's field ;
 Converse, the menage, breaks it to the bit
 Of due restraint ; and emulation's spur
 Gives graceful energy, by rivals aw'd.
 'Tis converse qualifies for solitude !
 As exercise for salutary rest.

By that untutor'd, contemplation raves ;
 And nature's fool, by wisdom's is outdone.

Wisdom, tho' richer than Peruvian mines,
 And sweeter than the sweet ambrosial hive,
 What is she, but the means of happiness ?
 That unobtain'd, than folly more a fool ;
 A melancholy fool, without her bells.
 Friendship, the means of wisdom, richly gives
 The precious end, which makes our wisdom wise.
 Nature, in zeal for human amity,
 Denies, or damps, an undivided joy.

Joy is an import ; joy is an exchange ;
 Joy flies monopolists : it calls for two ;
 Rich fruit ! Heav'n planted ! never pluck'd by one.
 Needful auxiliars are our friends, to give
 To social man true relish of himself.
 Full on ourselves decending on a line,
 Pleasure's bright beam is feeble in delight :
 Delight intense, is taken by rebound ;
 Reverberated pleasures fire the breast.

Celestial Happiness, when'er she stoops
 To visit earth, one shrine the goddess finds,
 And one alone, to make her sweet amends
 For absent heav'n—the bosom of a friend ;

Where heart meets heart, reciprocally soft;
Each other's pillow to repose divine.
Beware the counterfeit ; in passion's flame
Hearts melt ; but melt like ice, soon harder froze.
True love strikes root in reason ; passion's foe ;
Virtue alone entenders us for life ;
I wrong her much—entenders us for ever :
Of friendship's fairest fruits, the fruit most fair
Is virtue kindling at a rival fire,
And emulously rapid in her race.
O the soft enmity ! endearing strife !
This carries friendship to her noon-tide point,
And gives the rivet of eternity.

From friendship, which outlives my former themes,
Glorious survivor of old time, and death !
From friendship, thus, that flow'r of heav'nly seed,
The wise extract earth's most Hyblean bliss,
Superior wisdom, crown'd with smiling joy.

But for whom blossoms this Elysian flow'r ?
Abroad they find, who cherish it at home.
Lorenzo ! pardon what my love extorts,
An honest love, and not afraid to frown.
Tho' choice of follies fasten on the great,
None clings more obstinate than fancy fond,
That sacred friendship is their easy prey ;
Caught by the wafture of a golden lure,
Or fascination of a high-born smile.
Their smiles, the great, and the coquet, throw out
For other hearts, tenacious of their own ;
And we no less of ours, when such the bait.
Ye fortune's cofferers ! ye powers of wealth !
You do your rent rolls most felonious wrong,
By taking our attachment to yourselves.
Can gold gain friendship ? Impudence of hope !
As well mere man an angel might beget.
Love, and love only, is the loan for love.
Lorenzo ! pride repress ; nor hope to find
A friend, but what has found a friend in thee.
All like the purchase ; few the price will pay ;
And this makes friends such miracles below.
What if (since daring on so nice a theme)
I shew thee friendship delicate, as dear.

Of tender violations apt to die?
 Reserve will wound it ; and distrust, destroy.
 Deliberate on all things with thy friend.
 But since friends grow not thick on ev'ry bough,
 Nor ev'ry friend unrotten at the core ;
 First on thy friend, delib'rate with thyself ;
 Pause, ponder, sift ; not eager in the choice,
 Nor jealous of the chosen ; fixing, fix ;
 Judge before friendship, then confide till death.
 Well, for thy friend ; but nobler far, for thee.
 How gallant danger for earth's highest prize !
 A friend is worth all hazard we can run.

Poor is the friendless master of a world :
 "A world in purchase for a friend is gain."

So sung he (angels hear that angel sing !
 Angels from friendship gather half their joy !)
 So sung Philander, as his friend went round
 In the rich ichor, in the gen'rous blood
 Of Bacchus, purple god of joyous wit,
 A brow solute, and ever-laughing eye.
 He drank long health, and virtue to his friend ;
 His friend, who warm'd him more, who more inspir'd.
 Friendship's the wine of life ; but friendship new (Not such was his) is neither strong, nor pure.
 O ! for the bright complexion, cordial warmth,
 And elevating spirit ; of a friend,
 For twenty summers rip'ning by my side ;
 All feculence of falshood long thrown down ;
 All social virtues rising in his soul ;
 As crystal clear ; and smiling, as they rise.
 Here nectar flows ; it sparkles in our sight ;
 Rich to the taste, and genuine from the heart.
 High-flavor'd bliss for gods ! on earth how rare !
 On earth how lost !—Philander is no more.
 Think'st thou the theme intoxicates my song ?
 Am I too warm ?—Too warm I cannot be.
 I lov'd him much ; but now I love him more.
 Like birds whose beauties languish, half conceal'd,
 Till mounted on the wing, their glossy plumes
 Expanded shine with azure, green, and gold ;
 How blessings brighten as they take their flight !
 His flight Philander took ; his upward flight,

If ever soul ascended. Had he dropt,
(That eagle genius!) O had he let fall
One feather as he flew, I then, had wrote,
What friends might flatter; prudent foes forbear;
Rivals scarce damn; and Zoilus reprieve.
Yet what I can, I must: it were profane
To quench a glory lighted at the skies,
And cast in shadows his illustrious close.
Strange! the theme most affecting, most sublime,
Momentous most to man, should sleep unsung!
And yet it sleeps, by genius unawak'd,
Painim or Christian; to the blush of wit.
Man's highest triumph! man's profoundest fall!
The death-bed of the just! is yet undrawn
By mortal hand: it merits a divine:
Angels should paint it, angels ever there;
There, on a post of honor and of joy.

Dare I presume, then? But Philander bids;
And glory tempts, and inclination calls—
Yet am I struck; as struck the soul, beneath
Aëreal groves' impenetrable gloom;
Or in some mighty ruin's solemn shade:
Or, gazing by pale lamps on high-born dust
In vaults, thin courts of poor unflatter'd kings!
Or, at the midnight altar's hallow'd flame.
It is religion to proceed: I pause—
And enter, aw'd, the temple of my theme.
Is it his death-bed? No: it is his shrine:
Behold him, there, just rising to a god.

The chamber where the good man meets his fate,
Is privileg'd beyond the common walk
Of virtuous life, quite in the verge of Heav'n.
Fly, ye profane! if not, draw near with awe,
Receive the blessing, and adore the chance
That threw in this Bethesda your disease;
If unrestor'd by this, despair your cure.
For, here restless demonstration dwells;
A death-bed's a detector of the heart.

Here tir'd dissimulation drops her mask,
Thro' life's grimace, that mistress of the scene!
Here real, and apparent are the same.
You see the man; you see his hold on Heav'n;

If sound his virtue ; as Philander's sound.
 Heav'n waits not the last moment ; owns her friends
 On this side Death : and points them out to men ;
 A lecture, silent, but of sovereign pow'r !
 To Vice, confusion ; and to Virtue, peace.

Whatever farce the boastful hero plays,
 Virtue alone has majesty in death ;
 And greater still, the more the tyrant frowns.
 Philander ! he severely frown'd on thee.

" No warning giv'n ! Unceremonious fate !
 " A sudden rush from life's meridian joys !
 " A wrench from all we love ! from all we are !
 " A restless bed of pain ! a plunge opaque
 " Beyond conjecture ! feeble Nature's dread !
 " Strong Reason shudders at the dark unknown !
 " A sun extinguish'd ! a just op'ning grave !
 " And oh ! the last, last ; what ? (can words express,
 " Thought reach ?) the last, last—silence of a friend !"

Where are those horrors, that amazement where,
 This hideous group of ills (which singly shock)
 Demands from man ?—I thought him man till now.

Thro' Nature's wreck, thro' vanquish'd agonies,
 (Like the stars struggling thro' this midnight gloom)
 What gleams of joy ; what more than human peace ;
 Where the frail mortal ? the poor abject worm ?
 No, not in death, the mortal to be found.
 His conduct is a legacy for all,
 Richer than Mammon's for his single heir.
 His comforters he comforts ; great in ruin,
 With unreluctant grandeur, gives, not yields
 His soul sublime ; and closes with his fate.
 How our hearts burn within us at the scene !
 Whence this brave bound o'er limits fix'd to man ?
 His GOD sustains him in his final hour !
 His final hour brings glory to his GOD !
 Man's glory Heav'n vouchsafes to call her own.
 We gaze ; we weep ; mix'd tears of grief and joy !
 Amazement strikes ! devotion bursts to flame !
 Christians adore ! and Infidels believe.

As some tall tow'r or lofty mountain's brow,
Detains the sun, illustrious from its height ;
While rising vapors and descending shades,

With damps, and darkness, drown the spacious vale ;
Undamp'd by doubt, undarken'd by despair,
Philander, thus, augustly rears his head,
At that black hour which gen'ral horror sheds
On the low level of the inglorious throng :
Sweet peace, and heav'nly hope, and humble joy,
Divinely beam on his exalted soul ;
Destruction gild, and crown him for the skies,
With incommunicable lustre, bright.

END OF NIGHT THE SECOND.

THE COMPLAINT.

NIGHT III.

N A R C I S S A.

Ignoscenda quidem, sicut si ignoscere Manes.....Virg.

INSCRIBED
TO HER GRACE THE DUTCHESS OF P....

FROM dreams, where thought in fancy's maze runs mad,
To reason, that heav'n-lighted lamp in man,
Once more I wake ; and at the destin'd hour,
Punctual as lovers to the moment sworn,
I keep my assignation with my woe.

O lost to virtue, lost to manly thought,
Lost to the noble sallies of the soul !
Who think it solitude to be alone.
Communion sweet ! communion large, and high !
Our reason, guardian angel, and our god !
Then nearest these, when others most remote ;
And all, ere long, shall be remote, but these.
How dreadful, then, to meet them all alone,
A stranger ! unacknowledg'd ! un approv'd !
Now woo them ; wed them ; bind them to thy breast ;
To win thy wish, creation has no more.
Or, if we wish a fourth, it is a friend—
But friends, how mortal ! dang'rous the desire.

Take Phœbus to yourselves, ye basking bards !
Inebriate at fair fortune's fountain-head ;
And reeling thro' the wilderness of joy ;
Where sense runs savage, broke from reason's chain.

And sings false peace, till smother'd by the pall.

My fortune is unlike ; unlike my song ;

Unlike the deity my song invokes.

I to day's soft-ey'd sister pay my court,

(Endymion's rival !) and her aid implore ;

Now first implor'd in succor to the muse.

Thou, who didst lately borrow Cynthia's* form,

And modestly forego thine own ! O thou

Who didst thyself, at midnight hours inspire !

Say, why not Cynthia, patroness of song ?

As thou her crescent, she thy character

Assumes ; still more a goddess by the change.

Are there demurring wits, who dare dispute

This revolution in the world inspir'd ?

Ye train Pierian ! to the lunar sphere,

In silent hour address your ardent call

For aid immortal ; less her brother's right.

She, with the spheres harmonious, nightly leads

The mazy dance, and hears their matchless strain ;

A strain for gods, denied to mortal ear.

Transmit it heard, thou silver queen of Heav'n !

What title, or what name, endears thee most ?

Cynthia ! Cyllene ! Phœbe !—or dost hear

With higher gust, fair P—d of the skies ?

Is that the soft enchantment calls thee down,

More powerful than of old Circean charm ;

Come ; but from heav'nly banquets with thee bring

The soul of song, and whisper in mine ear

The theft divine ; or in propitious dreams

(For dreams are thine) transfuse it through the breast

Of thy first votary—but not thy last ;

If, like thy namesake, thou art ever kind.

And kind thou wilt be ; kind on such a theme ;

A theme so like thee, a quite lunar theme,

Soft, modest, melancholy, female, fair !

A theme that rose all pale, and told my soul,

'Twas night ; on her fond hopes perpetual night ;

A night which struck a damp, a deadlier damp,

Than that which smote me from Philander's tomb,

Narcissa follows, ere his tomb is clos'd.

Woes cluster ; rare are solitary woes ;

At the Duke of Norfolk's Masquerade.

They love a train, they tread each other's heel;
 Her death invades his mournful right, and claims
 The grief that started from my lids for him:
 Seizes the faithless, alienated tear,
 Or shares it, ere it falls. So frequent death,
 Sorrow, he more than causes, he confounds;
 For human sighs his rival strokes contend,
 And makes distress, distraction. O Philander!
 What was thy fate? a double fate to me;
 Portent, and pain! a menace, and a blow!
 Like the black raven, hov'ring o'er my peace,
 Not less a bird of omen than of prey.
 It call'd Narcissa long before her hour;
 It call'd her tender soul by break of bliss,
 From the first blossom, from the buds of joy;
 Those few our noxious fate unblasted leaves
 In this inclement clime of human life.

Sweet harmonist! and beautiful as sweet!
 And young as beautiful! and soft as young!
 And gay as soft! and innocent as gay!
 And happy (if aught happy here) as good
 For fortune fond had built her nest on high.
 Like birds quite exquisite of note and plume,
 Transfix'd by fate, (who loves a lofty mark)
 How from the summit of the grove she fell,
 And left it unharmonious! all its charm
 Extinguish'd in the wonders of her song!
 Her song still vibrates in my ravish'd ear,
 Still melting there and with voluptuous pain
 (O to forget her) thrilling thro' my heart!

Song, beauty, youth, love, virtue, joy! this group
 Of bright ideas, flow'rs of Paradise,
 As yet unforfeit! in one blaze we bind,
 Kneel and present it to the skies; as all
 We guess of heav'n: and these were all her own;
 And she was mine; and I was—was most blest—
 Gay title of the deepest misery!
 As bodies grow more pond'rous robb'd of life;
 Good lost weighs more in grief, than gain'd in joy.
 Like blossom'd trees, o'erturn'd by vernal storm,
 Lovely in death the beauteous ruin lay;
 And if in death still lovely, lovelier there;

Far lovelier ! pity swells the tide of love.
 And will not the severe excuse a sigh ?
 Scorn the proud man that is ashamed to weep :
 Our tears indulg'd indeed deserve our shame.
 Ye that e'er lost an angel, pity me.

Soon as the lustre languish'd in her eye,
 Dawning a dimmer day on human sight ;
 And on her cheek, the residence of spring,
 Pale omen sat ; and scatter'd fears around
 On all that saw (and who would cease to gaze,
 That once had seen ?) with haste, parental haste,
 I flew, I snatch'd her from the rigid north,
 Her native bed, on which bleak Boreas blew,
 And bore her nearer to the sun ; the sun
 (As if the sun could envy) check'd his beam,
 Deny'd his wonted succor, or with more
 Regret beheld her drooping, than the bells
 Of lilies ! fairest lilies not so fair.

Queen Ilies ! and ye painted populace !
 Who dwell in fields, and lead ambrosial lives ;
 In morn and ev'ning dew, your beauties bathe,
 And drink the sun ; which gives your cheeks to glow,
 And out-blush (mine excepted) ev'ry fair ;
 You gladlier grew, ambitious of her hand,
 Which often cropt your odors, incense meet
 To thought so pure. Ye lovely fugitives !
 Coeval race with man ! for man you smile ;
 Why not smile at him too ? you share indeed
 His sudden pass ; but not his constant pain.

So man is made, nought ministers delight,
 But what his glowing passions can engage ;
 And glowing passions, bent on aught below,
 Must, soon or late, with anguish turn the scale ;
 And anguish, after rapture, how severe !
 Rapture ? bold man ! who tempts the wrath divine,
 By plucking fruit deny'd to mortal taste,
 Whilst here, presuming on the rights of heav'n.
 For transport dost thou call on ev'ry hour,
 Lorenzo ? at thy friend's expence be wise ;
 Lean not on earth ; 'twill pierce thee to the heart ;
 A broken reed, at best ; but oft, a spear ;
 On its sharp point peace bleeds, and hope expires.

With pious sacrifice a grave. Intole

Turn, hopeless thought ! turn from her : thought repell'd,

Resenting rallies, and wakes ev'ry woe.
Snatch'd ere thy prime ! and in thy bridal hour !
And when kind fortune, with thy lover, smil'd !
And when high-flavor'd thy fresh op'ning joys !
And when blind man pronounc'd thy bliss complete !
And on a foreign shore ; where strangers wept !
Strangers to thee ; and, more surprizing still,
Strangers to kindness, wept : their eyes let fall
Inhuman tears ; strange tears ; that trickled down
From marble hearts ! obdurate tenderness !
A tenderness that call'd them more severe ;
In spite of Nature's soft persuasion, steel'd ;
While Nature melted, Superstition rav'd ;
That mourn'd the dead ; and this deny'd a grave.

Their sighs incenst ; sighs foreign to the will !
Their will the tyger suck'd, outrag'd the storm :
For oh ! the curst ungodliness of zeal !
While sinful flesh relented, spirit nurst
In blind infallibility's embrace,
The sainted spirit petrify'd the breast ;
Deny'd the charity of dust, to spread
O'er dust ! a charity their dogs enjoy.
What could I do ? what succor ? what resource ?
With pious sacrilege a grave I stole ;
With impious piety that grave I wrong'd ;
Short in my duty ; coward in my grief !
More like her murderer, than friend, I crept,
With soft-suspended step ; and, muffled deep
In midnight darkness, whisper'd my last sigh.
I whisper'd what should echo thro' their realms :
Nor writ her name, whose tomb should pierce the skies.
Presumptuous fear ! how durst I dread her foes,
While Nature's loudest dictates I obey'd ?
Pardon necessity, blest shade ! of grief
And indignation rival bursts I pour'd ;
Half-execration mingled with my pray'r ;
Kindled at man, while I his GOD ador'd ;
Sore grudg'd the savage land her sacred dust ;
Stamp'd the curse soil ; and with humanity
(Deny'd Narcissa) wish'd them all a grave.

Glow's my resentment into guilt? What guilt
Can equal violations of the dead?
The dead how sacred! sacred is the dust
Of this heav'n labor'd form, erect, divine!
This heav'n assum'd majestic robe of earth,
He deign'd to wear, who hung the vast expanse
With azure bright, and cloth'd the sun in gold.
When ev'ry passion sleeps that can offend;
When strikes us ev'ry motive that can melt;
When man can wreak his rancor uncontrol'd,
That strongest curb on insult and ill-will;
Then, spleen to dust! the dust of innocence;
An angel's dust!—This Lucifer transcends;
When he contended for the patriarch's bones,
'Twas not the strife of malice, but of pride;
The strife of pontiff pride, not pontiff gall.

Far less than this is shocking in a race
Most wretched, but from streams of mutual love;
And uncreated, but for love divine;
And, but for love divine, this moment lost,
By fate resorb'd, and sunk in endless night.
Man hard of heart to man! of horrid things
Most horrid 'mid stupendous, highly strange!
Yet oft his courtesies are smother wrongs;
Pride brandishes the favors he confers,
And contumelious his humanity:
What then his vengeance? hear it not ye stars!
And thou, pale moon! turn paler at the sound;
Man is to man the sorest, surest ill.
A previous blast foretells the rising storm;
O'erwhelming turrets threaten ere they fall;
Volcanoes bellow ere they disembody;
Earth trembles ere her yawning jaws devour;
And smoke betrays the wide consuming fire:
Ruin from man is most conceal'd when near,
And sends the dreadful tidings in the blow.
Is this the flight of fancy? would it were!
Heaven's sov'reign saves all beings but himself,
That hideous sight, a naked human heart.

*Fir'd is the muse? and let the muse be fir'd;
Who not inflam'd, when what he speaks, he feels,
And in the nerve most tender, in his friends?*

Shame to mankind ! Philander has his foes :
 He felt the truths I sing, and I in him.
 But he, nor I, feel more. Past ills, Narcissa !
 Are sunk in thee, thou recent wound of heart !
 Which bleeds with other cares, with other pangs ;
 Pangs numerous as the numerous ills that swarm'd
 O'er thy distinguish'd fate, and, clustering there
 Thick as the locust on the land of Nile,
 Made death more deadly, and more dark the grave.
 Reflect (if not forgot my touching tale)
 How was each circumstance with aspics arm'd !
 An aspic, each ; and all, an hydra-woe.
 What strong herculean virtue could suffice ?—
 Or is it virtue to be conquer'd here ?
 This hoary cheek a train of tears bedews ;
 And each tear mourns its own distinct distress ;
 And each distress, distinctly mourn'd, demands
 Of grief still more, as heighten'd by the whole.
 A grief like this proprietors excludes :
 Not friends alone such obsequies deplore ;
 They make mankind the mourner ; carry sighs
 Far as the fatal fame can wing her way ;
 And turn the gayest thought of gayest age,
 Down the right channel through the vale of death.

The vale of death ! that hush'd Cimmerian vale,
 Where darkness, brooding o'er unfinish'd fates,
 With raven wing incumbent, waits the day
 (Dread day !) that interdicts all future change !
 That subterranean world, that land of ruin !
 Fit walk, Lorenzo, for proud human thought !
 There let my thoughts expatiate ; and explore
 Balsamic truths, and healing sentiments,
 Of all most wanted and most welcome, here.
 For gay Lorenzo's sake, and for thy own,
 My soul ! " The fruits of dying friends survey ;
 " Expose the vain of life ; weigh life and death :
 " Give death his eulogy ; thy fear subdue ;
 " And labor that first palm of noble minds,
 " A manly scorn of terror from the tomb."

*This harvest reap from thy Narcissa's grave.
 As poet's feign'd, from Ajax' streaming blood
 Arose, with grief inscrib'd, a mournful flower ;*

Let wisdom blossom from my mortal wound.
 And first, of dying friends ; what fruit from these ?
 It brings us more than triple aid ; an aid
 To chase our thoughtlessness, fear, pride and guilt.

Our dying friends come o'er us like a cloud,
 To damp our brainless ardors ; and abate
 That glare of life, which often blinds the wise.
 Our dying friends are pioneers, to smooth
 Our rugged pass to death ; to break those bars
 Of terror, and abhorrence, nature throws
 Cross our obstructed way ; and thus to make
 Welcome, as safe, our port from ev'ry storm.
 Each friend by fate snatch'd from us, is a plume
 Pluck'd from the wing of human vanity,
 Which makes us stoop from our aerial heights,
 And damp'd with omen of our own disease,
 On drooping pinions of ambition lower'd,
 Just skim earth's surface, ere we break it up,
 O'er putrid earth to scratch a little dust,
 And save the world a nuisance. Smitten friends
 Are angels sent on errands full of love :
 For us they languish, and for us they die :
 And shall they languish, shall they die, in vain ?
 Ungrateful shall we grieve their hov'ring shades,
 Which wait the revolution in our hearts ?
 Shall we disdain their silent soft address ;
 Their posthumous advice, and pious prayer ?
 Senseless, as herds that graze their hallow'd graves,
 Tread under foot their agonies and groans ;
 Frustrate their anguish, and destroy their deaths ?
 Lorenzo ! no ; the thought of death indulge ;
 Give it its wholesome empire ! let it reign,
 That kind chastiser of the soul in joy !
 Its reign will spread thy glorious conquests far,
 And still the tumults of thy ruffled breast.
 Auspicious æra ! golden days, begin ;
 The thought of death, shall, like a God, inspire.
 And why not think on death ? Is life the theme
 Of ev'ry thought ? the wish, of ev'ry hour ?
 And song of ev'ry joy ? Surprising truth !
 The beaten spaniel's fondness not so strange.
 To wave the num'rous ills that seize on life

As their own property, their lawful prey ;
 Ere man has measur'd half his weary stage,
 His luxuries have left him no reserve,
 No maiden relishes, unbroach'd delights ;
 On cold-serv'd repetitions he subsists,
 And in the tasteless present chews the past ;
 Disgusted chews, and scarce can swallow down.
 Like lavish ancestors, his earlier years
 Have disinherited his future hours,
 Which starve on orts, and glean their former field.

Live ever here, Lorenzo !—Shocking thought !
 So shocking, they who wish, disown it too ;
 Disown from shame, what they from folly crave.
 Live ever in the womb, nor see the light !
 For what live ever here ?—With lab'ring step
 To tread our former footsteps ? pace the round
 Eternal ? to climb life's worn, heavy wheel,
 Which draws up nothing new ? to beat, and beat,
 The beaten track ? to bid each wretched day
 The former mock ? to surfeit on the same,
 And yawn our joys ? or thank a misery
 For change, though sad ? to see what we have seen ?
 Hear, till unheard, the same old slabber'd tale ?
 To taste the tasted, and at each return
 Less tasteful ? o'er her palates to decant
 Another vintage ? strain a flatter year,
 Through loaded vessels and a laxer tone ?
 Crazy machines to grind earth's wasted fruits !
 Ill ground, and worse concocted ! load, not life !
 The rational foul kennels of excess !
 Still-streaming thoroughfares of dull debauch !
 Trembling each gulp, lest death should snatch the bowl.

Such of our fine ones is the wish refin'd !
 So would they have it : elegant desire !
 Why not invite the bellowing stalls, and wilds ?
 But such examples might their riot awe.
 Through want of virtue, that is, want of thought,
 (Though on bright thought they father all their flights)
 To what are they reduc'd ? to love, and hate,
 The same vain world ; to censure, and espouse,
 This painted shrew of life, who calls them fool
 Each moment of each day ; to flatter bad

Through dread of worse ? to cling to this rude rock,
Barren to them, of good, and sharp with ills,
And hourly blacken'd with impending storms,
And infamous for wrecks of human hope—
Scar'd at the gloomy gulph, that yawns beneath.
Such are their triumphs ! such their pangs of joy !

'Tis time, high time, to shift this dismal scene.

This hugg'd, this hideous state, what art can cure ?

One only ; but that one, what all may reach ;
Virtue—she, wonder-working goddess, charms
That rock to bloom ; and tames the painted shrew ;
And what will more surprize, Lorenzo ! gives
To life's sick, nauseous iteration, change ;
And straitens nature's circle to a line.

Believ'st thou this, Lorenzo ? lend an ear,
A patient ear, thou'lt blush to disbelieve.

A languid, leaden iteration reigns,

And ever must, o'er those, whose joys are joys
Of sight, smell, taste : the cuckoo-seasons sing
The same dull note to such as nothing prize,
But what those seasons from the teeming earth,
To doating sense indulge. But nobler minds,
Which relish fruits unripen'd by the sun,
Make their days various ; various as the dyes
On the dove's neck, which wanton in his rays.
On minds of dove-like innocence possess,
On lighten'd minds, that bask in virtue's beams,
Nothing hangs tedious, nothing old revolves
In that for which they long ; for which they live.
Their glorious efforts wing'd with heavenly hope,
Each rising morning sees still higher rise ;
Each bounteous dawn its novelty presents
To worth maturing, new strength, lustre, fame ;
While nature's circle, like a chariot wheel
Rolling beneath their elevated aims,
Makes their fair prospect fairer ev'ry hour ;
Advancing virtue, in a line to bliss ;
Virtue, which christian motives best inspire ;
And bliss, which christian schemes alone ensure !

*And shall we then, for virtue's sake, commence
Apostates ? and turn infidels for joy ?
A truth it is, few doubt, but fewer trust,*

"He sins against this life, who slights the next."
 What is this life? how few their fav'rite know!
 Fond in the dark, and blind in our embrace,
 By passionately loving life, we make
 Lov'd life unlovely; hugging her to death.
 We give to time eternity's regard;
 And, dreaming, take our passage for our port.
 Life has no value, as an end, but means;
 An end deplorable! a means divine!
 When 'tis our all, 'tis nothing: worse than nought;
 A nest of pains: when held as nothing, much:
 Like some fair hum'rists, life is most enjoy'd
 When courted least; most worth, when disesteem'd:
 Then 'tis the seat of comfort, rich in peace;
 In prospect richer far; important! awful!
 Not to be mention'd, but with shouts of praise;
 Not to be thought on, but with tides of joy!
 The mighty basis of eternal bliss.

Where now the barren rock? the painted shrew?
 Where now, Lorenzo! life's eternal round?
 Have I not made my triple promise good?
 Vain is the world; but only to the vain.
 To what compare we then this varying scene,
 Whose worth ambiguous rises and declines?
 Waxes and wanes? (in all, propitious Night Assists me here) compare it to the moon;
 Dark, in herself, and indigent; but rich
 In borrow'd lustre from a higher sphere.
 When gross guilt interposes, lab'ring earth,
 O'ershadow'd mourns a deep eclipse of joy;
 Her joys, at brightest, pallid to that font
 Of full effulgent glory, whence they flow.

Nor is that glory distant: oh Lorenzo!
 A good man, and an angel! these between
 How thin the barrier! what divides their fate?
 Perhaps a moment, or perhaps a year;
 Or, if an age, it is a moment still;
 A moment, or eternity's forgot.
 Then be, what once they were, who now are gods;
 Be what Philander was, and claim the skies.
Starts timid Nature at the gloomy pass?
The soft transition call it, and be cheer'd:

Such is it often, and why not to thee ?
 To hope the best is pious, brave, and wise ;
 And may itself procure what it presumes.
 Life is much flatter'd, death is much traduc'd :
 Compare the rivals, and the kinder crown.
 " Strange competition !"—True, Lorenzo, strange !
 So little life can cast into the scale.

Life makes the soul dependent on the dust !
 Death gives her wings to mount above the spheres.
 Thro' chinks, styl'd organs, dim life peeps at light ;
 Death bursts the involving cloud, and all is day ;
 All eye, all ear, the disembodiy'd power.
 Death has feign'd evils, Nature shall not feel ;
 Life, ills substantial, wisdom cannot shun.
 Is not the mighty mind, that son of Heaven !
 By tyrant life dethron'd, imprison'd, pain'd ?
 By death enlarg'd, ennobled, deify'd ?
 Death but entombs the body ; life the soul.

" Is death then guiltless ? how he marks his way
 " With dreadful waste of what deserves to shine !
 " Art, genius, fortune, elevated power !
 " With various lustres these light up the world,
 " Which death puts out, and darkens human race."
 I grant, Lorenzo ! this indictment just :
 The sage, peer, potentate, king, conqueror ;
 Death humbles these ; more barb'rous life, the man.
 Life is the triumph of our mould'ring clay ;
 Death of the spirit infinite ! divine !
 Death has no dread, but what frail life imparts ;
 Nor life true joy, but what kind death improves.
 No bliss has life to boast, till death can give Far greater ; life's a debtor to the grave,
 Dark lattice ! letting in eternal day.

Lorenzo, blush at fondness for a life,
 Which sends celestial souls on errands vile,
 To cater for the sense ; and serve at boards,
 Where every ranger of the wilds, perhaps
 Each reptile justly claims our upper hand.
 Luxurious feast ! a soul, a soul immortal,
 In all the dainties of a brute bemir'd !
 Lorenzo, blush at terror, for a death,
 Which gives thee to repose in festive bowers,

Where nectars sparkle, angels minister,
And more than angels share, and raise, and crown,
And eternize the birth, bloom, bursts of bliss.
What need I more ? O Death, the palm is thine.

Then welcome, death, thy dreaded harbingers,
Age and disease ; disease, though long my guest ;
That plucks my nerves, those tender strings of life ;
Which pluck'd a little more, will toll the bell,
That calls my few friends to my funeral ;
Where feeble Nature drops, perhaps, a tear,
While reason and religion, better taught,
Congratulate the dead, and crown his tomb
With wreath triumphant. Death is victory ;
It binds in chains the raging ills of life :
Lust and ambition, wrath and avarice,
Dragg'd at his chariot-wheels, applaud his power.
That ills corrosive, cares importunate,
Are not immortal too, O Death ! is thine.
Our day of dissolution !—Name it right ;
'Tis our great pay-day ; 'tis our harvest, rich
And ripe : what though the sickle, sometimes keen,
Just scars us as we reap the golden grain ;
More than thy balm, O Gilead, heals the wound.
Birth's feeble cry, and death's deep dismal groan,
Are slender tributes low-tax Nature pays
For mighty gain : the gain of each, a life.
But O ! the last, the former so transcends,
Life dies, compar'd ! life lives beyond the grave.

And feel I ; death ! no joy from thought of thee ?
Death, the great counsellor, who man inspires
With every nobler thought, and fairer deed !
Death, the deliverer, who rescues man !
Death, the rewarder, who the rescu'd crowns !
Death, that absolves my birth ; a curse without it !
Rich death, that realizes all my cares,
Toils, virtues, hopes ; without it a chimera !
Death of all pain the period, not of joy ;
Joy's source, and subject, still subsist unhurt ;
One, in my soul ; and one, in her great sire ;
Though the four winds were warring for my dust.
*Yes, and from winds, and waves, and central night,
Though prison'd there, my dust too I reclaim,*

(To dust when drop proud Nature's proudest spheres)
And live entire. Death is the crown of life :
Were death deny'd, poor man would live in vain ;
Were death deny'd, to live would not be life ; -
Were death deny'd, ev'n fools would wish to die.
Death wounds to cure : we fall ; we rise ; we reign ;
Spring from our fetters ! fasten in the skies ;
Where blooming Eden withers in our sight.
Death gives us more than was in Eden lost :
This king of terrors is the prince of peace.
When shall I die to vanity, pain, death ?
When shall I die ?—when shall I live for ever ?

END OF NIGHT THE THIRD.

THE COMPLAINT.

NIGHT IV.

THE CHRISTIAN TRIUMPH.

Containing the only Cure for the Fear of Death, and proper sentiments of heart on that inestimable blessing.

INSCRIBED TO THE HON. MR. YORKE.

A MUCH indebted muse, O Yorke, intrudes.
Amid the smiles of fortune, and of youth,
Thine ear is patient of a serious song.
How deep implanted in the breast of man
The dread of death ! I sing its sovereign cure.
Why start at death ? where is he ? death arrived,
Is past ; not come, or gone, he's never here.
Ere hope, sensation fails ; black-boding man
Receives, not suffers, death's tremendous blow.
The knell, the shroud, the mattock, and the grave ;
The deep damp vault, the darkness, and the worm ;
These are the bug-bears of a winter's eve,
The terrors of the living, not the dead.
Imagination's fool, and error's wretch,
Man makes a death, which nature never made ;
Then on the point of his own fancy falls ;
And feels a thousand deaths, in fearing one.

But were death frightful, what has age to fear ?
If prudent, age should meet the friendly foe,
And shelter in his hospitable gloom.
I scarce can meet a monument, but holds

My younger ! ev'ry date cries—" Come away."
 And what recalls me ? look the world around,
 And tell me what : the wisest cannot tell.
 Should any born of woman give his thought
 Full range, on just dislike's unbounded field ;
 Of things, the vanity ; of men, the flaws ;
 Flaws in the best ; the many, flaw all o'er ;
 As leopards spotted, or, as Æthiops dark ;
 Vivacious ill ; good dying immature ;
 (How immature, Narcissa's marble tells)
 And at its death bequeathing endless pain ;
 His heart, though bold, would sicken at the sight,
 And spend itself in sighs for future scenes.

But grant to life (and just it is to grant
 To lucky life) some perquisites of joy ;
 A time there is, when, like a thrice told tale,
 Long-rifled life of sweet can yield no more,
 But from our comment on the comedy,
 Pleasing reflections on parts well-sustain'd
 Or purposed emendations where we fail'd,
 Or hopes of plaudits from our candid judge,
 When on their exit, souls are bid unrobe,
 Toss fortune back her tinsel, and her plume,
 And drop this mask of flesh behind the scene.
 With me, that time is come ; my world is dead ;
 A new world rises, and new manners reign :
 Foreign comedians, (a spruce band) arrive,
 To push me from the scene, or hiss me there.
 What a pert race starts up ! the strangers gaze,
 And I at them ; my neighbor is unknown ;
 Nor that the worst : ah me ! the dire effect
 Of loit'ring here, of death defrauded long ;
 Of old so gracious (and let that suffice)
 My very master knows me not.—

Shall I dare say, peculiar is the fate ?
 I've been so long remember'd, I'm forgot.
 An object ever pressing dims the sight,
 And hides behind its ardor to be seen.

When in his courtiers ears I pour my plaint,
 'hey drink it as the nectar of the great ;
 d squeeze my hand, and beg me come to-morr
 usal ! canst thou wear a smoother form ?

Indulge me, nor conceive I drop my theme.
 Who cheapens life abate the fears of death.
 Twice told the period spent on stubborn Troy,
 Court-favor, yet untaken, I besiege ;
 Ambition's ill-judg'd effort to be rich.
 Alas, ambition makes my little, less :
 Embitt'ring the possess'd : why wish for more ?
 Wishing, of all employments, is the worst ;
 Philosophy's reverse ; and health's decay !
 Were I as plump as stall'd theology,
 Wishing would waste me to this shade again.
 Were I as wealthy as a South-Sea dream,
 Wishing is an-expedient to be poor.
 Wishing, that constant hectic of a fool ;
 Caught at a court ; purg'd off by purer air,
 And simpler diet ; gifts of rural life !

Blest be that hand divine, which gently laid
 My heart at rest beneath this humble shed.
 The world's a stately bark, on dang'rous seas,
 With pleasure seen, but boarded at our peril :
 Here, on a single plank, thrown safe ashore,
 I hear the tumult of the distant throng,
 As that of seas remote, or dying storms ;
 And meditate on scenes, more silent still ;
 Pursue my theme, and fight the fear of death.
 Here, like a shepherd gazing from his hut,
 Touching his reed, or leaning on his staff,
 Eager ambition's fiery chase I see ;
 I see the circling hunt of noisy men,
 Burst law's enclosure, leap the mounds of right,
 Pursuing and pursu'd each other's prey ;
 As wolves for rapine : as the fox, for wiles ;
 Till death, that mighty hunter, earths them all.
 Why all this toil for triumphs of an hour ?
 What, though we wade in wealth, or soar in fame,
 Earth's highest station ends in, " Here he lies :"
 And " Dust to dust " concludes her noblest song.
 If this song lives, posterity shall know
 One (though in Britain born, with courtiers bred,) Who thought e'en gold might come a day too late ;
 Nor on his subtle death-bed plann'd his scheme
 For future vacancies in church or state ;

Some avocation deeming it—to die ;
 Unbit by rage canine of dying rich ;
 Guilt's blunder ! and the loudest laugh of hell.

O my coëvals ! remnants of yourselves !
 Poor human ruins, tottering o'er the grave !
 Shall we, shall aged men, like aged trees,
 Strike deeper their vile root, and closer cling,
 Still more enamour'd of this wretched soil ?
 Shall our pale, wither'd hands, be still stretch'd out,
 Trembling at once with eagerness and age ?
 With avarice, and convulsions, grasping hard ?
 Grasping at air ! for what has earth besides ?
 Man wants but little ; nor that little long ;
 How soon must he resign his very dust,
 Which frugal nature lent him for an hour !
 Years inexperienc'd rush on num'rous ills ;
 And soon as man, expert from time, has found
 The key of life, it opes the gates of death.

When in this vale of years I backward look,
 And miss such numbers, numbers too of such,
 Firmer in health, and greener in their age,
 And stricter on their guard, and fitter far
 To play life's subtle game, I scarce believe
 I still survive : and am I fond of life,
 Who scarce can think it possible, I live ?
 Alive by miracle, or, what is next,
 Alive by Mead ! if I am still alive,
 Who long have buried what gives life to live,
 Firmness of nerve, and energy of thought.
 Life's lee is not more shallow, than impure
 And vapid ; sense and reason shew the door,
 Call for my bier, and point me to the dust.

O thou great Arbiter of life and death !
 Nature's immortal, immaterial sun !
 Whose all-prolific beam late call'd me forth
 From darkness, teeming darkness, where I lay
 The worm's inferior, and, in rank, beneath
 The dust I tread on, high to bear my brow,
 To drink the spirit of the golden day,
 And triumph in existence ; and couldst know
Vo motive, but my bliss, and hast ordain'd rise in blessing ! with the patriarch's joy,

Thy call I follow to the land unknown ;
 I trust in thee, and know in whom I trust ;
 Or life or death, is equal ; neither weighs :
 All weight in this—O let me live to thee !

Though Nature's terrors thus may be repress ;
 Still frowns grim death ; guilt points the tyrant's spear.
 And whence all human guilt ? From death forgot.
 Ah me ! too long I set at nought the swarm
 Of friendly warnings, which around me flew ;
 And smil'd unsmitten : Small my cause to smile !
 Death's admonitions, like shafts upward shot,
 More dreadful by delay ; the longer ere
 They strike our hearts, the deeper is their wound.
 O think how deep, Lorenzo ! here it stings :
 Who can appease its anguish ? How it burns ?
 What hand the barb'd, envenom'd thought can draw ?
 What healing hand can pour the balm of peace,
 And turn my sight undaunted on the tomb ?

With joy,—with grief, that healing hand I see ;
 Ah ! too conspicuous ! it is fix'd on high.
 On high ?—What means my frenzy ? I blaspheme :
 Alas ! how low ! how far beneath the skies !
 The skies it form'd ; and now it bleeds for me—
 But bleeds the balm I want—yet still it bleeds.
 Draw the dire steel—ah no !—the dreadful blessing
 What heart or can sustain, or dares forego ?
 There hangs all human hope ; that nail supports
 The falling universe : that gone, we drop !
 Horror receives us, and the dismal wish
 Creation had been smother'd in her birth—
 Darkness his curtain, and his bed the dust ;
 When stars and sun are dust beneath his throne !
 In Heaven itself can such indulgence dwell ?
 O what a groan was there ! a groan not his.
 He seiz'd our dreadful right ; the load sustain'd ;
 And heav'd the mountain from a guilty world.
 A thousand worlds, so bought, were bought too dear.
 Sensations new in angel's bosoms rise ;
 Suspend their song, and make a pause in bliss.

*O for their song to reach my lofty theme !
 Inspire me, Night ! with all thy tuneful spheres !
 Much rather thou ! who dost these spheres inspire !*

Whilst I with seraphs share seraphic themes,
 And shew to men the dignity of man;
 Lest I blaspheme my subject with my song.
 Shall Pagan pages glow celestial flame,
 And Christian languish? On our hearts, not heads,
 Falls the foul infamy: my heart! awake.
 What can awake thee, unawak'd by this,
 "Expended DEITY on human weal?"

Feel the great truths, which burst the tenfold night
 Of Heathen error, with a golden flood
 Of endless day: to feel, is to be fir'd;
 And to believe, Lorenzo! is to feel.

Thou most indulgent, most tremendous Power!
 Still more tremendous, for thy wondrous love!
 That arms, with awe more awful, thy commands;
 And foul transgression dips in sevenfold night;
 How our hearts tremble at thy love immense!
 In love immense, inviolably just!
 Thou, rather than thy justice should be stain'd,
 Didst stain the cross; and work of wonders far
 The greatest, that thy dearest far might bleed.

Bold thought! shall I dare speak it, or repress?
 Should man more execrate or boast, the guilt
 Which rous'd such vengeance? which such love in-flam'd?

O'er guilt (how mountainous!) with out-stretch'd arms,
 Stern justice, and soft-smiling love, embrace,
 Supporting, in full majesty thy throne,
 When seem'd its majesty to need support,
 Or that, or man, inevitably lost.

What, but the fathomless of thought divine,
 Could labor such expedient from despair,
 And rescue both? both rescue! both exalt!
 O how are both exalted by the deed!
 The wond'rous deed! or shall I call it more?
 A wonder in omnipotence itself!

A mystery! no less to gods than men!

Not thus, our infidels the Eternal draw,
 A God all o'er, consummate, absolute,
 Full orb'd, in his whole round of rays complete:
 They set at odds heaven's jarring attributes;
 And, with one excellence, another wound;

Maim heaven's perfection, break its equal beams,
 Bid mercy triumph over—God himself,
 Undeify'd by their opprobrious praise :
 A God all mercy, is a God unjust.

Ye brainless wits ! ye baptiz'd infidels !
 Ye worse for mending, wash'd to fouler stains !
 The ransom was paid down ; the fund of heav'n,
 Heaven's inexhaustible exhausted fund,
 Amazing, and amaz'd, pour'd forth the price,
 All price beyond : tho' curious to compute,
 Archangels fail'd to cast the mighty sum :
 Its value vast ungraspt my minds create,
 For ever hides, and glows in, the Supreme.

And was the ransom paid ? It was : and paid
 (What can exalt the bounty more ?) for you.
 The sun beheld it—No, the shocking scene
 Drove back his chariot : midnight veil'd his face ;
 Not such as this ; not such as nature makes :
 A midnight, nature shudder'd to behold ;
 A midnight new, a dread eclipse (without Opposing spheres) from her Creator's frown.
 Sun ! didst thou fly thy Maker's pain ? or start
 At that enormous load of human guilt,
 Which bow'd his bless'd head ; o'erwhelm'd his cross ;
 Made groan the centre ; burst earth's marble womb,
 With pangs, strange pangs ! deliver'd of her dead ?
 Hell howl'd ; and heaven that hour let fall a tear ;
 Heaven wept, that man might smile ! heaven bled, that man

Might never die !—

And is devotion virtue ? 'Tis compell'd :
 What heart of stone, but glows at thoughts like these !
 Such contemplations mount us ; and should mount
 The mind still higher ; nor ever glance on man,
 Unraptur'd, uninflam'd.—Where roll my thoughts
 To rest from wonders ? other wonders rise ;
 And strike where'er they roll : my soul is caught :
 Heaven's sov'reign blessings, clust'ring from the cross,
 Rush on her, in a throng, and close her round,
 The pris'ner of amaze.—In his blest life,
I see the path, and, in his death, the price,
And in his great ascent, the proof supreme

Of immortality.—And did he rise?
 Hear, O ye nations! hear it, O ye dead!
 He rose! He rose! He burst the bars of death.
 Lift up your heads, ye everlasting gates!
 And give the King of Glory to come in.
 Who is the King of Glory? he who left
 His throne of glory for the pang of death.
 Lift up your heads, ye everlasting gates!
 And give the King of Glory to come in.
 Who is the King of Glory? he who slew
 The ravenous foe, that gorg'd all human race!
 The King of Glory, he, whose glory fill'd
 Heaven with amazement at his love to man;
 And with divine complacency beheld
 Powers most illumin'd, wilder'd in the theme.
 The theme, the joy, how then shall man sustain?
 Oh the burst gates! crush'd sting! demolish'd throne!
 Last gasp of vanquish'd death. Shout earth and heaven!

This sum of good to man. Whose nature, then,
 Took wing, and mounted with him from the tomb!
 Then, then I rose; then first humanity
 Triumphant past the crystal ports of light!
 (Stupendous guest!) and seiz'd eternal youth,
 Seiz'd in our name. E'er since, 'tis blasphemous
 To call man mortal. Man's mortality
 Was then transferr'd to death; and heaven's duration
 Unalienably seal'd to this frail frame,
 This child of dust.—Man all-immortal! hail;
 Hail, heaven! all-lavish of strange gifts to man!
 Thine all the glory; man's the boundless bliss.

Where am I wrapt by this triumphant theme,
 On christian joys exulting wing? Above
 The Aonian mount!—alas, small cause for joy!
 What if to pain immortal? if extent
 Of being, to preclude a close of woe?
 Where, then, my boast of immortality?
 I boast it still, though cover'd o'er with guilt.
 For guilt, not innocence his life he pour'd!
 'Tis guilt alone can justify his death;
 Nor that, unless his death can justify
 Relenting guilt in heaven's indulgent sight.

If, sick of folly, I relent ; he writes
 My name in heaven, with that inverted spear
 A spear deep-dipt in blood ! which pierc'd his side,
 And open'd there a font for all mankind,
 Who strive, who combat crimes, to drink, and live !
 This, only this, subdues the fear of death.

And what is this ?—Survey the wondrous cure ;
 And at each step, let higher wonders rise !
 “ Pardon for infinite offence ! and pardon
 “ Through means, that speak its value infinite !
 “ A pardon bought with blood ! with blood divine !
 “ With blood divine of him, I made my foe !
 “ Persisted to provoke ! though woo'd and aw'd,
 “ Blest, and chastis'd, a flagrant rebel still !
 “ A rebel, 'midst the thunders of his throne !
 “ Nor I alone, a rebel universe !
 “ My species up in arms ! not one exempt !
 “ Yet for the foulest of the foul, he dies ;
 “ Most joy'd, for the redeem'd from deepest guilt !
 “ As if our race were held of highest rank ;
 “ And Godhead dearer, as more kind to man !”

Bound every heart ! and every bosom, burn !
 Oh what a scale of miracles is here !
 Its lowest round, high planted on the skies ;
 Its towering summit lost beyond the thought
 Of man or angel ! O that I could clime
 The wonderful ascent with equal praise !
 Praise ! flow for ever, (if astonishment
 Will give thee leave) my praise ! for ever flow ;
 Praise ardent, cordial, constant, to high Heaven
 More fragrant, than Arabia sacrific'd ;
 And all her spicy mountains in a flame.

So dear, so due to Heaven, shall praise descend,
 With her soft plume (from plausible angel's wing
 First pluck'd by man) to tickle mortal ears,
 Thus diving in the pockets of the great ?
 Is praise the perquisite of every paw,
 Though black as hell, that grapples well for gold ?
 O love of gold, thou meanest of amours !
 Shall praise her odors waste on virtues dead ?
 Embalm the base, perfume the stench of guilt,
 Earn dirty bread by washing Ethiops fair,

Removing filth, or sinking it from sight,
A scavenger in scenes, where vacant posts,
Like gibbets yet untenanted, expect
Their future ornaments? From courts and thrones,
Return, apostate praise, thou vagabond!
Thou prostitute! to thy first love return,
Thy first, thy greatest, once unrival'd theme.

There flow redundant; like Meander flow,
Back to thy fountain; to that parent power,
Who gives the tongue to sound, the thought to soar,
The soul to be. Men homage pay to men,
Thoughtless beneath whose dreadful eye they bow
In mutual awe profound, of clay to clay,
Of guilt to guilt; and turn their backs on thee,
Great Sire! whom thrones celestial ceaseless sing;
To prostrate angels an amazing scene!
O the presumption of man's awe for man!
Man's author, end, restorer, law, and judge!
Thine, all; day thine, and thine this gloom of night,
With all her wealth, with all her radiant worlds.
What, night eternal, but a frown from thee?
What, Heaven's meridian glory, but thy smile?
And shall not praise be thine? Not human praise?
While Heaven's high host on hallelujahs live?

O may I breathe no longer, than I breathe
My soul in praise to HIM, who gave my soul,
And all her infinite of prospect fair,
Cut through the shades of hell, great love! by thee,
Oh most adorable! most unador'd!
Where shall that praise begin, which ne'er should end?
Where'er I turn, what claim on all applause!
How is Night's sable mantle labor'd o'er,
How richly wrought, with attributes divine!
What wisdom shines! what love! this midnight pomp,
This gorgeous arch, with golden worlds inlay'd!
Built with divine ambition! nought to thee;
For others this profusion. Thou, apart,
Above! beyond! Oh tell me, mighty Mind!
Where art thou? shall I dive into the deep?
Call to the sun, or ask the roaring winds,
For their Creator? Shall I question loud
The thunder, if in that the Almighty dwells?

Or holds HE furious storms in streighten'd reins,
And bids fierce whirlwinds wheel HIS rapid car?

What mean these questions?—Trembling I retract;
My prostrate soul adores the present God.

Praise I a distant Deity? He tunes
My voice (if tun'd;) the nerve that writes, sustains;
Wrapt in his being, I resound his praise;
But tho' past all diffus'd, without a shore,
His essence; local is his throne (as meet,)
To gather the disperst (as standards call
The listed from afar;) to fix a point,
A central point, collective of his sons,
Since finite every nature, but his own.

The nameless HE, whose nod is Nature's birth;
And Nature's shield, the shadow of his hand;
Her dissolution, his suspended smile!
The great First-Last! pavilion'd high he sits
In darkness, from excessive splendor borne,
By gods unseen, unless through lustre lost.
His glory, to created glory, bright,
As that to central horrors; he looks down
On all: that soars; and spans immensity.

Tho' Night unnumber'd worlds unfolds to view,
Boundless Creation! what art thou? A beam,
A mere effluvium of his Majesty.
And shall an atom of this atom-world
Mutter, in dust and sin, the theme of Heaven!
Down to the centre should I send my thought,
Thro' beds of glitt'ring ore and glowing gems,
Their beggar'd blaze wants lustre for my lay;
Goes out in darkness: if, on towering wing,
I send it through the boundless vault of stars,
(The stars, tho' rich, what dross their gold to Thee, Great, good, wise, wonderful, eternal King!)
If to those conscious stars thy throne around,
Praise ever-pouring, and imbibing bliss;
And ask their strain; they want, it more they want,
Poor their abundance, humble their sublime,
Languid their energy, their ardor cold,
Indebted still, their highest rapture burns;
Short of its mark, defective, though divine.

Still more—This theme is man's, and man's alone ;
Their vast appointments reach it not : they see
On earth a bounty not indulg'd on high ;
And downward look for heaven's superior praise ;
First-born of Ether ! high in fields of light !
View man, to see the glory of your God !
Could angels envy, they had envy'd here ;
And some did envy ; and the rest, though gods,
Yet still god's unredeem'd (their triumphs man, Tempted to weigh the dust against the skies)
They less would feel, though more adore my theme.
They sung creation (for in that they shar'd ;)
How rose in melody, the child of love !
Creation's great superior, man ! is thine ;
Thine is redemption ; they just gave the key ;
'Tis thine to raise, and eternize, the song ;
Though human, yet divine : for should not this
Raise man o'er man, and kindle seraphs here ?
Redemption ! 'twas creation more sublime,
Redemption ! 'twas the labor of the skies ;
Far more than labor—it was death in heaven.
A truth so strange ! 'twere bold to think it true ;
If not far bolder still, to disbelieve.

Here pause, and ponder : was there death in heaven ?
What then on earth ? on earth, which struck the blow ?
Who struck it ? who ?—O how is man enlarg'd,
Seen thro' this medium ! how the pigmy towers !
How counterpois'd his origin from dust !
How counterpois'd, to dust his sad return !
How voided his vast distance from the skies !
How near he presses on the seraph's wing !
Which is the seraph ? which the born of clay ?
How this demonstrates, through the thickest cloud
Of guilt, and clay condens'd, the son of heaven !
The double son ; the made, and the re-made !
And shall heaven's double property be lost ?
Man's double madness only can destroy.
To man the bleeding cross has promis'd all ;
The bleeding cross has sworn eternal grace ;
Who gave his life, what grace shall he deny ?
O ye ! who from this rock of ages, leap,
Disdainful, plunging headlong in the deep !

What cordial joy, what consolation strong,
 Whatever winds arise, or billows roll,
 Our interest in the master of the storm !
 Cling there, and in wreck'd nature's ruins smile ;
 While vile apostates tremble in a calm.

Man, know thyself. All wisdom centres there ;
 To none man seems ignoble, but to man ;
 Angels that grandeur, men o'erlook, admire :
 How long shall human nature be their book,
 Degen'rate mortal ! and unread by thee ?
 The beam dim reason sheds shews wonders there ;
 What high contents ! illustrious faculties !
 But the grand comment, which displays at full
 Our human height, scarce sever'd from divine,
 By heaven compos'd, was publish'd on the cross.

Who looks on that, and sees not in himself
 An awful stranger, a terrestrial God ?
 A glorious partner with the Deity
 In that high attribute, immortal life ?
 If a God bleeds, he bleeds not for a worm :
 I gaze, and, as I gaze, my mounting soul
 Catches strange fire, eternity ! at thee ;
 And drops the world—or rather, more enjoys.
 How chang'd the face of nature ! how improv'd !
 What seem'd a chaos, shines a glorious world,
 Or, what a world, an Eden ; heightened all !
 It is another scene ! another self !
 And still another as time rolls along ;
 And that a self, far more illustrious still.
 Beyond long ages, yet roll'd up in shades
 Unpierc'd by bold conjecture's keenest ray,
 What evolutions of surprizing fate !
 How Nature opens, and receives my soul
 In boundless walks of raptur'd thought ! where gods
 Encounter and embrace me ! what new births
 Of strange adventure, foreign to the sun ;
 Where, what now charms, perhaps, whate'er exists,
 Old time, and fair creation, are forgot !

Is this extravagant ? of man we form
 Extravagant conception, to be just :
*Conception unconfin'd wants wings to reach him :
 Beyond its reach, the godhead only, more.*

He, the great Father ! kindled at one flame
 The world of rationals ; one spirit pour'd
 From spirit's awful fountain ; pour'd himself
 Through all their souls ; but not in equal stream,
 Profuse, or frugal, of the inspiring God,
 As his wise plan demanded ; and when past
 Their various trials, in their various spheres,
 If they continue rational, as made,
 Resorbs them all into himself again ;
 His throne their centre, and his smile their crown.

Why doubt we, then, the glorious truth to sing,
 Though yet unsung, as deem'd perhaps too bold ?
 Angels are men of a superior kind ;
 Angels are men in lighter habit clad,
 High o'er celestial mountains wing'd in flight ;
 And men are angels, loaded for an hour,
 Who wade this miry vale, and climb with pain,
 And slipp'ry step, the bottom of the steep.
 Angels their failings, mortals have their praise ;
 While here, of corps ethereal, such enroll'd,
 And summon'd to the glorious standard soon,
 Which flames eternal crimson through the skies.
 Nor are our brothers thoughtless of their kin,
 Yet absent ; but not absent from their love.
 Michael has fought our battles, Raphael sung
 Our triumphs, Gabriel on our errands flown,
 Sent by the Sov'reign : and are these O man !
 Thy friends, thy warm allies ? and thou (shame burn
 The cheek to cinder) rival to the brute ?
 Religion's all. Descending from the skies
 To wretched man, the goddess in her left
 Holds out this world, and in her right the next ;
 Religion, the sole voucher man is man ;
 Supporter sole of man above himself ;
 Even in this night of frailty, change, and death,
 She gives the soul a soul that acts a god.
 Religion ! Providence ! an after-state !
 Here is firm footing ; here is solid rock ;
 This can support us ; all is sea besides ;
 Winds under us ; bestorms, and then devours.
 His hand the good man fastens on the skies,
 And bids earth roll, nor feels her idle whirl.

As when a wretch, from thick, polluted air,
 Darkness, and stench, and suffocating damps,
 And dungeon horrors, by kind fate discharg'd,
 Climbs some fair eminence, where ether pure
 Surrounds him, and Elysian prospects rise,
 His heart exults, his spirits cast their load ;
 As if new-born, he triumphs in the change ;
 So joys the soul, when from inglorious aims,
 And sordid sweets, from feculence and froth
 Of ties terrestrial, set at large she mounts
 To reasons region, her own element,
 Breathes hopes immortal, and affects the skies,

Religion ! thou the soul of happiness ;
 And groaning Calvary, of thee ! there shine
 The noblest truths ; there strongest motives sting ;
 There sacred violence assaults the soul ;
 There, nothing but compulsion is forborn.
 Can love allure us ? or can terror awe ?
 He weeps !—the falling drop puts out the sun ;
 He sighs !—the sigh earth's deep foundation shakes.
 If, in his love, so terrible, what then
 His wrath inflam'd ? his tenderness on fire ;
 Like soft, smooth oil, outblazing other fires ?
 Can prayer, can praise avert it ?—Thou, my all !
 My theme, my inspiration, and my crown !
 My strength in age ! my rise in low estate !
 My soul's ambition, pleasure, wealth !—my world !
 My light in darkness ! and my life in death !
 My boast through time ! bliss through eternity !
 Eternity, too short to speak thy praise !
 Or fathom thy profound of love to man ;
 To man of men the meanest, ev'n to me !
 My sacrifice ! my God ! what things are these !

What then art thou ? By what name shall I call thee ?

Knew I the name devout archangels use,
 Devout archangels should the name enjoy,
 By me unrival'd : thousands more sublime,
 None half so dear, as that, which though unspoke,
Still glows at heart : O how Omnipotence
Is lost in love ! Thou great PHILANTHROPIST !
Father of angels ! but the friend of man !

Like Jacob, fondest of the younger born !
 Thou who didst save him, snatch the smoking brand
 From out the flames, and quench it in thy blood !
 How art thou pleas'd, by bounty to distress !
 To make us groan beneath our gratitude,
 Too big for birth ! to favor, and confound ;
 To challenge, and to distance, all return !
 Of lavish love stupendous heights to soar,
 And leave praise panting in the distant vale !
 Thy right too great defrauds thee of thy due ;
 And sacrilegious our sublimest song.
 But since the naked will obtains thy smile,
 Beneath this monument of praise unpaid,
 And future life symphonious to my strain,
 (That noblest hymn to heav'n !) for ever lie
 Intomb'd my fear of death ! and ev'ry fear,
 The dread of ev'ry evil, but thy frown.

Whom see I yonder, so demurely smile ?
 Laughter a labor, and might break their rest.
 Ye Quietists, in homage to the skies !
 Serene ! of soft address ! who mildly make
 An unobtrusive tender of your hearts,
 Abhorring violence ! who halt indeed ;
 But, for the blessing, wrestle not with heaven !
 Think you my song too turbulent ? too warm ?
 Are passions, then, the pagans of the soul ?
 Reason alone baptiz'd ? alone ordained
 To touch things sacred ? Oh for warmer still !
 Guilt chills my zeal, and age benumbs my powers ;
 Oh for an humbler heart, and prouder song !
 Thou, my much injur'd theme ! with that soft eye,
 Which melted o'er doom'd Salem, deign to look
 Compassion to the coldness of my breast !
 And pardon to the winter in my strain !
 Oh ye cold-hearted, frozen, formalists !
 On such a theme, 'tis impious to be calm ;
 Passion is reason, transport, temper here.
 Shall heaven, which gave us ardor, and has shewn
 Her own for man so strongly, not disdain

*What smooth emollients in theology,
 Recumbent virtue's downy doctors preach,
 That prose of piety, a lukewarm praise ?*

Rise odors sweet from incense uninflam'd ?
 Devotion, when lukewarm, is undevout ;
 But when it glows, its heat is struck to heaven ;
 To human hearts her golden harps are strung ;
 High heaven's orchestra chaunts Amen to man.

Hear I, or dream I hear, their distant strain,
 Sweet to the soul, and tasting strong of heaven,
 Soft-wafted on celestial pity's plume,
 Through the vast spaces of the universe,
 To cheer me in this melancholy gloom ?
 Oh when will death, (now stingless) like a friend,
 Admit me of their choir ? Oh when will death,
 This mouldering, old, partition-wall throw down !
 Give beings, one in nature, one abode ?
 Oh death divine ! that gives us to the skies !
 Great future ! glorious patron of the past,
 And present ! when shall I thy shrine adore ?
 From Nature's continent, immensely wide,
 Immensely blest this little isle of life,
 This dark, incarcerating colony,
 Divides us. Happy day ! that breaks our chain ;
 That manumits ; that calls from exile home ;
 That leads to Nature's great metropolis,
 And re-admits us, through the guardian hand
 Of elder brothers, to our Father's throne ;
 Who hears our Advocate, and through his wounds
 Beholding man, allows that tender name.
 'Tis this makes Christian triumph a command :
 'Tis this makes joy a duty to the wise :
 'Tis impious, in a good man, to be sad.

Seest thou, Lorenzo ! where hangs all our hope ?
 Touch'd by the Cross, we live, or more than die ;
 That touch which touch'd not Angels ; more divine
 Than that, which touch'd confusion into form,
 And darkness into glory ; partial touch !
 Ineffably pre-eminent regard !
 Sacred to man, and sov'reign through the whole
 Long golden chain of miracles, which hangs
 From Heaven through all duration, and supports
 In one illustrious, and amazing plan,
 Thy welfare, Nature ! and thy God's renown ;
 That touch, with charm celestial, heals the soul

Disas'd, drives pain from guilt, lights life in death,
Turns earth to Heav'n, to heav'nly thrones transform
The ghastly ruins of the mould'ring tomb !

Dost ask me when ? When He who dy'd returns ;
Returns, how chang'd ! Where then the man of woe
In glory's terrors all the Godhead burns ;
And all his courts, exhausted by the tide
Of Deities triumphant in his train,
Leave a stupendous solitude in Heaven ;
Replenish'd soon, replenish'd with increase
Of pomp, and multitude ; a radiant band
Of Angels new ; of Angels from the tomb.

Is this by fancy thrown remote ? and rise
Dark doubts between the promise, and event ?
I send thee not to volumes for thy cure ;
Read nature ! Nature is a friend to truth ;
Nature is Christian ; preaches to mankind ;
And bids dead matter aid us in our creed.
Hast thou ne'er seen the comet's flaming flight ?
The illustrious stranger passing, terror sheds
On gazing nations, from his fiery train
Of length enormous, takes his ample round
Thro' depths of ether ; coasts unnumber'd worlds,
Of more than solar glory ; doubles wide
Heaven's mighty cape, and then revisits earth,
From the long travel of a thousand years.
Thus, at the destin'd period, shall return
He, once on earth, who bids the comet blaze :
And with Him, all our triumph o'er the tomb.

Nature is dumb on this important point ;
Or hope precarious in low whisper breathes ;
Faith speaks aloud, distinct ; ev'n adders hear,
But turn, and dart into the dark again.
Faith builds a bridge across the gulph of death,
To break the shock blind nature cannot shun,
And lands thought smoothly on the farther shore.
Death's terror is the mountain faith removes ;
That mountain barrier between man and peace.
*'Tis faith disarms destruction ; and absolves
From every clam'rous charge, the guiltless tomb.*

*Why disbelieve ? Lorenzo !—" Reason bids,
" All-sacred reason."—Hold her sacred still ;*

Nor shalt thou want a rival in thy flame :
 All-sacred Reason ; source and soul of all
 Demanding praise on earth or earth above !
 My heart is thine : deep in its inmost folds,
 Live thou with life ; live dearer of the two.
 Wear the blessed cross, by fortune stamp't
 On passive nature, before thought was born ?
 My birth's blind bigot ! fir'd with local zeal ?
 No ; reason re-baptiz'd me when adult ;
 Weigh'd true, and false, in her impartial scale ;
 My heart became the convert of my head ;
 And made that choice, which once was but my fate.
 " On argument alone my faith is built : "
 Reason pursu'd is faith ; and, unpursu'd
 Where proof invites, 'tis reason, then, no more :
 And such our proof, that or our faith is right,
 Or reason lies, and Heaven design'd it wrong :
 Absolve we this ? What then is blasphemy ?

Fond as we are, and justly fond of faith,
 Reason, we grant, demands our first regard ;
 The mother honor'd, as the daughter dear.
 Reason the root ; fair faith is but the flow'r :
 The fading flow'r shall die ; but reason lives
 Immortal, as her Father in the skies.
 When faith is virtue, reason makes it so.
 Wrong not the Christian ; think not reason yours ;
 'Tis reason our great Master holds so dear ;
 'Tis reason's injur'd rights his wrath resents ;
 'Tis reason's voice obey'd, his glories crown ;
 To give lost reason life, he pour'd his own ;
 Believe, and shew the reason of a man ;
 Believe, and taste the pleasure of a God ;
 Believe, and look with triumph on the tomb.
 Through reason's wounds alone thy faith can die ;
 Which dying, tenfold terror gives to death,
 And dips in venom his twice-mortal sting.

Learn hence what honors, what loud pœans, due
 To those, who push our antidote aside ;
 Those boasted friends to reason, and to man,
 Whose fatal love stabs every joy, and leaves
 Death's terror heighten'd gnawing on his heart.
 These pompous sons of reason idoliz'd

And vilify'd at once : of reason dead,
Then deify'd, as monarchs were of old :
What conduct plants proud laurels on their brow ?
While love of truth through all their camp resounds,
They draw pride's curtain o'er the noon-tide ray,
Spike up their inch of reason, on the point
Of philosophic wit, call'd argument ;
And then, exulting in their taper cry,
" Behold the sun ;" and, Indian-like, adore.
Talk they of morals ? O thou bleeding Love !
Thou maker of new morals to mankind !
The grand morality is love of thee.
As wise as Socrates, if such they were ;
(Nor will they 'bate of that sublime renown)
As wise as Socrates, might justly stand
The definition of a modern fool.

A Christian is the highest stile of man.
And is there, who the blessed cross wipes off,
As a foul blot, from his dishonor'd brow ?
If angels tremble, 'tis at such a sight :
The wretch they quit, desponding of their charge,
More struck with grief or wonder, who can tell ?

Ye sold to sense ! ye citizens of earth !
(For such alone the Christian banner fly)
Know ye how wise your choice, how great your gain !
Behold the picture of earth's happiest man :
" He calls his wish, it comes ; he sends it back,
" And says, he call'd another ; that arrives,
" Meets the same welcome ; yet he still calls on ;
" Till One calls him who varies not his call,
" But holds him fast, in chains of darkness bound,
" Till Nature dies, and judgment sets him free ;
" A freedom far less welcome than his chain."

But grant man happy ; grant him happy long ;
Add to life's highest prize her latest hour ;
That hour, so late, is nimble in approach,
That, like a post, comes on in full career :
How swift the shuttle flies, that weaves thy shroud !
Where is the fable of thy former years ?
Thrown down the gulph of time ; as far from thee
As they had ne'er been thine ; the day in hand,
Like a bird struggling to get loose, is going ;

Scarce now possess'd, so suddenly 'tis gone ;
And each swift moment fled, is death advanc'd
By strides as swift : Eternity is all ;
And whose eternity ? Who triumphs there ?
Bathing forever in the font of bliss !
For ever basking in the Deity !
Lorenzo ! who ?—Thy conscience shall reply.
O give it leave to speak ; 'twill speak ere long,
Thy leave unask'd : Lorenzo ! hear it now,
While useful its advice, its accent mild.
By the great edict, the divine decree,
Truth is deposited with man's last hour ;
An honest hour, and faithful to her trust ;
Truth, eldest daughter of the Deity ;
Truth of his council, when he made the worlds ;
Nor less, when he shall judge the worlds he made ;
Though silent long, and sleeping ne'er so sound,
Smother'd with errors, and oppress'd with toys,
That heaven-commission'd hour no sooner calls,
But from her cavern in the soul's abyss,
Like him they fable under Ætna whelm'd,
The goddess bursts in thunder, and in flame ;
Loudly convinces, and severely pains.
Dark dæmons I discharge, and hydra-stings ;
The keen vibration of bright truth—is hell :
Just definition ! though by schools untaught.
Ye deaf to truth ! peruse this parson'd page,
And trust for once, a prophet, and a priest :
“ Men may live fools, but fools they cannot die.”

END OF NIGHT THE FOURTH.

THE COMPLAINT.

NIGHT V.

THE RELAPSE.

INSCRIBED TO THE HON. THE EARL OF LITCHFIELD.

LORENZO ! to recriminate is just.
Fondness of fame is avarice of air.
I grant the man is vain, who writes for praise.
Praise no man e'er deserv'd, who sought no more.
As just thy second charge. I grant the muse
Has often blush'd at her degen'rate sons,
Retain'd by sense to plead her filthy cause ;
To raise the low, to magnify the mean,
And subtilize the gross into refin'd :
As if to magic numbers' powerful charm
'Twas given, to make a civit of their song
Obscene, and sweeten ordure to perfume.
Wit, a true Pagan, deifies the brute,
And lifts our swine-enjoyments from the mire.
The fact notorious, nor obscure the cause.
We wear the chains of pleasure and of pride :
These share the man ; and these distract him too ;
Draw diff'rent ways, and clash in their commands.
Pride, like an eagle, builds among the stars ;
But pleasure, lark-like, nests upon the ground,
Joys shar'd by brute-creation, pride resents ;
Pleasure embraces : man would both enjoy,
And both at once : a point how hard to gain !
But what can't wit, when stung by strong desire
Wit dares attempt this arduous enterprize.
Since joys of sense can't rise to reason's taste ;

In subtle sophistry's laborious forge,
 Wit hammers out a reason new, that stoops
 To sordid scenes, and meets them with applause.
 Wit calls the graces the chaste zone to loose ;
 Nor less than a plump god to fill the bowl :
 A thousand phantoms, and a thousand spells,
 A thousand opiates scatters, to delude,
 To fascinate, inebriate, lay asleep,
 And the fool'd mind of man delightfully confound.
 Thus that which shock'd the judgment, shocks no
 more ;

That which gave pride offence, no more offends.
 Pleasure and pride, by nature mortal foes,
 At war eternal, which in man shall reign,
 By wit's address, patch up a fatal piece,
 And hand in hand lead on the rank debauch,
 From rank, refin'd to delicate and gay.
 Art, cursed Art ! wipes off the indebted blush
 From nature's cheek, and bronzes every shame.
 Man smiles in ruin, glories in his guilt,
 And infamy stands candidate for praise.

All writ by man in favor of the soul,
 These sensual ethics far in bulk, transcend.
 The flowers of eloquence, profusely pour'd
 O'er spotted vice, fill half the letter'd world.
 Can powers of genius exercise their page,
 And consecrate enormities with song ?

But let not these inexpressible strains
 Condemn the muse that knows her dignity :
 Nor meanly stops at time, but holds the world
 As 'tis, in nature's ample field, a point,
 A point in her esteem ; from whence to start,
 And run the round of universal space,
 To visit being universal there,
 And being's source, that utmost flight of mind !
 Yet, spite of this so vast circumference,
 Well knows, but what is moral, nought is great.
 Sing Syrens only ? Do not angels sing ?
 There is in poesy a decent pride,
 Which well becomes her when she speaks to prose,
 Her younger sister ; haply not mote wise.

Think'st thou, Lorenzo ! to find pastimes here ?

No guilty passion blown into a flame,
No foible flatter'd, dignity disgrac'd,
No fairy field of fiction, all on flower,
No rainbow colors, here, or silken tale :
But solemn counsels, images of awe,
Truths which eternity lets fall on man
With double weight, through these revolving spheres,
This death-deep silence, and incumbent shade ;
Thoughts, such as shall revisit your last hour ;
Visit uncall'd, and live when life expires ;
And thy dark pencil, midnight ! darker still
In melancholy dipt, embrowns the whole.

Yet this, even this, my laughter-loving friends !
Lorenzo ! and thy brothers of the smile !

If, what imports you most, can most engage,
Shall steal your ear, and chain you to my song.
Or if you fail me, know the wise shall taste
The truths I sing ; the truths I sing shall feel ;
And, feeling, give assent ; and their assent
Is ample recompence ; is more than praise.
But chiefly thine, O Litchfield ! nor mistake
Think not un-introduc'd I force my way ;
Narcissa, not unknown, not unally'd,
By virtue, or by blood, illustrious youth !
To thee, from blooming amaranthine bowers,
Where all the language harmony, descends,
Uncall'd, and asks admittance for the muse :
A muse that will not pain thee with thy praise ;
Thy praise she drops, by nobler still inspir'd.

O Thou, blest Spirit ! whether the Supreme,
Great antemundane Father ! in whose breast
Embryo creation, unborn being, dwelt,
And all its various revolutions roll'd
Present, though future ; prior to themselves :
Whose breath can blow it into nought again ;
Or, from his throne, some delegated power,
Who, studious of our peace, dost turn the thought
From vain and vile, to solid and sublime !

Unseen thou lead'st me to delicious draughts
Inspiration, from a purer stream,

And fuller of the God, than that which burst

From fam'd Castalia : nor is yet allay'd
 My sacred thirst ; though long my soul has rang'd
 Through pleasing paths of moral, and divine,
 By thee sustain'd, and lighted by the stars.

By them best lighted are the paths of thought ;
 Nights are their days, their most illumin'd hours.
 By day, the soul, o'erborne by life's career,
 Stunn'd by the din, and giddy with the glare,
 Reels far from reason jostled by the throng.
 By day the soul is passive, all her thoughts
 Impos'd, precarious, broken, ere mature.
 By night from objects free, from passion cool,
 Thoughts uncontrol'd, and unimpress'd, the birth
 Of pure election, arbitrary range,
 Not to the limits of one world confin'd ;
 But from ethereal travels light on earth,
 As voyagers drop anchor for repose.

Let Indians, and the gay, like Indians, fond
 Of feather'd fopperies, the sun adore :
 Darkness has more divinity for me ;
 It strikes thought inward ; it drives back the soul
 To settle on herself, our point supreme !
 There lies our theatre ! there sits our judge.
 Darkness the curtain drops o'er life's dull scene ;
 'Tis the kind hand of Providence stretch'd out
 'Twixt man and vanity ; 'tis reason's reign,
 And virtue's too ; these tutelary shades
 Are man's asylum from the tainted throng.
 Night is the good man's friend, and guardian too ;
 It no less rescues virtue, than inspires.

Virtue, for ever frail, as fair, below,
 Her tender nature suffers in the crowd,
 Nor touches on the world, without a stain :
 The world's infectious ; few bring back at eve,
 Immaculate, the manners of the morn.
 Something we thought, is blotted ; we resolv'd,
 Is shaken ; we renounc'd, returns again.
 Each salutation may slide in a sin,
 Unthought before, or fix a former flaw.

Nor is it strange : Light, motion, concourse, noise,
 All scatter us abroad ; thought, outward-bound,
 Neglectful of our home-affairs, flies off

In fume and dissipation, quits her charge,
And leaves the breast unguarded to the foe.

Present example gets within our guard,
And acts with double force, by few repell'd.
Ambition fires ambition ; love of gain
Strikes, like a pestilence, from breast to breast ;
Riot, pride, perfidy, blue vapors breathe ;
And inhumanity is caught from man,
From smiling man. A slight, a single glance,
And shot at random, often has brought home
A sudden fever to the throbbing heart,
Of envy, rancor, or impure desire.
We see, we hear, with peril ; safety dwells
Remote from multitude ; the world's a school
Of wrong, and what proficients swarm around !
We must or imitate, or disapprove ;
Must list as their accomplices, or foes ;
That stains our innocence ; this wounds our peace.
From Nature's birth, hence, wisdom has been smit
With sweet recess, and languish'd for the shade.

This sacred shade, and solitude, what is it ?
'Tis the felt presence of the Deity.

Few are the faults we flatter when alone.
Vice sinks in her allurements, is unguilt,
And looks, like other objects, black by night,
By night an atheist half believes a GOD.

Night is fair virtue's immemorial friend :
The conscious moon, through every distant age,
Has held a lamp to wisdom, and let fall,
On contemplation's eye, her purging ray.
The fam'd Athenian, he who woo'd from Heaven
Philosophy the fair, to dwell with men,
And form their manners, not inflame their pride,
While o'er his head, as fearful to molest
His lab'ring mind, the stars in silence slide
And seem all gazing on their future guest,
See him soliciting his ardent suit
In private audience : all the live-long night,
Rigid in thought, and motionless, he stands ;
Nor quits his theme, or posture, till the sun
Rude drunkard, rising rosy from the main !
Disturbs his nobler intellectual beam !

And gives him to the tumult of the world.
Hail, precious moments ! stol'n from the black waste
Of murder'd time ! Auspicious midnight ! hail !
The world excluded, every passion hush'd,
And open'd a calm intercourse with heav'n,
Here the soul sits in council ; ponders past,
Predestines future action ; sees, not feels,
Tumultuous life, and reasons with the storm ;
All her lies answers, and thinks down her charms.

What awful joy ! what mental liberty !
I am not pent in darkness ; rather say
(If not too bold) in darkness I'm embower'd.
Delightful gloom ! the clust'ring thoughts around
Spontaneous rise, and blossom in the shade ;
But droop by day, and sicken in the sun.
Thought borrows light elsewhere ; from that first fire,
Fountain of animation ! whence descends
Urania, my celestial guest ! who deigns
Nightly to visit me, so mean ; and now
Conscious how needful discipline to man,
From pleasing dalliance with the charms of night
My wandering thought recalls, to what excites
Far other beat of heart : Narcissa's tomb !

Or is it feeble nature calls me back,
And breaks my spirit into grief again ?
It is a stygian vapor in my blood ?
A cold, slow puddle, creeping through my veins ?
Or is it thus with all men ?—Thus with all.
What are we ? How unequal ! now we soar,
And now we sink : to be the same, transcends
Our present prowess. Dearly pays the soul
For lodging ill ; too dearly rents her clay.
Reason, a baffled counsellor ! but adds
The blush of weakness, to the bane of woe.
The noblest spirit fighting her hard fatē,
In this damp, dusky region, charg'd with storms,
But feebly flutters, yet untaught to fly ;
Or, flying, short her flight, and sure her fall.
Our utmost strength, when down, to rise again ;
And not to yield, though beaten, all our praise.
'Tis vain to seek in men for more than man
Though proud in promise, big in previous thought.

Experience damps our triumph. I, who late,
Emerging from the shadows of the grave,
Where grief detain'd me prisoner, mounting high,
Threw wide the gates of everlasting day,
And call'd mankind to glory, shook off pain,
Mortality shook off, in ether pure,
And struck the stars; now feel my spirits fail;
They drop me from the zenith; down I rush,
Like him whom fable fledg'd with flaxen wings,
In sorrow drown'd—but not, in sorrow, lost.
How wretched is the man, who never mourn'd!
I dige for precious pearl, in sorrow's stream:
Not so the thoughtless man that only grieves;
Takes all the torment, and rejects the gain
(Inestimable gain!) and gives heaven leave
To make him but more wretched, not more wise.

If wisdom is our lesson (and what else
Ennobles man? What else have angels learnt?),
Grief! more proficient in thy school are made,
Than genius, or proud learning, e'er could boast.
Voracious learning often over-fed,
Digests not into sense her motly meal.
This book-case, with dark booty almost burst,
This forager on other's wisdom, leaves
Her native farm, her reason quite untill'd.
With mixt manure she surfeits the rank soil,
Dung'd, but not drest; and rich to beggary.
A pomp untameable of weeds prevails,
Her servant's wealth incumber'd wisdom mourns.
And what says genius? "Let the dull be wise."
Genius, too hard for right, can prove it wrong;
And loves to boast, where blush men less inspir'd.
It pleads exemption from the laws of sense;
Considers reason as a leveller;
And scorns to share a blessing with the crowd.
That wise it could be, thinks an ample claim
To glory, and to pleasure gives the rest.
Crassus but sleeps, Ardelio is undone.
Wisdom less shudders at a fool, than wit.

But wisdom smiles, when humbled mortals weep.
When sorrow wounds the breast, as ploughs the glebe,
And hearts obdurate feel her softening shower;

Her seed celestial, then glad wisdom sows;
 Her golden harvest triumphs in the soil.
 If so, Narcissa! welcome my relapse;
 I'll raise a tax on my calamity,
 And reap rich compensation from my pain.
 I'll range the plenteous intellectual field;
 And gather every thought of sovereign power
 To chase the mortal maladies of man;
 Thoughts, which may bear transplanting to the skies,
 Though natives of this coarse penurious soil;
 Nor wholly wither there, where seraphs sing,
 Refin'd, exalted, not annull'd in Heaven;
 Reason, the sun that gives them birth, the same
 In either clime, though more illustrious there.
 These choicely cull'd, and elegantly rang'd,
 Shall form a garland for Narcissa's tomb;
 And peradventure, of no fading flowers.

Say, on what themes shall puzzled choice descend?

“The importance of contemplating the tomb;
 “Why men decline it; suicide's foul birth;
 “The various kinds of grief; the faults of age;
 “And death's dread character—invite my song.”

And, first, the importance of our end survey'd.

Friends counsel quick dismissal of our grief:
 Mistaken kindness! our hearts heal too soon.
 Are they more kind than he, who struck the blow?
 Who bid it do its errand in our hearts,
 And banish peace, till nobler guests arrive,
 And bring it back, a true, and endless peace?
 Calamities are friends: as glaring day
 Of these unnumber'd lustres robs our sight;
 Prosperity puts out unnumber'd thoughts
 Of import high, and light divine, to man.

The man how blest! who, sick of gaudy scenes,
 (Scenes apt to thrust between us and ourselves)
 Is led by choice to take his fav'rite walk,
 Beneath death's gloomy, silent, cypress shades,
 Unpierc'd by vanity's fantastic ray:

To read his monuments, to weigh his dust,
 Visit his vaults, and dwell among the tombs!
 Lorenzo! read with me Narcissa's stone;

(Narcissa was thy favorite) let us read
Her moral stone ; few doctors preach so well ;
Few orators so tenderly can touch
The feeling heart. What pathos in the date !
Apt words can strike ; and yet in them we see
Faint images of what we, here, enjoy.
What cause have we to build on length of life ?
Temptations seize, when fear is laid asleep ;
And ill foreboded is our strongest guard.

See from her tomb, as from an humble shrine,
Truth, radiant goddess ! sallies on my soul,
And puts delusion's dusky train to flight ;
Disperses the mist our sultry passions raise,
From objects low, terrestrial, and obscene ;
And shews the real estimate of things ;
Which no man, unafflicted, ever saw ;
Pulls off the veil from virtue's rising charms ;
Detects temptation in a thousand lies.
Truth bids me look on men, as autumn leaves,
And all they bleed for, as the summer's dust,
Driven by the whirlwind : lighted by her beams,
I widen my horizon, gain new powers,
See things invisible, feel things remote,
Am present with futurities ; think nought
To man so foreign, as the joys possess ;
Nought so much his, as those beyond the grave.

No folly keeps its color in her sight ;
Pale worldly wisdom loses all her charms ;
In pompous promise from her schemes profound,
If future fate she plans, 'tis all in leaves,
Like Sybil, unsubstantial, fleeting bliss !
At the first blast it vanishes in air.

Not so, celestial : wouldst thou know, Lorenzo !
How differ worldly wisdom, and divine ?
Just as the waning, and the waxen moon.
More empty worldly wisdom every day ;
And every day more fair her rival shines.

When later, there's less time to play the fool.
Soon our whole term for wisdom is expir'd,
(Thou know'st she calls no council in the grave :)
And everlasting fool is writ in fire,
Or real wisdom wafts us to the skies.

As worldly schemes resemble Sibyl's leaves,
 The good man's days to Sibyl's book compare,
 In ancient story read, thou know'st the tale)
 In price still rising, as in number less,
 Inestimable quite his final hour.

For that who thrones can offer, offer thrones :
 Insolvent worlds the purchase cannot pay.
 " Oh let me die his death ! " all nature cries.
 " Then live his life " — All nature falters there.
 Our great physician daily to consult,
 To commune with the grave our only cure.

What grave prescribes the best ? — A friend's ; and yet,

From a friend's grave, how soon we disengage !
 Ev'n to the dearest, as his marble, cold.
 Why are friends ravish'd from us ? 'Tis to bind,
 By soft affection's ties, on human hearts,
 The thought of death, which reason, too supine,
 Or misemploy'd, so rarely fastens there.
 Nor reason, nor affection, no, nor both
 Combin'd, can break the witchcrafts of the world.
 Behold the inexorable hour at hand !
 Behold the inexorable hour forgot !
 And to forget it, the chief aim of life,
 Though well to ponder it, is life's chief end.

Is death, that ever threat'ning, ne'er remote,
 That all-important, and that only sure,
 (Come when he will) an unexpected guest ?
 Nay, though invited by the loudest calls
 Of blind imprudence, unexpected still ?
 Though numerous messengers are sent before,
 To warn his great arrival. What the cause,
 The wonderful cause, of this mysterious ill ?
 All Heaven looks down astonish'd at the sight.

Is it, that life has sown her joys so thick,
 We can't thrust in a single care between ?
 Is it, that life has such a swarm of cares,
 The thought of death can't enter for the throng ?
 Is it, that time steals on with downy feet,
 Nor wakes indulgence from her golden dream ?
 To-day is so like yesterday, it cheats ;
 We take the lying sister for the same.

Life glides away, Lorenzo ! like a brook ;
 For ever changing, unperceiv'd the change.
 In the same brook none ever bath'd him twice :
 To the same life none ever twice awoke.
 We call the brook the same ; the same we think
 Our life, though still more rapid in its flow ;
 Nor mark the much irrevocably laps'd,
 And mingled with the sea. Or shall we say,
 (Retaining still the brook to bear us on)
 That life is like a vessel on the stream ?
 In life embark'd, we smoothly down the tide
 Of time descend, but not on time intent ;
 Amus'd, unconscious of the gliding wave ;
 Till on a sudden we perceive a shock ;
 We start, awake, look out : what see we there ?
 Our brittle bark, is burst on Charon's shore.

Is this the cause death flies all human thought ?
 Or is it judgment by the will struck blind,
 That domineering mistress of the soul !
 Like him so strong by Dalilah the fair ?
 Or is it fear turns startled reason back,
 From looking down a precipice so steep ?
 'Tis dreadful ; and the dread is wisely plac'd,
 By Nature conscious of the make of man.
 A dreadful friend it is, a terror kind,
 A flaming sword to guard the tree of life.
 By that unaw'd, in life's most smiling hour,
 The good man would repine ; would suffer joys,
 And burn impatient for his promis'd skies.
 The bad, on each punctilious pique of pride,
 Or gloom of humor, would give rage the reign,
 Bound o'er the barrier, rush into the dark,
 And mar the scenes of Providence below.

What groan was that, Lorenzo ?—Furies ! rise ;
 And drown in your less execrable yell,
 Britannia's shame. There took her gloomy flight,
 On wing's impetuous, a black sullen soul,
 Blasted from hell, with horrid lust of death.

Thy friend, the brave, the gallant Altamont,
 Call'd, so thought—and then he fled the field,

Less base the fear of death, than fear of life.
 O Britain, infamous for suicide !

An island, in thy manners, far disjoin'd
 From the whole world of rationals beside !
 In ambient waves plunge thy polluted head,
 Wash the dire stain, nor shock the continent.
 But thou be shock'd, while I detect the cause
 Of self-assault, expose the monster's birth,
 And bid abhorrence hiss it round the world.
 Blame not thy clime, nor chide the distant sun ;
 The sun is innocent, thy clime absolv'd.
 Immoral climes kind Nature never made.
 The cause I sing, in Eden might prevail,
 And proves, it is thy folly, not thy fate.
 The soul of man (let man in homage bow,
 Who names his soul) a native of the skies !
 High-born and free, her freedom should maintain,
 Unsold, unmortgag'd for earth's little bribes.
 The illustrious stranger, in this foreign land,
 Like strangers, jealous of her dignity,
 Studious of home, and ardent to return,
 Of earth suspicious, earth's enchanted cup
 With cool reserve light touching, should indulge,
 On immortality, her godlike taste ;
 There take large draughts, make her chief banquet
 there.

But some reject this sustenance divine ;
 To beggarly vile appetites descend ;
 Ask alms of earth, for guests that came from heaven ;
 Sink into slaves ; and sell, for present hire,
 Their rich reversion, and (what shares its fate)
 Their native freedom, to the prince who sways
 This nether world. And when his payments fail,
 When his foul basket gorges them no more,
 Or their pall'd palates loath the basket full ;
 Are instantly, with wild demoniac rage,
 For breaking all the chains of Providence,
 And bursting their confinement ; though fast barr'd
 By laws divine and human ; guarded strong
 With horrors doubled to defend the pass,
 The blackest, nature, or dire guilt, can raise ;
 And moated round with fathomless destruction,
 Sure to receive, and overwhelm them in their fall.
Such, Britons ! is the cause to you unknown,

Or worse, o'erlook'd ; o'erlook'd by magistrates,
Thus criminals themselves. I grant the deed
Is madness ; but the madness of the heart.
And what is that ? Our utmost bound of guilt.
A sensual unreflecting, life, is big
With monstrous births, and suicide, to crown
The black infernal brood. The bold to break
Heaven's law supreme, and desperately rush
Through sacred nature's murder, on their own,
Because they never think of death, they die.
'Tis equally man's duty, glory, gain,
At once to shun, and meditate his end.
When by the bed of languishment we sit,
(The seat of wisdom ! if our choice, not fate)
Or o'er our dying friends, in anguish hang,
Wipe the cold dew, or stay the sinking head,
Number their moments, and, in every clock,
Start at the voice of an eternity ;
See the dim lamp of life just feebly lift
An agonizing beam, at us to gaze,
Then sink again, and quiver into death,
That most pathetic herald of our own ;
How read we such sad scenes ? As sent to man
In perfect vengeance ? No ; in pity sent,
To melt him down, like wax, and then impress,
Indelible, death's image on his heart ;
Bleeding for others, trembling for himself.
We bleed, we tremble ; we forget, we smile.
The mind turns fool, before the cheek is dry.
Our quick-retuning folly cancels all ;
As the tide rushing razes what is writ
In yielding sands, and smooths the letter'd shore.
Lorenzo ! hast thou ever weigh'd a sigh ?
Or study'd the philosophy of tears ?
(A science, yet, unlectur'd in our schools)
Hast thou descended deep into the breast,
And seen their source ? If not, descend with me,
And trace these briny rivulets to their springs.

Our funeral tears from different causes rise.
As if, from separate cisterns in the soul,
Of various kinds they flow. From tender hearts,
By soft contagion call'd, some burst at once,

And stream obsequious to the leading eye.
 Some ask more time, by curious art distill'd.
 Some hearts in secret hard, unapt to melt,
 Struck by the magic of the public eye,
 Like Moses' smitten rock, gush out amain.
 Some weep to share the fame of the deceas'd,
 So high in merit, and to them so dear.
 They dwell on praises, which they think they share ;
 And thus, without a blush, commend themselves.
 Some mourn in proof, that something they could love ;
 They weep not to relieve their grief, but show.
 Some weep in perfect justice to the dead,
 As conscious all their love is in arrear.
 Some mischievously weep, not unappris'd,
 Tears, sometimes, aid the conquest of an eye.
 With what address the soft Ephesians drew
 Their sable net-work o'er entangled hearts !
 As seen through crystal, how their roses glow,
 While liquid pearl runs trickling down their cheek !
 Of her's not prouder Egypt's wanton queen,
 Carousing gems, herself dissolv'd in love.
 Some weep at death, abstracted from the dead,
 And celebrate, like Charles, their own decease.
 By kind construction some are deem'd to weep,
 Because a decent veil conceals their joy.
 Some weep in earnest, and yet weep in vain ;
 As deep in indiscretion, as in woe.
 Passion, blind passion ! impotently pours
 Tears, that deserve more tears ; while reason sleeps ;
 Or gazes, like an idiot, unconcern'd ;
 Nor comprehends the meaning of the storm ;
 Knows not it speaks to her, and her alone.
 Irrationals all sorrow are beneath,
 That noble gift ! that privilege of man !
 From sorrow's pang, the birth of endless joy.
 But these are barren of that birth divine :
 They weep impetuous at the summer-storm,
 And full as short ! The cruel grief soon tam'd,
 They make a pastime of the stingless tale ;
 Far as the deep-resounding knell, they spread
 The dreadful news, and hardly feel it more.
 No grain of wisdom pays them for their woe.

Half-round the globe, the tears pump't up by death
 Are spent in wat'ring vanities of life ;
 In making folly flourish still more fair.
 When the sick soul, her wonted stay withdrawn,
 Reclines on earth, and sorrows in the dust ;
 Instead of learning there, her true support,
 Though there thrown down her true support to learn
 Without Heaven's aid impatient to be blest,
 She crawls to the next shrub, or bramble vile,
 Though from the stately cedar's arms she fell :
 With stale, forsworn embraces, clings anew,
 The stranger weds, and blossoms, as before,
 In all the fruitless fopperies of life :
 Presents her weed, well-fancy'd, at the ball,
 And raffles for the death's-head on the ring.

So wept Aurelia, till the destin'd youth
 Stept in, with his receipts for making smiles,
 And blanching sable into bridal bloom.
 So wept Lorenzo fair Clarissa's fate ;
 Who gave that angel boy on whom he doats ;
 And dy'd to give him, orphan'd in his birth !
 Not such, Narcissa, my distress for thee.
 I'll make an altar of thy sacred tomb,
 To sacrifice to wisdom.—What wast thou ?
 “ Young, gay, and fortunate ! ” each yields a theme
 I'll dwell on each, to shun thought more severe ;
 (Heaven knows I labor with severer still !)
 I'll dwell on each, and quite exhaust thy death.
 A soul without reflection, like a pile
 Without inhabitant, to ruin runs.

And first thy youth. What says it to grey hairs ?
 Narcissa, I'm become thy pupil now—
 Early, bright, transient, chaste, as morning dew,
 She sparkled, was exhal'd, and went to Heaven.
 Time on this head has snow'd ; yet still 'tis borne
 Aloft ; nor thinks but on another's grave.
 Cover'd with shame I speak it, age severe,
 Old worn-out vice sets down for virtue fair ;
 With graceless gravity chastising youth,
 That youth chastis'd surpassing in a fault,
 Father of all, forgetfulness of death :
 As if, like objects pressing on the sight,

Death had advanc'd too near us to be seen :
 Or, that life's loan time ripen'd into right ;
 And men might plead prescription from the grave ;
 Deathless, from repetition of reprieve.
 Deathless ? far from it ! such are dead already ;
 Their hearts are bury'd, and the world's their grave.

Tell me some God ! my guardian angel ! tell,
 What thus infatuates ? What enchantment plants
 The phantom of an age 'twixt us and death
 Already at the door ? he knocks, we hear him,
 And yet we will not hear. What mail defends
 Our untouch'd hearts ? what miracle turns off
 The pointed thought, which from a thousand quivers
 Is daily darted, and is daily shunn'd ?
 We stand, as in a battle, throngs on throngs
 Around us falling ; wounded oft ourselves ;
 Though bleeding with our wounds, immortal still !
 We see time's furrows on another's brow,
 And death intrench'd, preparing his assault :
 How few themselves, in that just mirror see !
 Or, seeing, draw their inference as strong !
 Their death is certain ; doubtful here : he must,
 And soon ; we may, within an age, expire.
 Though grey our heads, our thoughts and aims are green ;

Like damag'd clocks, whose hand and bell dissent,
 Folly sings six, while Nature points at twelve.

Absurd longevity ! More, more, it cries :
 More life, more wealth, more trash of every kind.
 And wherefore mad for more, when relish fails ?
 Object and appetite, must club for joy :
 Shall folly labor hard to mend the bow,
 Baubles, I mean, that strike us from without,
 While Nature is relaxing every string ?
 Ask thought for joy ; grow rich, and hoard within.
 Think you the soul, when this life's rattles cease,
 Has nothing of more manly to succeed ?
 Contract the taste immortal ; learn ev'n now
 To relish what alone subsists hereafter.

*Divine, or none, henceforth your joys forever.
 Of age the glory is, to wish to die.
 That wish is praise and promise ; it applauds*

Past life, and promises our future bliss.
What weakness see not children in their sires ?
Grand-climacterical absurdities !
Grey-hair'd authority, to faults of youth,
How shocking ! it makes folly thrice a fool ;
And our first childhood might our last despise.
Peace and esteem is all that age can hope :
Nothing but wisdom gives the first ; the last,
Nothing, but the repute of being wise.
Folly bars both ; our age is quite undone.

What folly can be ranker ? Like our shadows,
Our wishes lengthen as our sun declines.
No wish should loiter, then, this side the grave.
Our hearts should leave the world, before the knell
Calls for our carcasses to mend the soil.
Enough to live in tempest, die in port ;
Age should fly concourse, cover in retreat
Defects of judgment, and the will subdue ;
Walk thoughtful on the silent, solemn shore
Of that vast ocean it must sail so soon ;
And put good-works on board ; and wait the wind
That shortly blows us into worlds unknown.
If unconsidered too, a dreadful scene !

All should be prophets to themselves ; foresee
Their future fate ; their future fate foretaste ;
This art would waste the bitterness of death.
The thought of death alone, the fear destroys.
A disaffection to that precious thought
Is more than midnight darkness on the soul,
Which sleep beneath it on a precipice,
Puff'd off by the first blast, and lost for ever.

Dost ask, Lorenzo, why so warmly prest,
By repetition hammer'd on thine ear,
The thought of death ? that thought is the machine,
The grand machine ! that heaves us from the dust,
And rears us into men. That thought ply'd home,
Will soon reduce the ghastly precipice
O'erhanging hell, will soften the descent,
And gently slope our passage to the grave :
How warmly to be wish'd ! What heart of flesh
Would trifle with tremendous ? dare extremes ?
Yawn o'er the fate of infinite ? what hand,

Beyond the blackest brand of censure bold,
 (To speak a language too well known to thee)
 Would at a moment give its all to chance,
 And stamp the die for any eternity ?

Aid me, Narcissa ! aid me to keep pace
 With destiny ; and ere her scissars cut
 My thread of life, to break this tougher thread
 Of mortal death, that ties me to the world.
 Sting thou my slumbering reason to send forth
 A thought of observation on the foe ;
 To sally and survey the rapid march
 Of his ten thousand messengers to man ;
 Who Jehu-like, behind him turns them all.
 All accident apart, by Nature sign'd,
 My warrant is gone out, though dormant yet ;
 Perhaps behind one moment lurks my fate.

Must I then forward only look for death ?
 Backward I turn mine eye, and find him there.
 Man is a self-survivor every year.
 Man, like a stream, is in perpetual flow.
 Death's a destroyer of quotidian prey.
 My youth, my noon-tide, his ; my yesterday ;
 The bold invader shares the present hour.
 Each moment on the former shuts the grave.
 While man is growing, life is in decrease ;
 And cradles rock us nearer to the tomb.
 Our birth is nothing but our death begun ;
 As tapers waste that instant they take fire.

Shall we then fear, lest that should come to pass,
 Which comes to pass each moment of our lives ?
 If fear we must, let that death turn us pale,
 Which murders strength and ardor ; what remains
 Should rather call on death, than dread his call.
 Ye partners of my fault, and my decline !
 Thoughtless of death, but when your neighbor's knell .
 (Ride visitant !) knocks hard at your dull sense,
 And with its thunder scarce obtains your ear !
 Be death your theme in every place and hour ;
 Nor longer want, ye monumental sires !
 A brother tomb to tell you, you shall die.
 That death you dread (so great is Nature's skill !)
 Know you shall court before you shall enjoy .

But you are learn'd ; in volumes, deep you sit ;
In wisdom, shallow : pompous ignorance !
Would you be still more learned than the learn'd ?
Learn well to know how much need not be known,
And what that knowledge, which impairs your sense.
Our needful knowledge, like our needful food,
Unhedg'd, lies open in life's common field ;
And bids all welcome to the vital feast.
You scorn what lies before you in the page
Of nature and experience, moral truth !
Of indispensable, eternal fruit !
Fruit, on which mortals feeding, turn to gods ;
And dive in science for distinguish'd names ;
Dishonest fomentation of your pride ;
Sinking in virtue, as you rise in fame.
Your learning, like the lunar beam, affords
Light, but not heat ; it leaves you undevout,
Frozen at heart while speculation shines.
Awake, ye curious indagators ! fond
Of knowing all, but what avails you, known ;
If you would learn death's character, attend.
All casts of conduct, all degrees of health,
All dies of fortune, and all dates of age,
Together shook in his impartial urn,
Come forth at random : or if choice is made,
The choice is quite sarcastic, and insults
All bold conjecture, and fond hopes of man.
What countless multitudes not only leave,
But deeply disappoint us by their deaths !
Though great our sorrow, greater our surprise.
Like other tyrants, death delights to smite,
What, smitten, most proclaims the pride of power,
And arbitrary nod. His joy supreme,
To bid the wretch survive the fortunate ;
The feeble wrap the athletic in his shroud ;
And weeping fathers build their children's tomb :
Me thine, Narcissa !—What though short thy date ?
Virtue, not rolling suns, the mind matures.
That life is long which answers life's great end.
The time that bears no fruit, deserves no name ;
The man of wisdom is the man of years.

In hoary youth Methusalems may die ;
O how misdated on their flattering tombs !

Narcissa's youth has lectur'd me thus far.
And can her gaiety give counsel too ?
That, like the Jews' fam'd oracle of gems,
Sparkles instruction ; such as throws new light,
And opens more the character of death,
Ill known to thee, Lorenzo ! this thy vaunt :
" Give death his due, the wretched and the old ;
" E'en let him sweep his rubbish to the grave ;
" Let him not violate kind nature's laws,
" But own man born to live, as well as die."
Wretched and old thou giv'st him ; young and gay
He takes ; and plunder is a tyrant's joy.
What if I prove, " the farthest from the fear,
" Are often nearest to the stroke of fate ?"

All, more than common, menaces an end.

A blaze betokens brevity of life :
As if bright embers should emit a flame,
Glad spirits sparkled from Narcissa's eye,
And made youth younger, and taught life to live.
As nature's opposites wage endless war,
For this offence, as treason to the deep
Inviolable stupor of his reign.

Where lust, and turbulent ambition, sleep,
Death took swift vengeance. As he life detests,
More life is still more odious ; and, reduc'd
By conquest, aggrandizes more his power.
But wherefore aggrandiz'd ? By heaven's decree
To plant the soul on her eternal guard,
In awful expectation of our end.

Thus runs death's dread commission : " Strike, but so,
" As most alarms the living by the dead."

Hence stratagem delights him, and surprise,
And cruel sport with man's securities,
Not simple conquest, triumph in his aim ;
And, where least fear'd there conquest triumphs most ;
This proves my bold assertion not too bold.

What are his arts to lay our fears asleep ?

*Tiberian arts his purposes wrap up
In deep dissimulation's darkest night.
Like princes unconfest in foreign courts,*

Who travel under cover, death assumes
The name and look of life, and dwells among us.
He takes all shapes that serve his black designs :
Though master of a wider empire far
Than that o'er which the Roman eagle flew ;
Like Nero, he's a fiddler, charioteer,
Or drives his phaeton in female guise ;
Quite unsuspected, till the wheel beneath,
His disarray'd oblation he devours.

He most affects the forms least like himself,
His slender self. Hence burly corpulence
Is his familiar wear, and sleek disguise.
Behind the rosy bloom he loves to lurk,
Or ambush in a smile ; or wanton dive
In dimples deep ; love's eddies, which draw in Unwary hearts, and sink them in despair.
Such, on Narcissa's couch, he loiter'd long
Unknown ; and, when detected, still was seen
To smile ; such peace has innocence in death !

Most happy they whom least his arts deceive.
One eye on death, and one full fix'd on heaven,
Becomes a mortal, and immortal man.

Long on his wiles a piqu'd and jealous spy,
I've seen, or dreamt I saw, the tyrant dress,
Lay by his horrors, and put on his smiles.
Say, muse, for thou remember'st, call it back,
And shew Lorenzo the surprizing scene ;
If 'twas a dream, his genius can explain.

'Twas in a circle of the gay I stood ;
Death would have enter'd ; nature push'd him back
Supported by a doctor of renown,
His point he gain'd. Then artfully dismiss'd
The sage ; for death design'd to be conceal'd.
He gave an old vivacious usurer
His meagre aspect and his naked bones ;
In gratitude for plumping up his prey,
A pamper'd spendthrift ; whose fantastic air,
Well fashion'd figure, and cockaded brow,
He took in change, and underneath the pride
Of costly linen, tuck'd his filthy shroud.
His crooked bow he straiten'd to a cane ;
And hid his deadly shafts in Myra's eye.

The dreadful masquerader thus equipt,
 Out-sallies on adventures. Ask you where?
 Where is he not ! for his peculiar haunts,
 Let this suffice ; sure as night follows day,
 Death treads in pleasure's footsteps round the world,
 When pleasure treads the paths, which reason shuns.
 When, against reason, riot shuts the door,
 And gaiety supplies the place of sense,
 Then, foremost at the banquet, and the ball,
 Death leads the dance, or stamps the deadly die ;
 Nor ever fails the midnight bowl to crown.
 Gaily carousing to his gay compeers,
 Inly he laughs, to see them laugh at him,
 As absent far : and when the revel burns,
 When fear is banish'd, and triumphant thought,
 Calling for all the joys beneath the moon,
 Against him turns the key, and bids him sup
 With their progenitors—he drops his mask ;
 Frowns full at all ; they start, despair, expire.

Scarce with more sudden terror and surprise,
 From his black masque of nitre, touch'd by fire,
 He bursts, expands, roars, blazes, and devours.
 And is not this triumphant treachery,
 And more than simple conquest, in the fiend ?

And now, Lorenzo, dost thou wrap thy soul
 In soft security, because unknown
 Which moment is commission'd to destroy ?
 In death's uncertainty thy danger lies.
 Is death uncertain ? therefore thou be fixt ;
 Fixt as a sentinel, all eye, all ear,
 All expectation of the coming foe.
 Rouse, stand in arms, nor lean against thy spear ;
 Lest slumber steal one moment o'er thy soul,
 And fate surprise thee nodding. Watch, be strong ;
 Thus give each day the merit and renown,
 Of dying well ; though doom'd but once to die.
 Nor let life's period hidden (as from most)
 Hide too from thee the precious use of life.

Early, not sudden, was Narcissa's fate.
 Soon, not surprising, death his visit paid.
 Her thought went forth to meet him on his way,
 Nor gaiety forgot it was to die.

Tho' fortune too (our third and final theme,)
 As an accomplice, play'd her gaudy plumes,
 And every glitt'ring gewgaw, on her sight,
 To dazzle, and debauch it from its mark,
 Death's dreadful advent is the mark of man ;
 And ev'ry thought that misses it, is blind.
 Fortune, with youth, and gaiety, conspir'd
 To weave a triple wreath of happiness
 (If happiness on earth) to crown her brow.
 And could death charge through such a shining shield

That shining shield invites the tyrant's spear,
 As if to damp our elevated aims,
 And strongly preach humility to man.
 O how portentous is prosperity !
 How, comet-like, it threatens, while it shines !
 Few years but yield us proofs of death's ambition,
 To cull his victims from the fairest fold,
 And sheath his shafts in all the pride of life.
 When flooded with abundance, purpled o'er
 With recent honors, bloom'd with every bliss,
 Set up in ostentation, made the gaze,
 The gaudy centre of the public eye,
 When fortune thus has toss'd her child in air,
 Snatch'd from the covert of an humble state,
 How often have I seen him drop at once,
 Our morning's envy ! and our evening's sigh !
 As if her bounties were the signal given,
 The flow'ry wreath to mark the sacrifice,
 And call death's arrows on the destin'd prey.

High fortune seems in cruel league with fate.
 Ask you for what ? To give his war on man
 The deeper dread, and more illustrious spoil ;
 Thus to keep daring mortals more in awe.
 And burns Lorenzo still for the sublime
 Of life ? to hang his airy nest on high,
 On the slight timber of the topmost bough,
 Rock'd at each breeze, and menacing a fall ?
 Granting grim death at equal distance there ;
 Yet peace begins just where ambition ends.
 What makes man wretched ? Happiness deny'd ?
 Lorenzo ! no : tis happiness disdain'd.
 She comes too meanly drest to win our smiles ;

And calls herself content, a homely name !
 Our flame is transport, and content our scorn.
 Ambition turns, and shuts the door against her,
 And weds a toil, a tempest, in her stead ;
 A tempest to warm transport near-a-kin.
 Unknowing what our mortal state admits,
 Life's modest joys we ruin, while we raise :
 And all our extasies are wounds to peace :
 Peace, the full portion of mankind below.

And since thy peace is dear, ambitious youth !
 Of fortune fond, as thoughtless of thy fate!
 As late I drew death's picture, to stir up
 Thy wholesome fears ; now drawn in contrast, see
 Gay fortune's, thy vain hopes to reprimand.
 See, high in air, the sportive goddess hangs,
 Unlock her casket, spreads her glitt'ring ware,
 And calls the giddy winds to puff abroad
 Her random bounties o'er the gaping throng.
 All rush rapacious ; friends o'er trodden friends,
 Sons o'er their fathers, subjects o'er their kings,
 Priests o'er their gods, and lovers o'er the fair,
 (Still more ador'd) to snatch the golden shower.

Gold glitters most, where virtue shines no more ;
 As stars from absent suns have leave to shine.

O what a precious pack of votaries,
 Unkennell'd from the prisons, and the stews,
 Pour in, all op'ning in their idol's praise !
 All, ardent, eye each wafture of her hand,
 And, wide expanding their voracious jaws,
 Morsel on morsel swallow down unchew'd,
 Untasted, through mad appetite for more ;
 Gorg'd to the throat, yet lean and ravenous still.
 Sagacious all, to trace the smallest game,
 And bold to seize the greatest. If (blest chance !)
 Court-zephyrs sweetly breathe, they launch, they fly,
 O'er just, o'er sacred, all-forbidden ground,
 Drunk with the burning scent of place or power,
 Staunch to the foot of lucre, till they die.

Or, if for men you take them, as I mark
 Their manners, thou their various fates survey.
 With aim mis-measur'd, and impetuous speed,
 Some darting, strike their ardent wish far off,

Through fury to possess it : some succeed,
But stumble, and let fall the taken prize;
From some, by sudden blasts, tis whirl'd away,
And lodg'd in bosoms that ne'er dream'd of gain;
To some it sticks so close, that, when torn off,
Torn is the man, and mortal is the wound.
Some, o'er-enamour'd of their bags, run mad,
Groan under gold, yet weep for want of bread.
Together some (unhappy rivals !) seize,
And rend abundance into poverty;
Loud croaks the raven of the law, and smiles :
Smiles too the goddess ; but smiles most at those,
(Just victims of exorbitant desire !)
Who perish at their own request, and whelm'd
Beneath her load of lavish grants, expire.
Fortune is famous for her numbers slain.
The number small, which happiness can bear,
Though various for a while their fates ; at last
One curse involves them all : At death's approach,
All read their riches backward into loss,
And mourn in just proportion to their store.

And death's approach (if orthodox my song)
Is hasten'd by the lure of fortune's smiles.
And art thou still a glutton of bright gold ?
And art thou still rapacious of thy ruin ?
Death loves a shining mark, a signal blow ;
A blow, which, while it executes, alarms ;
And startles thousands with a single fall.
As when some stately growth of oak, or pine,
Which nods aloft, and proudly spreads her shade,
The sun's defiance, and the flock's defence ;
By the strong strokes of laboring hinds subdu'd,
Loud groans her last, and, rushing from her height,
In cumbrous ruin, thunders to the ground :
The conscious forest trembles at the shock,
And hill, and stream, and distant dale, resound.

These high-aim'd darts of death, and these alone,
Should I collect, my quiver would be full.
A quiver, which, suspended in mid air,
Or near Heaven's archer, in the zodiac hung,
(So could it be) should draw the public eye,
The gaze and contemplation of mankind !

A constellation awful, yet benign,
To guide the gay through life's tempestuous wave,
Nor suffer them to strike the common rock ;
" From greater danger to grow more secure,
" And, wrapt in happiness, forget their fate."

Lysander, happy past the common lot,
Was warn'd of danger, but too gay to fear,
He woo'd the fair Aspasia : She was kind ;
In youth, form, fortune, fame, they both were blest :
All who knew, envy'd ; yet in envy lov'd :
Can fancy form more finish'd happiness ?
Fix'd was the nuptial hour. Her stately dome
Rose on the sounding beach. The glittering spires
Float in the wave, and break against the shore :
So break those glittering shadows, human joys.
The faithless morning smil'd : he takes his leave,
To re-embrace in extasies, at eve ;
The rising storm forbids. The news arrives :
Untold, she saw it in her servant's eye.
She felt it seen ; (her heart was apt to feel)
And, drown'd, without the furious ocean's aid,
In suffocating sorrows, shares his tomb.
Now, round the sumptuous, bridal monument,
The guilty billows innocently roar ;
And the rough sailor passing, drops a tear.
A tear ? can tears suffice ?—But not for me.
How vain our efforts ! and our arts, how vain !
The distant train of thought I took, to shun,
Has thrown me on my fate.—These dy'd together ;
Happy in ruin ! undivorc'd by death !
Or ne'er to meet, or ne'er to part, is peace.—
Narcissa ! pity bleeds at thought of thee.
Yet thou wast only near me ; not myself.
Survive myself ?—That cures all other woe.
Narcissa lives ; Philander is forgot.
O the soft commerce ! O the tender ties,
Close-twisted with the fibres of the heart !
Which, broken, break them ; and drain off the soul
Of human joy ; and make it pain to live—
And is it then to live ? When such friends part,
'Tis the survivor dies—My heart ! no more.

PREFACE

TO

THE INFIDEL RECLAIMED.

FEW ages have been deeper in dispute about religion, than this. The dispute about religion and the practice of it, seldom go together. The shorter, therefore, the dispute, the better. I think it may be reduced to this single question, Is man immortal ? or, Is he not ? If he is not, all our disputes are mere amusements, or trials of skill. In this case, truth, reason, religion, which give our discourses such pomp and solemnity, are (as will be shewn) mere empty sounds, without any meaning in them. But if man is immortal, it will behove him to be very serious about eternal consequences ; or, in other words, to be truly religious. And this great fundamental truth, unestablished, or unawakened in the minds of men ; is, I conceive, the real source and support of all our infidelity ; how remote soever the particular objections advanced may seem to be from it.

Sensible appearances affect most men much more than abstract reasoning ; and we daily see bodies drop around us, but the soul is invisible. The power which inclination has over the judgment, is greater than can be well conceived by those that have not had an experience of it ; and of what numbers is it the sad interest, that souls should not survive ! The heathen world confessed, that they rather hoped, than firmly believed, immortality ! and how many heathens have we still amongst us ! the sacred page assures us, that life and immortality are brought to light by the gospel : But by how many is the gospel rejected, or overlooked ! From these considerations, and from my being accidentally, privy to the sentiments of some particular persons, I have been long persuaded, that most, if not all, our infidels (whatever name they take, and whatever scheme, for argument's sake, and to keep themselves in countenance, they patronize) are supported in their deplorable error, by some doubt of their immortality, at the bottom. And I am satisfied, that men once thoroughly convinced of their immortality, are not far from being christians. For it is hard to conceive, that a man, fully conscious eternal pain or happiness will certainly be his lot, should not earnestly and impartially, enquire after the surest means of escaping the one, and securing the other. And of such an earnest and impartial inquiry, I well know the consequence.

Here, therefore, in proof of this most fundamental truth, some plain arguments are offered ; arguments derived from principles which infidels admit in common with believers ; arguments which appear to me altogether irresistible ; and such as, I am satisfied, will have great weight with all, who give themselves the small trouble of looking seriously into their own bosoms, and of observing, with any tolerable degree of attention, what daily passes round about them in the world. If some arguments shall, here, occur, which others have declined, they are submitted with all deference, to better judgments in this, of all points, the most important. For, as to the being of a God, that is no longer disputed ; but it is undisputed for this reason only ; viz. Because where the least pretence to reason is admitted, it must forever be indisputable. And of consequence no man can be betrayed into a dispute of that nature by vanity which has a principal share in animating our modern combatants against other articles of our belief.

THE COMPLAINT.

NIGHT VI.

THE INFIDEL RECLAIMED.

IN TWO PARTS.

Containing,
The Nature, Proof, and Importance of Immortality.

PART I.

Where, amongst other things, Glory and Riches are particularly considered.

Inscribed to
THE RIGHT HON. HENRY PELHAM.

SHE* (for I know not yet her name in Heaven)
Not early, like Narcissa, left the scene;
Nor sudden, like Philander. What avail?
This seeming mitigation but inflames;
This fancy'd medicine heightens the disease.
The longer known, the closer still she grew:
And gradual parting is a gradual death.
Tis the grim tyrant's engine, which extorts
By tardy pressure's still-increasing weight,
From hardest hearts, confession of distress.
O the long, dark approach, through years of pain,
Death's gallery! (might I dare to call it so)
With dismal doubt, and sable terror, hung;

* Referring to Night the Fifth.

Sick hope's pale lamp, its only glimmering ray :
 There fate my melancholy walk ordain'd,
 Forbid self-love itself to flatter there.
 How oft I gaz'd, prophetically sad !
 How oft I saw her dead, while yet in smiles !
 In smiles she sunk her grief to lessen mine.
 She spoke me comfort, and increas'd my pain.
 Like powerful armies trenching at a town,
 By slow, and silent, but resistless sap,
 In his pale progress gently gaining ground,
 Death urg'd his deadly siege ; in spite of art,
 Of all the balmy blessings nature lends
 To succor frail humanity. Ye stars !
 (Not now first made familiar to my sight)
 And thou, O moon ! bear witness ; many a night
 He tore the pillow from beneath my head,
 Ty'd down my sore attention to the shock,
 By ceaseless depredations on a life
 Dearer than that he left me. Dreadful post
 Of observation ! darker every hour !
 Less dread the day that drove me to the brink,
 And pointed out eternity below ;
 When my soul shudder'd at futurity,
 When, on a moment's point, the important die
 Of life and death spun doubtful, ere it fell,
 And turn'd up life ; my title to more woe.

But why more woe ? More comfort let it be.
 Nothing is dead, but that which wish'd to die ;
 Nothing is dead, but wretchedness and pain ;
 Nothing is dead, but what incumber'd, gall'd,
 Block'd up the pass, and barr'd from real life.
 Where dwells that wish most ardent of the wise ?
 Too dark the sun to see it ; highest stars,
 Too low to reach it ; death, great death alone,
 O'er stars and sun, triumphant lands us there.
 Nor dreadful our transition ; though the mind,
 An artist at creating self-alarms,
 Rich in expedients for inquietude,
 Is prone to paint it dreadful. Who can take Death's portrait true ? The tyrant never sat.
 Our sketch all random, strokes, conjecture all ;
 Close shuts the grave, nor tells one single tale.

Death, and his image rising in the brain,
 Bear faint resemblance ; never are alike :
 Fear shakes the pencil ; fancy loves excess ;
 Dark ignorance is lavish of her shades :
 And these the formidable picture draw.

But grant the worst ; tis past ; new prospects rise ;
 And drop a veil eternal o'er her tomb.

Far other views our contemplation claim,
 Views that o'erpay the rigors of our life ;
 Views that suspend our agonies in death.
 Wrapt in the thought of immortality,
 Wrapt in the single, the triumphant thought !
 Long life might lapse, age unperceiv'd come on ;
 And find the soul unsated with her theme.

Its nature, proof, importance, fire my song.
 O that my song could emulate my soul !
 Like her, immortal. No !—the soul disdains
 A mark so mean ; far nobler hope inflames ;
 If endless ages can outweigh an hour,
 Let not the laurel, but the palm, inspire.

Thy nature, immortality ! who knows ?

And yet who knows it not ? It is but life

In stronger thread of brighter color spun,

And spun for ever ; dipt by cruel fate

In Stygian dye, how black, how brittle here !

How short our correspondence with the sun !

And while it lasts, inglorious ! Our best deeds,

How wanting in their weight ! Our highest joys,

Small cordials to support us in our pain,

And give us strength to suffer. But how great

To mingle interests, converse, amities,

With all the sons of reason, scatter'd wide

Through habitable space, where-ever born,

Howe'er endow'd ! To live free citizens

Of universal Nature ! To lay hold

By more than feeble faith on the Supreme !

To call Heaven's rich unfathomable mines

(Mines, which support archangels in their state)

Our own ! to rise in science as in bliss,

Initiate in the secrets of the skies !

To read creation ; read its mighty plan

In the bare bosom of the DEITY !

The plan and execution, to collate !
 To see, before each glance of piercing thought,
 All cloud, all shadow, blown remote ; and leave
 No mystery—but that of love divine,
 Which lifts us on the seraph's flaming wing,
 From earth's Aceldama, this field of blood,
 Of inward anguish, and of outward ill,
 From darkness, and from dust, to such a scene !
 Love's element ; true joy's illustrious home !
 From earth's sad contrast (now deplor'd) more fair !
 What exquisite vicissitude of fate !
 Blest absolution of our blackest hour !

Lorenzo, these are thoughts that make man, man,
 The wise illumine, aggrandize the great.
 How great (while yet we tread the kindred clod,
 And every moment fear to sink beneath
 The clod we tread ; soon trodden by our sons)
 How great, in the wild whirl of time's pursuits,
 To stop and pause, involv'd in high presage,
 Through the long visto of a thousand years,
 To stand contemplating our distant selves,
 As in a magnifying mirror seen,
 Enlarg'd, ennobled, elevate, divine !
 To prophecy our own futurities !
 To gaze in thought, on what all thought transcends !
 To talk, with fellow-candidates, of joys
 As far beyond conception, as desert,
 Ourselves the astonish'd talkers, and the tale !

Lorenzo, swells thy bosom at the thought ?
 The swell becomes thee ; 'tis an honest pride.
 Revere thyself ;—and yet thyself despise.
 His nature no man can o'er-rate ; and none
 Can under-rate his merit. Take good heed,
 Nor there be modest, where thou should'st be proud ;
 That almost universal error shun.
 How just our pride, when we behold those heights !
 Not those ambition paints in air, but those
 Reason points out, and ardent virtue gains ;
 And angels emulate ; our pride how just !
 When mount we ? When these shackles cast ? When quit
 This cell of the creation ? This small nest,

Stuck in a corner of the universe,
 Wrapt up in fleecy cloud, and fine-spun air?
 Fine-spun to sense; but gross and feculent
 To souls celestial; souls ordain'd to breathe
 Ambrosial gales, and drink a purer sky;
 Greatly triumphant on time's further shore,
 Where virtue reigns, enrich'd with full arrears;
 While pomp imperial begs an alms of peace.

In empire high, or in proud science deep,
 Ye born of earth! on what can you confer,
 With half the dignity, with half the gain,
 The gust, the glow of rational delight,
 As on this theme, which angels praise and share?
 Man's fates and favors are a theme in Heaven.

What wretched repetition cloy us here!
 What periodic potions for the sick!
 Distemper'd bodies! and distemper'd minds!
 In an eternity what scenes shall strike!
 Adventures thicken! Novelties surprise!
 What webs of wonder shall unravel there!
 What full day pour on all the paths of Heaven,
 And light the Almighty's footsteps in the deep!
 How shall the blessed day of our discharge
 Unwind, at once, the labyrinths of fate,
 And straighten its inextricable maze!

If inextinguishable thirst in man
 To know; how rich, how full, our banquet there!
 There, not the moral world alone unfolds:
 The world material, lately seen in shades,
 And, in those shades, by fragments only seen,
 And seen those fragments by the lab'ring eye,
 Unbroken, then, illustrious and entire,
 Its ample sphere, its universal frame,
 In full dimensions, swells to the survey,
 And enters, at one glance, the ravish'd sight.
 From some superior point (where, who can tell?
 Suffice it, 'tis a point where gods reside)
 How shall the stranger man's illumin'd eye,
 In the vast ocean of unbounded space,
 Behold an infinite of floating worlds
 Divide the crystal waves of ether pure,
 In endless voyage, without port! The least

Of these disseminated-orbs, how great !
 Great as they are, what numbers these surpass,
 Huge, as Leviathan, to that small race,
 Those twinkling multitudes of little life,
 He swallows unperceiv'd ! Stupendous these !
 Yet what are these stupendous to the whole ?
 As particles, as atoms ill-perceiv'd ;
 As circulating globules in our veins ;
 So vast the plan ! fecundity divine !
 Exuberant source ! perhaps I wrong thee still.

If admiration is a source of joy,
 What transport hence ! Yet this the least in heaven.
 What this to that illustrious robe he wears,
 Who tost this mass of wonders from his hand,
 A specimen, an earnest, of his power ?
 'Tis to that glory, whence all glory flows,
 As the mead's meanest flow'ret to the sun,
 Which gave it birth. But what, this sun of heaven ?
 This bliss supreme of the supremely blest ?
 Death, only death, the question can resolve.
 By death, cheap-bought the ideas of our joy ;
 The bare ideas ! Solid happiness
 So distant from its shadow chas'd below.

And chase we still the phantom through the fire,
 O'er bog, and brake, and precipice, till death ;
 And toil we still for sublunary pay ?
 Defy the dangers of the field and flood,
 Or, spider-like, spin out our precious all,
 Our more than vitals spin (if no regard
 To great futurity) in curious webs
 Of subtle thought, and exquisite design ;
 (Fine net-work of the brain !) to catch a fly ?
 The momentary buzz of vain renown !
 A name ! a mortal immortality !

Or (meaner still !) instead of grasping air,
 For sordid lucre plunge we in the mire ?
 Drudge, sweat, through ev'ry shame, for ev'ry gain,
 For vile contaminating trash ; throw up
 Our hope in heaven, our dignity with man ?
 And deify the dirt, matur'd to gold ?
 Ambition, avarice ; the two demons these,
 Which goad through every slough our human being

Hard-travell'd from the cradle to the grave.
How low the wretches stoop ! How steep they climb !
These dæmons burn mankind ; but most possess
Lorenzo's bosom, and turn out the skies.

Is it in time to hide eternity ?
And why not in an atom on the shore,
To cover ocean ? or a mote, the sun ?
Glory and wealth ! have they this blinding power ?
What if to them I prove Lorenzo blind ?
Would it surprise thee ? Be thou then surpris'd ;
Thou neither knowst : their nature learn from me.

Mark well, as foreign as these subjects seem,
What close connexion ties them to my theme.
First, what is true ambition ? The pursuit
Of glory, nothing less than men can share.
Were they as vain, as gaudy-minded man,
As flatulent with fumes of self-applause,
Their arts and conquests animals might boast,
And claim their laurel crowns, as well as we ;
But not celestial. Here we stand alone ;
As in our form, distinct, pre-eminent ;
If prone in thought, our stature is our shame ;
And man should blush, his forehead meets the skies.
The visible and present are for brutes,
A slender portion ! and a narrow bound !
These, reason, with an energy divine,
O'erleaps ; and claims the future and unseen !
The vast unseen ! the future fathomless !
When the great soul buoys up to this high point,
Leaving gross nature's sediments below,
Then, and then only, Adam's offspring quits
The sage and hero of the fields and woods,
Asserts his rank, and rises into man.
This is ambition : this is human fire.

Can parts or place (two bold pretenders !) make
Lorenzo great, and pluck him from the throng ?

Genius and art, ambition's boasted wings,
Our boast but ill deserve. A feeble aid !
Dedalian engin'ry ! If these alone
Assist our flight, fame's flight is glory's fall.
Heart-merit wanting, mount we ne'er so high,
Our height is but the gibbet of our name.

A celebrated wretch when I behold,
 When I behold a genius bright, and base,
 Of towering talents, and terrestrial aims ;
 Methinks I see, as thrown from her high sphere,
 The glorious fragments of a soul immortal,
 With rubbish mix'd, and glittering in the dust.
 Struck at the splendid, melancholy sight !
 At once compassion soft, and envy, rise—
 But wherefore envy ? Talents, angel-bright,
 If wanting worth, are shining instruments
 In false ambition's hand, to finish faults
 Illustrious, and give infamy renown.

Great ill is an atchievement of great powers.
 Plain sense but rarely leads us far astray.
 Reason the means, affections choose our end ;
 Means have no merit, if our end amiss.
 If wrong our hearts, our heads are right in vain ;
 What is a Pelham's head, to Pelham's heart ?
 Hearts are proprietors of all applause.
 Right ends and means, make wisdom : worldly-wisdom
 Is but half-witted, at its highest praise.

Let genius then despair to make thee great ;
 Not flatter station : what is station-high ?
 'Tis a proud mendicant ; it boasts, and begs ;
 It begs an alms of homage from the throng,
 And oft the throng denies its charity.
 Monarchs, and ministers, are awful names ;
 Whoever wear them, challenge our devoir.
 Religion, public order, both exact
 Eternal homage, and a supple knee,
 To beings pompously set up, to serve
 The meanest slave ; all more is merit's due,
 Her sacred and inviolable right ;
 Nor ever paid the monarch, but the man.
 Our hearts ne'er bow but to superior worth ;
 Nor ever fail of their allegiance there.
 Fools, indeed, drop the man in their account,
 And vote the mantle into majesty.
 Let the small savage boast his silver fur ;
 His royal robe unborrow'd, and unbought,
 His own, descending fairly from his sires.
 Shall man be proud to wear his livery,

And souls in ermine scorn a soul without ?
 Can place or lessen us, or aggrandize ?
 Pigmies are pigmies still, though perch'd on Alps ;
 And pyramids are pyramids in vales.
 Each man makes his own stature, builds himself :
 Virtue alone out-builds the pyramids ;
 Her monuments shall last, when Egypt's fall.

Of these sure truths dost thou demand the cause ?
 The cause is lodg'd in immortality.
 Hear, and assent. Thy bosom burns for power ;
 What station charms thee ? I'll install thee there ;
 'Tis thine. And art thou greater than before ?
 Then thou before wast something less than man.
 Has thy new post betray'd thee into pride ?
 That treacherous pride betrays thy dignity ;
 That pride defames humanity, and calls
 The being mean, which staffs or strings can raise.
 That pride, like hooded hawks, in darkness soars,
 From blindness bold, and towering to the skies.
 'Tis born of ignorance, which knows not man :
 An angel's second ; nor his second, long.
 A Nero quitting his imperial throne,
 And courting glory from the tinkling string,
 But faintly shadows an immortal soul,
 With empire's self, to pride, or rapture, fir'd.
 If nobler motives minister no cure,
 Ev'n vanity forbids thee to be vain.

High worth is elevated place : 'tis more ;
 It makes the post stand candidate for thee ;
 Makes more than monarchs, makes an honest man ;
 Though no exchequer it commands, 'tis wealth ;
 And though it wears no ribband, 'tis renown ;
 Renown, that would not quit thee, though disgrac'd,
 Nor leave thee pendent on a master's smile.
 Other ambition nature interdicts ;
 Nature proclaims it most absurd in man,
 By pointing at his origin, and end ;
 Milk and a swathe, at first ; his whole demand ;
 His whole domain, at last, a turf or stone ;
 To whom, between, a world may seem too small.

Souls truly great, dart forward on the wing
 Of just ambition, to the grand result, is that just wing

The curtain's fall; there, see the buskin'd chief
Unshod behind this momentary scene;
Reduc'd to his own stature, low or high,
As vice or virtue, sinks him, or sublimes;
And laugh at this fantastic mummery,
This antic prelude of grotesque events,
Where dwarfs are often stilted, and betray
A littleness of soul by worlds o'er-run,
And nations laid in blood. Dread sacrifice
To Christian pride! which had with horror shock'd
The darkest Pagans, offer'd to their gods.

O thou most Christian enemy to peace!
Again in arms? again provoking fate?
That prince, and that alone, is truly great,
Who draws the sword reluctant, gladly sheathes;
On empire builds what empire far outweighs,
And makes his throne a scaffold to the skies.

Why this so rare? Because forgot of all
The day of death; that venerable day,
Which sits as judge; that day, which shall pronounce
On all our days, absolve them, or condemn.
Lorenzo, never shut thy thought against it;
Be levees ne'er so full, afford it room,
And give it audience in the cabinet.
That friend consulted, (flatteries apart)
Will tell thee fair, if thou art great or mean.

To doat on aught may leave us, or be left,
Is that ambition? Then let flames descend,
Point to the centre their inverted spires,
And learn humiliation from a soul,
Which boasts her lineage from celestial fire.
Yet these are they, the world pronounces wise;
The world, which cancels Nature's right and wrong,
And casts new wisdom: ev'n the grave man lends
His solemn face to countenance the coin.
Wisdom for parts is madness for the whole.
This stamps the paradox, and gives us leave
To call the wisest weak, the richest poor,
The most ambitious, unambitious, mean;
In triumph, mean; and abject, on a throne.
Nothing can make it less than mad in man,
To put forth all his ardor, all his art.

And give his soul her full unbounded flight,
 But reaching him, who gave her wings to fly.
 When blind ambition quite mistakes her road,
 And downward pores, for that which shines above,
 Substantial happiness, and true renown;
 Then, like an idiot gazing on the brook,
 We leap at stars, and fasten in the mud;
 At glory grasp, and sink in infamy.

Ambition! powerful source of good and ill!
 Thy strength in man, like length of wing in birds,
 When disengag'd from earth, with greater ease,
 And swifter flight, transports us to the skies:
 By toys entangled, or in guilt bemir'd,
 It turns a curse; it is our chain and scourge,
 In this dark dungeon, where confin'd we lie,
 Close-grated by the sordid bars of sense;
 All prospect of eternity shut out;
 And, but for execution, ne'er set free.

With error in ambition justly charg'd,
 Find we Lorenzo wiser in his wealth?
 What if thy rental I reform? and draw
 An inventory new to set thee right?
 Where, thy true treasure? Gold says, "Not in me!"
 And, "Not in me," the diamond. Gold is poor;
 India's insolvent: seek it in thyself,
 Seek in thy naked self, and find it there;
 In being so descended, torn'd, and how'd;
 Sky-born, sky-guided, sky-returning race:
 Erect, immortal, rational, divine!
 In senses, which inherit earth, and heavens;
 Enjoy the various riches nature yields;
 Far nobler; give the riches they enjoy;
 Give taste to fruits; and harmony to groves;
 Their radiant beams to gold, and gold's bright sire:
 Take in, at once, the landscape of the world,
 At a small inlet, which a grain might close,
 And half create the wondrous world they see.
 Our senses, as our reason, are divine.
 But for the magic organ's powerful charm,
 Earth were a rude, uncolor'd chaos, still.
 Objects are but the occasion; ours the exploit;
Ours is the cloth, the pencil, and the paint.

Which nature's admirable picture draws ;
 And beautifies creation's ample dome.
 Like Milton's Eve, when gazing on the lake,
 Man makes the matchless image, man admires.
 Say then, shall man, his thoughts all sent abroad,
 (Superior wonders in himself forgot,)
 His admiration waste on objects round,
 When Heaven makes him the soul of all he sees ?
 Absurd ! not rare ! so great, so mean, is man.

What wealth in senses such as these ! What wealth
 In fancy, fit'd to form a fairer scene
 Than sense surveys ! In memory's firm record,
 Which, should it perish, could this world recall
 From the dark shadows of o'erwhelming years !
 In colors fresh, originally bright,
 Preserve its portrait, and report its fate !
 What wealth in intellect, that sovereign power !
 Which sense, and fancy, summons to the bar ;
 Interrogates, approves, or reprehends ;
 And from the mass those underlings import,
 From their materials sifted, and refin'd,
 And in truth's balance accurately weigh'd ;
 Forms art, and science, government, and law ;
 The solid basis, and the beauteous frame,
 The vitals, and the grace of civil life !
 And manners (sad exception !) set aside,
 Strikes out, with master-hand, a copy fair
 Of his own, whose indulgent thought,
 Long, long, ere Chaos teem'd, plann'd human bliss.

What wealth in souls that soar, dive, range around,
 Disdaining limit, or from place, or time ;
 And hear at once, in thought extensive, hear
 The almighty fiat, and the trumpet's sound !
 Bold, on creation's outside walk, and view
 What was, and is, and more than e'er shall be ;
 Commanding, with omnipotence of thought,
 Creations new in fancy's field to rise ;
 Souls, that can grasp whate'er the Almighty made,
 And wander wild through things impossible !
 What wealth, in faculties of endless growth,
 In quenchless passions violent to crave,
 In liberty to choose, in pow'r to reach,

And in duration, (how thy riches rise !)
Duration to perpetuate—boundless bliss !

Ask you, what power resides in feeble man
That bliss to gain ? Is virtue's then, unknown ?
Virtue, our present peace, our future prize.
Man's unprecious, natural estate,
Improveable at will, in virtue lies ;
Its tenure sure ; its income is divine.
High-built abundance, heap on heap ! for what ?
To breed new wants and beggar us the more ;
Then, make a richer scramble for the throng.
Soon as this feeble pulse, which leaps so long
Almost by miracle, is tir'd with play,
Like rubbish from exploding engines thrown,
Our magazines of hoarded trifles fly ;
Fly diverse ; fly to foreigners, to foes ;
New masters court, and call the former, fools
(How justly !) for dependence on their stay.
Wide scatter, first, our play-things ; then, our dust.

Dost court abundance for the sake of peace ?
Learn, and lament thy self-defeated scheme ;
Riches enable to be richer still ;
And, richer still, what mortal can resist ?
Thus wealth (a cruel task-master !) enjoins
New toils, succeeding toils, an endless train !
And murders peace, which taught it first to shine.
The poor are half as wretched, as the rich ;
Whose proud and painful privilege it is,
At once, to bear a double load of woe ;
To feel the stings of envy, and of want,
Outrageous want ! both Indies cannot cure.

A competence is vital to content.
Much wealth is corpulence, if not disease ;
Sick, or incumber'd, is our happiness.
A competence is all we can enjoy.
O be content, where heaven can give no more !
More, like a flash of water from a lock,
Quickens our spirit's movement for an hour ;
But soon its force is spent, nor rise our joys
Above our native temper's common stream.
Hence disappointment lurks in ev'ry prize,
As bees in flowers ; and stings us with success.

The rich man, who denies it, proudly feigns ;
 Nor knows the wise are privy to the lie ;
 Much learning shews how little mortals know ;
 Much wealth, how little worldlings can enjoy :
 At best, it babies us with endless toys,
 And keeps us children till we drop to dust.
 As monkeys at a mirror stand amaz'd,
 They fail to find, what they so plainly see ;
 Thus men, in shining riches, see the face
 Of happiness, nor know it is a shade ;
 But gaze, and touch, and peep, and peep again,
 And wish, and wonder it is absent still.

How few can rescue opulence from want !
 Who lives to nature, rarely can be poor ;
 Who lives to fancy, never can be rich.
 Poor is the man in debt ; the man of gold,
 In debt to fortune, trembles at her power.
 The man of reason smiles at her, and death.
 O what a patrimony this ! A being
 Of such inherent strength and majesty,
 Not worlds possess can raise it ; worlds destroy'd
 Can't injure ; which holds on its glorious course,
 When thine, O Nature ! ends ; too blest to mourn
 Creation's obsequies. What treasure, this !
 The monarch is a beggar to the man.

IMMORTAL ! ages past, yet nothing gone !
 Morn without eve ! a race without a goal !
 Unshorten'd by progression infinite !
 Futurity for ever future ! life
 Beginning still, where computation ends !
 'Tis the description of a deity !
 'Tis the description of the meanest slave :
 The meanest slave dares then Lorenzo scorn ?
 The meanest slave thy sov'reign glory shares.
 Proud youth ! fastidious of the lower world !
 Man's lawful pride includes humility ;
 Stoops to the lowest ; is too great to find
 Inferiors ; all immortal ! brothers all !
 Proprietors eternal of thy love.

Immortal ! What can strike the sense so strong,
 As this the soul ? It thunders to the thought ;
 Reason amazes ; gratitude o'erwhelms ;

No more we slumber on the brink of fate ;
 Rous'd at the sound, the exulting soul ascends,
 And breathes her native air ; an air that feeds
 Ambitions high, and fans ethereal fires ;
 Quick-kindles all that is divine within us ;
 Nor leaves one loitering thought beneath the stars.

Has not Lorenzo's bosom caught the flame ?
 Immortal ! Were but one immortal, how Would others envy ! How would thrones adore !
 Because 'tis common, is the blessing lost ?
 How this ties up the bounteous hand of heaven !
 O vain, vain, vain ! all else—Eternity !

A glorious, and a needful refuge, that,
 From vile imprisonment in abject views.
 'Tis immortality, 'tis that alone,

Amid life's pains, abasements, emptiness,
 The soul can comfort, elevate, and fill.
 That only, and that amply, this performs ;
 Lifts us above life's pains, her joys above ;
 Their terror those ; and these their lustre lose ;
 Eternity depending covers all ;
 Eternity depending all atchieves ;

Sets earth at distance ; casts her into shades ;
 Blends her distinctions ; abrogates her pow'rs :
 The low, the lofty, joyous, and severe,
 Fortune's dread frowns, and fascinating smiles,
 Make one promiscuous and neglected heap,
 The man beneath ; if I may call him man,
 Whom immortality's full force inspires.
 Nothing terrestrial touches his high thought ;
 Suns shine unseen, and thunders roll unheard,
 By minds quite conscious of their high descent,
 Their present province, and their future prize ;
 Divinely darting upward ev'ry wish,
 Warm on the wing, in glorious absence lost.

Doubt you this truth ? Why labors your belief ?
 If earth's whole orb, by some due-distant eye
 Were seen at once, her towering Alps would sink,
 And levell'd Atlas leave an even sphere.

Thus earth, and all that earthly minds admire,
 Is swallow'd in eternity's vast round.
 To that stupendous view, when souls awake,

So large of late, so mountainous to man,
Time's toys subside ; and equal all below.

Enthusiastic, this ? Then all are weak,
But rank enthusiasts. To this godlike height
Some souls have soar'd ; or martyrs ne'er had bled.
And all may do, what has by man been done.
Who, beaten by these sublunary storms,
Boundless, interminable joys can weigh,
Unraptur'd, unexalted, uninflam'd ?
What slave unblest, who from to-morrow's dawn
Expects an empire ? He forgets his chain,
And, thron'd in thought, his absent sceptre waxes.

And what a sceptre waits us ! what a throne !
Her own immense appointments to compute,
Or comprehend her high prerogatives,
In this her dark minority, how toils,
How vainly pants, the human soul divine ?
Too great the bounty seems for earthly joy :
What heart but trembles at so strange a bliss ?

In spite of all the truths the muse has sung,
Ne'er to be priz'd enough ! enough revolv'd !
Are there who wrap the world so close about them,
They see no farther than the clouds ? and dance
On heedless vanity's fantastic toe,
Till, stumbling at a straw, in their career,
Headlong they plunge, where end both dance and song
Are there, Lorenzo ? Is it possible ?
Are there on earth (let me not call them men)
Who lodge a soul immortal in their breasts ;
Unconscious as the mountain of its ore ;
Or rock, of its inestimable gem ?
When rocks shall melt, and mountains vanish, these Shall know their treasure ; treasure, then, no more.

Are there (still more amazing !) who resist
The rising thought ? who smother, in its birth,
The glorious truth ? who struggle to be brutes ?
Who through this bosom-barrier burst their way ?
And, with revers'd ambition, strive to sink ?
Who labor downwards, through the opposing powers
Of instinct, reason, and the world against them,
To dismal hopes, and shelter in the shock
Of endless night ? night darker than the grave.

Who slight the proofs of immortality?
 With horrid zeal, and execrable arts,
 Work all their engines, level their black fires,
 To blot from man this attribute divine,
 (Than vital blood far dearer to the wise)
 Blasphemers, and rank atheists to themselves?

To contradict them, see all Nature rise!
 What object, what event, the moon beneath,
 But argues, or endears, an after-scene!
 To reason proves, or weds it to desire!
 All things proclaim it needful; some advance
 One precious step beyond, and prove it sure.
 A thousand arguments swarm round my pen,
 From Heaven, and earth, and man. Indulge a few,
 By Nature, as her common habit, worn;
 So pressing Providence a truth to teach,
 Which truth untaught, all other truths were vain.

THOU! whose all-providential eye surveys,
 Whose hand directs, whose spirit fills and warms
 Creation, and holds empire far beyond!
 Eternity's inhabitant august!
 Of two eternities amazing Lord!
 One past, ere man's, or angel's, had begun;
 Aid! while I rescue from the foe's assault
 Thy glorious immortality in man:
 A theme for ever, and for all, of weight,
 Of moment infinite! but relish'd most
 By those who love thee most, who most adore.
 Nature, thy daughter, ever-changing birth
 Of thee the great Immutable, to man
 Speaks wisdom; is his oracle supreme;
 And he who most consults her, is most wise.
 Lorenzo, to this heavenly Delphos haste;
 And come back all-immortal; all-divine:
 Look Nature through, 'tis revolution all;
 All change, no death. Day follows night; and night
 The dying day; stars rise, and set, and rise;
 Earth takes the example. See, the summer gay,
 With her green chaplet, and ambrosial flowers,
 Droops into pallid autumn: Winter deep
 Horrid with frost, and turbulent with storm,
 Blows autumn, and his golden fruits, to earth.

Then melts into the spring : Soft spring, with breath
 Favonian, from warm chambers of the south,
 Recals the first. All, to reffourish, fades.
 As in a wheel, all sinks, to reascend.
 Emblems of man, who passes, not expires.

With this minute distinction, emblems just,
 Nature revolves, but man advances ; both
 Eternal, that a circle, this a line.

That gravitates, this soars. The aspiring soul
 Ardent, and tremulous, like flame, ascends ;
 Zeal, and humility, her wings to Heaven.

The world of matter with its various forms,
 All dies into new life. Life born from death
 Rolls the vast mass, and shall forever roll.

No single atom, once in being, lost,
 With change of counsel charges the most High.

What hence infers Lorenzo ? Can it be ?
 Matter immortal ? And shall spirit die ?
 Above the nobler, shall less noble rise ?
 Shall man alone, for whom all else revives,
 No resurrection know ? Shall man alone,
 Imperial man ! be sown in barren ground,
 Less privileg'd than grain, on which he feeds ?
 Is man, in whom alone is power to prize
 The bliss of being, or with previous pain
 Deplore its period, by the spleen of fate,
 Severely doom'd death's single unredeem'd ?

If Nature's revolution speaks aloud,
 In her gradation, hear her louder still.

Look Nature through, 'tis neat gradation all.

By what minute degrees her scale ascends !

Each middle nature join'd at each extreme,

To that above it join'd, to that beneath.

Parts, into parts reciprocally shot,

Abhor divorce : What love of union reigns !

Here, dormant matter waits a call to life ;

Half-life, half-death, join there ; here, life and sense ;

There, sense from reason steals a glimmering ray ;

Reason shines out in man. But how preserv'd

The chain unbroken upward, to the realms

Of incorporeal life ; those realms of bliss,

Where death hath no dominion ? Grant a make

Half-mortal, half-immortal; earthy, part;
 And part ethereal; grant the soul of man
 Eternal; or in man the series ends.
 Wide yawns the gap; connection is no more;
 Check'd reason halts; her next step wants support;
 Striving to climb, she tumbles from her scheme;
 A scheme, analogy pronounc'd so true;
 Analogy, man's surest guide below.

Thus far, all Nature calls on thy belief.
 And will Lorenzo, careless of the call,
 False attestation on all Nature charge,
 Rather than violate his league with death?
 Renounce his reason, rather than renounce
 The dust belov'd, and run the risk of Heaven?
 O what indignity to deathless souls!
 What treason to the majesty of man!
 Of man immortal! Hear the lofty style:

"If so decreed, the Almighty will be done.
 "Let earth dissolve, yon ponderous orbs descend,
 "And grind us into dust: The soul is safe;
 "The man emerges; mounts above the wreck,
 "As towering flame from Nature's funeral pyre;
 "O'er devastation, as a gainer, smiles;
 "His charter, his inviolable rights,
 "Well-pleas'd to learn from thunder's impotence,
 "Death's pointless darts, and hell's defeated storms."

But these chimeras touch not thee, Lorenzo!
 The glories of the world, thy sevenfold shield.
 Other ambition than of crowns in air,
 And superlunary felicities,
 Thy bosom warm. I'll cool it, if I can;
 And turn those glories that enchant, against thee.
 What ties thee to this life, proclaims the next.
 If wise, the cause that wounds thee is thy cure.

Come, my ambitious! let us mount together,
 (To mount Lorenzo never can refuse;)
 And from the clouds, where pride delights to dwell,
 Look down on earth.—What seest thou? wonderful things!

*Terrestrial wonders, that eclipse the skies.
 What lengths of labor'd lands! what loaded seas!
 Loaded by men, for pleasure, wealth, or war!*

Seas, winds, and planets, into service brought,
His art acknowledge, and promote his ends.
Nor can the eternal rocks his will withstand ;
What levell'd mountains ! and what lifted vales !
O'er vales and mountains sumptuous cities swell,
And gild our landscape with their glittering spires.
Some 'mid the wondering waves majestic rise ;
And Neptune holds a mirror to their charms.
Far greater still ! (what cannot mortal might ?)
See, wide dominions ravish'd from the deep !
The narrow'd deep with indignation foams.
Or southward turn, to delicate, and grand ;
The finer arts there ripen in the sun.
How the tal' temples, as to meet their gods,
Ascend the skies ! the proud triumphal arch
Shews us half heaven beneath its ample bend,
High thro' 'mid air, here, streams are taught to flow ;
Whole rivers, there, lay'd by in basons, sleep.
Here, plains turn oceans ; there, vast oceans join
Thro' kingdoms channel'd deep from shore to shore ;
And chang'd creation takes its face from man.
Beats thy brave breast for formidable scenes,
Where fame and empire wait upon the sword ?
See fields in blood ; hear naval thunders rise ;
Britannia's voice ! that awes the world to peace.
How yon enormous mole projecting breaks
The mid-sea, furious waves ! their roar amidst,
Out-speaks the Deity, and says, " O main !
" Thus far, nor farther ; few restraints obey."
Earth's disembowel'd ! measur'd are the skies !
Stars are detected in their deep recess !
Creation widens ! vanquish'd nature yields !
Her secrets are extorted ! art prevails !
What monument of genius, spirit, power !
And now, Lorenzo, raptur'd at this scene,
Whose glories render Heaven superfluous ! say,
Whose footsteps these ?—Immortals have been here.
Could less than souls immortal this have done ?
Earth cover'd o'er with proofs of souls immortal ;
And proofs of immortality forgot.

To flatter thy grand foible, I confess,
These are ambition's works : and these are great :

But this, the least immortal souls can do ;
Transcend them all.—But what can these transcend !
Dost ask me, what ?—One sigh for the distrest.
What then for infidels ? A deeper sigh.
'Tis moral grandeur makes the mighty man :
How little they, who think aught great below !
All our ambitions death defeats, but one ;
And that it crowns.—Here cease we : but, ere long,
More powerful proof shall take the field against thee,
Stronger than death, and smiling at the tomb.

END OF NIGHT THE SIXTH.

PREFACE TO PART II.

AS we are at war with the power, it were well if we were at war with the manners, of France. A land of levity, is a land of guilt. A serious mind is the native soil of every virtue; and the single character that does true honor to mankind. The soul's immortality has been the favorite theme with the serious of all ages. Nor is it strange; it is a subject by far the most interesting, and important, that can enter the mind of man. Of highest moment this subject always was, and always will be. Yet this its highest moment seems to admit of increase at this day; a sort of occasional importance is superadded to the natural weight of it; if that opinion, which is advanced in the preface to the preceding Night, be just. It is there supposed, that all our leaders, whatever scheme for argument's sake, and to keep themselves in countenance, they patronize, are betrayed into their deplorable error, by some doubt of their immortality, at the bottom. And the more I consider this point, the more I am persuaded of the truth of that opinion. Though the distrust of a futurity is a strange error; yet it is an error into which bad men may naturally be distressed. For it is impossible to bid defiance to final ruin, without some refuge in imagination, some presumption of escape. And what presumption is there? There are but two in nature; but two within the compass of human thought. And these are, That either GOD will not, or cannot punish. Considering the divine attributes, the first is too gross to be digested by our strongest wishes. And, since omnipotence is as much a divine attribute as holiness, that GOD cannot punish, is as absurd a supposition as the former. GOD certainly can punish, as long as wicked men exist. In non-existence, therefore, is their only refuge; and, consequently non-existence is their strongest wish. And strong wishes have a strange influence on our opinions; they bias the judgment, in a manner, almost incredible. And since on this member of their alternative, there are some very small appearances in their favor, and none at all on the other, they catch at this reed, they lay hold on this chimera, to save themselves from the shock, and horror, of an immediate, and absolute despair.

On reviewing my subject, by the light which this argument, and others of like tendency throw upon it, I was more inclined than ever to pursue it, as it appeared to me to strike directly at the main root of all our infidelity. In the following pages, it is accordingly, pursued at large; and some arguments for immortality, new, (at least to me) are ventured on in them. There also the writer has made an attempt to set the gross absurdities and horrors of annihilation in a fuller and more affecting view, than is, (I think) to be met with elsewhere.

The gentlemen for whose sake this attempt was chiefly made, profess great admiration for the wisdom of heathen antiquity: What pity it is, they are not sincere! If they were sincere, how would it mortify them to consider, with what contempt and abhorrence, their notions would have been received by those whom they so much admire? What degree of contempt and abhorrence would fall to their share, may be conjectured by the following matter of fact (in my opinion) extremely memorable. Of all their heathen worthies, Socrates ('tis well known) was the most guarded, dispassionate, and composed; Yet this great master of temper was angry; and angry at his last hour; and angry with his friend; and angry for what deserved acknowledgment; angry, for a right and tender instance of true friendship towards him. Is not this surprising? What could be the cause! The cause was for his honor; it was a truly noble, though, perhaps, a too punctilious regard for immortality: For his friend asking him, with such an affectionate concern as became a friend, "Where he should deposit his remains," it was resented by Socrates; as implying a dishonorable supposition, that he could be so mean, as to have regard for any thing, even in himself, that was not immortal.

This fact, well considered, would make our infidels withdraw their admiration from Socrates; or make them endeavor, by their imitation of this illustrious example, to share his glory: And consequently, it would incline them to peruse the following pages with candor and impartiality. Which is all I desire; and that, for their sakes: For I am persuaded, that an unprejudiced infidel, must, necessarily, receive some advantageous impressions from them.

THE COMPLAINT.

NIGHT VII.

BEING THE SECOND PART
OF THE INFIDEL RECLAIMED.

Containing,
The Nature, Proof, and Importance of Immortality.

HEAVEN gives the needful, but neglected, call.
What day, what hour, but knocks at human hearts,

To wake the soul to sense of future scenes ?
Deaths stand, like Mercuries in every way ;
And kindly point us to our journey's end.
Pope, who couldst make immortals ; art thou dead ?
I give thee joy : nor will I take my leave ;
So soon to follow. Man but dives in death ;
Dives from the sun, in fairer day to rise ;
The grave, his subterranean road to bliss.
Yes, infinite indulgence plann'd it so ;
Through various parts our glorious story runs ;
Time gives the preface, endless age unrolls
The volume (ne'er unroll'd) of human fate.

This earth and skies already have proclaim'd.
The world's a prophecy of worlds to come ;*

* Night the Sixth.

And who, what God foretels (who speaks in things,
Still louder than in words) shall dare deny ?
If Nature's arguments appear too weak,
Turn a new leaf, and stronger read in man.
If man sleeps on, untaught by what he sees,
Can he prove infidel to what he feels ?
He, whose blind thought futurity denies,
Unconscious bears, Bellerophon ! like thee,
His own indictment ; he condemns himself ;
Who reads his bosom, reads immortal life ;
Or, Nature, there, imposing on her sons,
Has written fables ; man was made a lie.

Why discontent for ever harbor'd there ?
Incurable consumption of our peace !
Resolve me, why, the cottager, and king,
He whom sea-sever'd realms obey, and he
Who steals his whole dominion from the waste,
Repelling winter blasts with mud and straw,
Disquieted alike, draw sigh for sigh,
In fate so distant, in complaint so near ?

Is it, that things terrestrial can't content ?
Deep in rich pasture, will thy flocks complain ?
Not so ; but to their master is deny'd
To share their sweet serene. Man, ill at ease,
In this, not his own place, this foreign field,
Where Nature foddors him with other food,
Than was ordain'd his cravings to suffice,
Poor in abundance, famish'd at a feast,
Sighs on for something more, when most enjoy'd.
Is heaven then kinder to thy flocks than thee ?
Not so ; thy pasture richer, but remote ;
In part, remote ; for that remoter part
Man bleats from instinct, though perhaps debauch'd
By sense, his reason sleeps, nor dreams the cause.
The cause how obvious, when his reason wakes !
His grief is but his grandeur in disguise ;
And discontent is immortality.

Shall sons of Æther, shall the blood of heaven,
Set up their hopes on earth, and stable here,
With brutal acquiescence in the mire ?
Lorenzo ! no ! they shall be nobly pain'd ;
The glorious foreigners distress, shall sigh

On thrones ; and thou congratulate the sigh :
 Man's misery declares him born for bliss ;
 His anxious heart asserts the truth I sing,
 And gives the sceptic in his head the lie.

Our heads, our hearts, our passions, and our powers,
 Speak the same language, call us to the skies :
 Unripen'd these in this inclement clime,
 Scarce rise above conjecture, and mistake ;
 And for this land of trifles those too strong
 Tumultuous rise, and tempest human life :
 What prize on earth can pay us for the storm ?
 Meet objects for our passions heaven ordain'd,
 Objects that challenge all their fire, and leave
 No fault, but in defect : blest heaven ! avert
 A bounded ardor for unbounded bliss ;
 O for a bliss unbounded ! Far beneath
 A soul immortal, is a mortal joy.
 Nor are our powers to perish immature ;
 But, after feeble effort here, beneath
 A brighter sun, and in a nobler soil,
 Transplanted from this sublunary bed,
 Shall flourish fair, and put forth all their bloom.

Reason progressive, instinct is complete ;
 Swift instinct leaps ; slow reason feebly climbs.
 Brutes soon their zenith reach ; their little all
 Flows in at once ; in ages they no more
 Could know, or do, or covet, or enjoy.
 Were man to live coëval with the sun,
 The patriarch pupil would be learning still ;
 Yet, dying, leave his lesson half-unlearn'd.
 Men perish in advance, as if the sun
 Should set ere noon, in eastern oceans drown'd ;
 If fit, with dim, illustrious to compare,
 The sun's meridian, with the soul of man.
 To man, why step-dame Nature ! so severe ?
 Why thrown aside thy master-piece half-wrought,
 While meaner efforts thy last hand enjoy ?
 Or, if abortively poor man must die,
 Nor reach, what reach he might, why die in dread ?
 Why curst with foresight ? Wise to misery ?
 Why of his proud prerogative the prey ?
 Why less pre-eminent in rank, than pain ?

His immortality alone can tell;
Full ample fund to balance all amiss,
And turn the scale in favor of the just!

His immortality alone can solve
That darkest of ænigmas, human hope;
Of all the darkest, if at death we die.
Hope, eager hope, the assassin of our joy,
All present blessings treading under-foot,
Is scarce a milder tyrant than despair.
With no past toils content, still planning new,
Hope turns us o'er to death alone for ease.
Possession, why, more tasteless than pursuit?
Why is a wish far dearer than a crown?
That wish accomplish'd, why, the grave of bliss?
Because, in the great future bury'd deep,
Beyond our plans of empire, and renown,
Lies all that man with ardor should pursue;
And HE who made him, bent him to the right.

Man's heart the Almighty to the future sets,
By secret and inviolable springs;
And makes his hope his sublunary joy.
Man's heart eats all things, and is hungry still;
"More, more!" the glutton cries: for something
So rages appetite, if man can't mount,
He will descend. He starves on the possess.
Hence, the world's master, from ambition's spire,
In Caprea plung'd; and div'd beneath the brute.
In that rank sty why wallow'd empire's son
Supreme? because he could no higher fly;
His riot was ambition in despair.
Old Rome consulted birds; Lorenzo! thou,
With more success, the flight of hope survey;
Of restless hope, for ever on the wing.
High-perch'd o'er every thought that falcon sits,
To fly at all that rises in her sight;
And, never stooping, but to mount again
Next moment, she betrays her aim's mistake,
And owns her quarry lodg'd beyond the grave.
There should it fail us (it must fail us there,
If being fails) more mournful riddles rise,
And virtue vies with hope in mystery.
Why virtue? Where its praise, its being, And!

Virtue is true self-interest pursu'd :
 What true self-interest of quite-mortal man ?
 To close with all that makes him happy here.
 If vice (as sometimes) is our friend on earth,
 Then vice is virtue ; 'tis our sovereign good.
 In self-applause is virtue's golden prize ;
 No self-applause attends it on thy scheme :
 Whence self-applause ? From conscience of the right.
 And what is right, but means of happiness ?
 No means of happiness when virtue yields ;
 That basis failing, falls the building too,
 And lays in ruin every virtuous joy.

The rigid guardian of a blameless heart,
 So long rever'd, so long reputed wise,
 Is weak ; with rank knight-errantries o'er-run.
 Why beats thy bosom with illustrious dreams
 Of self-exposure, laudable, and great ?
 Of gallant enterprize, and glorious death ?
 Die for thy country ?—Thou romantic fool !
 Seize, seize the plank thyself, and let her sink :
 Thy country ! what to thee ?—The Godhead ; what ?
 (I speak with awe !) though he should bid thee bleed ;
 If, with thy blood, thy final hope is spilt,
 Nor can Omnipotence reward the blow ;
 Be deaf ; preserve thy being ; disobey.

Nor is it disobedience : know, Lorenzo !
 Whate'er the Almighty's subsequent command,
 His first command is this :—" Man, love thyself."
 In this alone, free-agents are not free.
 Existence is the basis, bliss the prize ;
 If virtue costs existence, 'tis a crime ;
 Bold violation of our law supreme,
 Black suicide : though nations, which consult
 Their gain, at thy expence, resound applause.

Since virtue's recompence is doubtful, here,
 If man dies wholly, well may we demand,
 Why is man suffer'd to be good in vain ?
 Why to be good in vain, is man enjoin'd ?
 Why to be good in vain, is man betray'd ?
 Betray'd by traitors lodg'd in his own breast,
 If sweet complacencies from virtue felt ?
 Why whispers Nature lies on virtue's part ?

Or if blind instinct (which assumes the name
Of sacred conscience) plays the fool in man,
Why reason made accomplice in the cheat?
Why are the wisest loudest in her praise?
Can man by reason's beam be led astray?
Or, at his peril, imitate his God?
Since virtue sometimes ruins us on earth,
Or both are true; or, man survives the grave.

Or man survives the grave, or own Lorenzo,
Thy boast supreme, a wild absurdity.
Dauntless thy spirit; cowards are thy scorn.
Grant man immortal, and thy scorn is just.
The man immortal, rationally brave,
Dares rush on death—because he cannot die.
But if man loses all, when life is lost,
He lives a coward, or a fool expires.
A daring infidel, (and such there are,
From pride, example, lucre, rage, revenge,
Or pure heroical defect of thought)
Of all earth's madmen, most deserves a chain.

When to the grave we follow the renown'd
For valor, virtue, science, all we love,
And all we praise; for worth, whose noon-tide b
Enabling us to think in higher style,
Mends our ideas of ethereal powers;
Dream we, that lustre of the moral world
Goes out in stench, and rottenness the close?
Why was he wise to know, and warm to praise,
And strenuous to transcribe in human life,
The mind Almighty? Could it be, that fate,
Just when the lineaments began to shine,
And dawn the Deity, should snatch the draught,
With night eternal blot it out, and give
The skies alarm, lest angels too might die?

If human souls, why not angelic too
Extinguish'd? and a solitary God,
O'er ghastly ruin, frowning from his throne?
Shall we this moment gaze on God in man?
The next, lose man for ever in the dust?
From dust we disengage, or man mistakes;
And there, where least his judgment fears a flaw
Wisdom and worth, how boldly he comments

Wisdom and worth, are sacred names ; rever'd,
 Where not embrac'd ; applauded ! deify'd !
 Why not compassion'd too ? If spirits die,
 Both are calamities, inflicted both
 To make us but more wretched : Wisdom's eye
 Acute, for what ? To spy more miseries ;
 And worth so recompens'd, new points their stings.
 Or man surmounts the grave, or gain is loss,
 And worth exalted humbles us the more.
 Thou wilt not patronize a scheme that makes Weakness, and vice, the refuge of mankind.

“ Has virtue, then, no joys ? ” — Yes, joys dear-bought ;

Talk ne'er so long, in this imperfect state,
 Virtue, and vice, are at eternal war.
 Virtue's a combat ; and who fights for nought ?
 Or for precarious, or for small reward ?
 Who virtue's self-reward so loud resound,
 Would take degrees angelic here below,
 And virtue, while they compliment, betray,
 By feeble motives, and unfaithful guards.
 The crown, the unfading crown, her soul inspires :
 'Tis that, and that alone, can countervail
 The body's treach'ries, and the world's assaults ;
 On earth's poor pay our famish'd virtue dies.
 Truth incontestable ! In spite of all
 A Bayle has preach'd, or a Voltaire believ'd.

In man the more we dive, the more we see
 Heaven's signet stamping an immortal make.
 Dive to the bottom of his soul, the base
 Sustaining all ; what find we ? Knowledge, love.
 As light, and heat, essential to the sun,
 These to the soul. And why, if souls expire ?
 How little lovely here ? How little known ?
 Small knowledge we dig up with endless toil !
 And love unfeign'd may purchase perfect hate.
 Why starv'd, on earth, our angel-appetites ;
 While brutal are indulg'd their fulsome fill ?
 Were then capacities divine conferr'd
 As a mock-diadem, in savage sport,
 Rank insult of our pompous poverty,
 Which reaps but pain, from seeming claims so fair ?

In future age lies no redress ? And shuts
 Eternity the door on our complaint ?
 If so, for what strange ends were mortals made !
 The worst to wallow, and the best to weep ;
 The man who merits most, must most complain.
 Can we conceive a disregard in heaven,
 What the worst perpetrate, or best endure ?

This cannot be. To love, and know, in man
 Is boundless appetite, and boundless pow'r ;
 And these demonstrate boundless objects too.
 Objects, powers, appetites, heaven suits in all ;
 Nor, Nature through, e'er violates this sweet,
 Eternal concord, on her tuneful string.
 Is man the sole exception from her laws ?
 Eternity struck off from human hope,
 (I speak with truth, but veneration too)
 Man is a monster, the reproach of heaven,
 A stain, a dark impenetrable cloud
 On Nature's beauteous aspect ; and deforms,
 (Amazing blot !) deforms her with her lord.
 If such is man's allotment, what is heaven ?
 Or own the soul immortal, or blaspheme.

Or own the soul immortal, or invert
 All order. Go, mock-majesty ! go, man !
 And bow to thy superiors of the stall ;
 Through every scene of sense superior far :
 They graze the turf untill'd ; they drink the stream
 Unbrew'd, and ever full, and un-embitter'd
 With doubts, fears, fruitless hopes, regrets, despairs ;
 Mankind's peculiar ! reason's precious dow'r !
 No foreign clime they ransack for their robes ;
 Nor brothers cite to the litigious bar ;
 Their good is good intire, unmix'd, unmarr'd ;
 They find a paradise in ev'ry field,
 On boughs forbidden where no curses hang :
 Their ill, no more than strikes the sense ; unstretch'd
 By previous dread, or murmur in the rear :
 When the worst comes, it comes unfear'd ; one stroke
 Begins, and ends, their woe : they die but once ;
 Blest, incommunicable privilege ! for which
 Proud man, who rules the globe, and reads the stars
 Philosopher, or hero, sighs in vain.

Account for this prerogative in brutes.
 No day, no glimpse of day, to solve the knot,
 But what beams on it from eternity.
 O sole and sweet solution ! That unties
 The difficult, and softens the severe ;
 The cloud on nature's beauteous face dispels ;
 Restores bright order ; casts the brute beneath ;
 And re-inthrones us in supremacy
 Of joy, ev'n here : admit immortal life,
 And virtue is knight-errantry no more ;
 Each virtue brings in hand a golden dower,
 Far richer in reversion : hope exults ;
 And though much bitter in our cup is thrown,
 Predominates, and gives the taste of heaven.
 O wherefore is the DEITY so kind ?
 Astonishing beyond astonishment !
 Heaven our reward—for heaven enjoy'd below.

Still unsubdu'd thy stubborn heart ?—For there
 The traitor lurks, who doubts the truth I sing.
 Reason is guiltless ; will alone rebels.
 What, in that stubborn heart, if I should find
 New, unexpected witnesses against thee ?
 Ambition, pleasure, and the love of gain !
 Canst thou suspect, that these, which make the soul
 The slave of earth, should own her heir of heaven ?
 Canst thou suspect what makes us disbelieve
 Our immortality, should prove it sure ?

First, then, ambition summon to the bar.
 Ambition's shame, extravagance, disgust,
 And inextinguishable Nature, speak.
 Each much deposes ; hear them in their turn.

Thy soul, how passionately fond of fame !
 How anxious, that fond passion to conceal !
 We blush, detected in designs on praise,
 Though for best deeds, and from the best of men ;
 And why ? Because immortal. Art divine
 Has made the body tutor to the soul :
 Heaven kindly gives our blood a moral flow ;
 Bids it ascend the glowing cheek, and there
 Upbraid that little heart's inglorious aim,
 Which stoops to court a character from man ;

While o'er us, in tremendous judgment sit
Far more than man, with endless praise, and blame.

Ambition's boundless appetite out-speaks
The verdict of its shame. When souls take fire
At high presumptions of their own desert,
One age is poor applause ; the mighty shout,
The thunder by the living few begun,
Late time must echo ; worlds unborn, resound.
We wish our names eternally to live :
Wild dream ! which ne'er had haunted human thought,
Had not our natures been eternal too.
Instinct points out an interest in hereafter ;
But our blind reason sees not where it lies ;
Or, seeing, gives the substance for the shade.

Fame is the shade of immortality,
And in itself a shadow. Soon as caught,
Contemn'd ; it shrinks to nothing in the grasp.
Consult the ambitious, 'tis ambition's cure.
" And is this all ? " cry'd Cæsar at his height,
Disgusted. This third proof ambition brings
Of immortality. The first in fame,
Observe him near, your envy will abate :
Sham'd at the disproportion vast, between
The passion, and the purchase, he will sigh
At such success, and blush at his renown.
And why ? Because far richer prize invites
His heart ; far more illustrious glory calls ;
It calls in whispers, yet the deafest hear.

And can ambition a fourth proof supply ?
It can, and stronger than the former three ;
Yet quite o'erlook'd by some reputed wise.
Though disappointments in ambition pain,
And though success disgusts ; yet still, Lorenzo !
In vain we strive to pluck it from our hearts ;
By nature planted for the noblest ends.
Absurd the fam'd advice to Pyrrhus giv'n,
More prais'd than ponder'd ; specious, but unsound ;
Sooner that hero's sword the world had quell'd,
Than reason, his ambition. Man must soar.
An obstinate activity within,
An insuppressive spring, will toss him up
In spite of fortune's load. Not kings alone,

Each villager has his ambition too ;
 No sultan prouder than his fetter'd slave :
 Slaves build their little Babylons of straw,
 Echo the proud Assyrian, in their hearts,
 And cry,—“ Behold the wonders of my might !”
 And why ? Because immortal as their lord ;
 And souls-immortal must for ever heave
 At something great ; the glitter, or the gold ;
 The praise of mortals, or the praise of heaven.

Nor absolutely vain is human praise,
 When human is supported by divine.
 I'll introduce Lorenzo to himself :
 Pleasure and pride (bad masters !) share our hearts.
 As love of pleasure is ordain'd to guard
 And feed our bodies, and extend our race ;
 The love of praise is planted to protect
 And propagate the glories of the mind.
 What is it, but the love of praise, inspires,
 Matures, refines, embellishes, exalts,
 Earth's happiness ? From that, the delicate,
 The grand, the marvellous, of civil life.
 Want and convenience, under-workers, lay
 The basis, on which love of glory builds.
 Nor is thy life, O virtue ! less in debt
 To praise, thy secret stimulating friend.
 Were men not proud, what merit should we miss !
 Pride made the virtues of the Pagan world.
 Praise is the salt that seasons right to man,
 And whets his appetite for moral good.
 Thirst of applause is virtue's second guard ;
 Reason her first ; but reason wants an aid ;
 Our private reason is a flatterer ;
 Thirst of applause calls public judgment in,
 To poise our own, to keep an even scale,
 And give endanger'd virtue fairer play.

Here a fifth proof arises, stronger still :
 Why this so nice construction of our hearts ;
 These delicate moralities of sense ;
 This constitutional reserve of aid
 To succor virtue, when our reason fails ;
 If virtue, kept alive by care and toil,
 And, oft, the mark of injuries on earth,

When labor'd to maturity (its bill
 Of disciplines, and pains unpaid) must die?
 Why freighted rich to dash against a rock?
 Were man to perish when most fit to live,
 O how mis-spent were all these stratagems,
 By skill divine inwoven in our frame?
 Where are heaven's holiness and mercy fled?
 Laughs heaven, at once, at virtue, and at man!
 If not, why that discourag'd, this destroy'd?

Thus far ambition. What says avarice?
 This her chief maxim, which has long been thine
 "The wise and wealthy are the same."—I grant
 To store up treasure, with incessant toil,
 This is man's province, this his highest praise.
 To this great end keen instinct stings him on.
 To guide that instinct, reason! is thy charge;
 'Tis thine to tell us where true treasure lies;
 But, reason failing to discharge her trust,
 Or to the deaf discharging it in vain,
 A blunder follows; and blind industry,
 Gall'd by the spur, but stranger to the course,
 (The course where stakes of more than gold are O'erloading, with the cares of distant age,
 The jaded spirits of the present hour,
 Provides for an eternity below.

"Thou shalt not covet," is a wise command
 But bounded to the wealth the sun surveys:
 Look farther, the command stands quite reversed
 And av'rice is a virtue most divine.
 Is faith a refuge for our happiness?
 Most sure: and is it not for reason too?
 Nothing this world unriddles, but the next.
 Whence inextinguishable thirst of gain?
 From inextinguishable life in man;
 Man, if not meant, by worth, to reach the end
 Had wanted wing to fly so far in guilt.
 Your grapes, I grant, ambition, avarice:
 Yet still their root is immortality.

These its wild growths so bitter, and so base,
 (Pain and reproach!) religion can reclaim,
 Refine, exalt, throw down their poisonous
 And make them sparkle in the bowl of bliss

See the third witness laughs at bliss remote,
 And falsely promises an Eden here :
 Truths he shall speak for once, though prone to lie,
 A common cheat, and pleasure is her name.
 To pleasure never was Lorenzo deaf,
 Then hear her now, now first thy real friend.

Since nature made us not more fond than proud
 Of happiness (whence hypocrites in joy !
 Makers of mirth ! artificers of smiles !)
 Why should the joy most poignant sense affords,
 Burn us with blushes, and rebuke our pride ?—
 Those heaven-born blushes tell us man descends,
 Ev'n in the zenith of his earthly bliss :
 Should reason take her infidel repose,
 This honest instinct speaks our lineage high ;
 This instinct calls on darkness to conceal
 Our rapturous relation to the stalls.
 Our glory covers us with noble shame,
 And he that's unconfounded, is unmann'd.
 The man that blushes is not quite a brute.
 Thus far with thee, Lorenzo ! will I close ;
 Pleasure is good, and man for pleasure made ;
 But pleasure full of glory, as of joy ;
 Pleasure, which neither blushes, nor expires.

The witnesses are heard ; the cause is o'er ;
 Let conscience file the sentence in her court,
 Dearer than deeds that half a realm convey :
 Thus, seal'd by truth, the authentic record runs.

“ Know, all ; know, Infidels,—unapt to know !
 “ 'Tis immortality your nature solves !
 “ 'Tis immortality decyphers man,
 “ And opens all the mysteries of his make.
 “ Without it, half his instincts are a riddle ;
 “ Without it, all his virtues are a dream.
 “ His very crimes attest his dignity ;
 “ His sateless thirst of pleasure, gold, and fame,
 “ Declares him born for blessings infinite :
 “ What less than infinite, makes un-absurd
 “ Passions, which all on earth but more inflames ?
 “ Fierce passions, so mis-measur'd to this scene,
 “ Stretch'd out, like eagles' wings, beyond our net
 “ Far, far beyond the worth of all below.”

“ For earth too large, presage a nobler flight,
“ And evidence our title to the skies.”

Ye gentle theologues, of calmer kind !
Whose constitution dictates to your pen,
Who, cold yourselves, think ardor comes from hell !
Think not our passions from corruption sprung,
Though to corruption now they lend their wings ;
That is their mistress, not their mother. All
(And justly) reason deem divine : I see,
I feel a grandeur in the passions too,
Which speaks their high descent, and glorious end ;
Which speaks them rays of an eternal fire.
In Paradise itself they burnt as strong,
Ere Adam fell ; though wiser in their aim.
Like the proud Eastern, struck by Providence,
What though our passions are run mad, and stoop
With low, terrestrial appetite, to graze
On trash, on toys, dethron'd from high desire ?
Yet still, through their disgrace, a feeble ray
Of greatness shines, and tells us whence they fell :
But these (like that fallen monarch when reclaim'd,)
When reason moderates the rein aright,
Shall re-ascend, remount their former sphere,
Where once they soar'd illustrious ; ere seduc'd
By wanton Eve's debauch, to stroll on earth,
And set the sublunary world on fire.

But grant their frenzy lasts ; their frenzy fails
To disappoint one providential end,
For which Heaven blew up ardor in our hearts :
Were reason silent, boundless passion speaks
A future scene of boundless objects too,
And brings glad tidings of eternal day.
Eternal day ! 'Tis that enlightens all :
And all, by that enlighten'd, proves it sure.
Consider man as an immortal being,
Intelligible all ; and all is great ;
A crystalline transparency prevails,
And strikes full lustre through the human sphere :
Consider man as mortal, all is dark,
And wretched ; reason weeps at the survey.
The learn'd Lorenzo cries, “ And let her weep,
Weak, moderate reason : ancient times were w

thority, that venerable guide,
 " stands on my part ; the fam'd Athenian porch
 " (And who for wisdom so renown'd as they ?)
 " Deny'd this immortality to man."

I grant it ; but affirm, they prov'd it too.
 A riddle this !—Have patience ; I'll explain.

What noble vanities, what moral flights,
 Glittering through their romantic wisdom's page,
 Make us, at once, despise them, and admire !
 Fable is flat to these high-season'd sires ;
 They leave the extravagance of song below.
 " Flesh shall not feel ; or, feeling, shall enjoy
 " The dagger, or the rack, to them, alike
 " A bed of roses, or the burning bull."

In men exploding all beyond the grave,
 Strange doctrine, this !—As doctrine, it was strange ;
 But not, as prophecy ; for such it prov'd,
 And, to their own amazement, was fulfill'd :
 They feign'd a firmness Christians need not feign.
 The Christian truly triumph'd in the flame :
 The Stoic saw, in double wonder lost,
 Wonder at them, and wonder at himself,
 To find the bold adventures of his thought
 Not bold, and that he strove to lie in vain.

Whence, then, those thoughts ? Those towering thoughts, that flew
 Such monstrous heights ?—From instinct, and from pride,

The glorious instinct of a deathless soul,
 Confus'dly conscious of her dignity,
 Suggested truths they could not understand.
 In lust's dominion, and in passion's storm,
 Truth's system broken, scatter'd fragments lay,
 As light in chaos, glimmering through the gloom :
 Smit with the pomp of lofty sentiments,
 Pleas'd pride proclaim'd, what reason disbeliev'd.
 Pride, like the Delphic priestess, with a swell,
 Rav'd nonsense, destin'd to be future sense,
 When life immortal, in full day should shine ;
 And death's dark shadows fly the Gospel sun.
 They spoke, what nothing but immortal souls
 Could speak ; and thus the truth they question'd.

Can then absurdities, as well as crimes,
 Speak man immortal? All things speak him so.
 Much has been urg'd; and dost thou call for more?
 Call; and with endless questions be distress'd,
 All unresolvable, if earth is all.

"Why life, a moment? Infinite, desire?
 "Our wish, eternity? Our home, the grave?
 "Heaven's promise dormant lies in human hope;
 "Who wishes life immortal, proves it too.
 "Why happiness pursu'd, though never found?
 "Man's thirst of happiness declares it is,
 "(For Nature never gravitates to nought,)
 "That thirst unquench'd declares it is not here.
 "My Lucia, thy Clarissa, call to thought:
 "Why cordial friendship rivetted so deep,
 "As hearts to pierce at first, at parting, rend,
 "If friend, and friendship, vanish in an hour?
 "Is not this torment in the mask of joy?
 "Why by reflection marr'd the joys of sense?
 "Why past, and future, preying on our hearts,
 "And putting all our present joys to death?
 "Why labors reason? Instinct were as well;
 "Instinct, far better; what can choose, can err:
 "O how infallible the thoughtless brute!
 "'Twere well his holiness were half as sure.
 "Reason with inclination, why at war?
 "Why sense of guilt? Why conscience up in arms?"

Conscience of guilt, is prophecy of pain,
 And bosom-counsel to decline the blow.
 Reason with inclination ne'er had jarr'd,
 If nothing future paid forbearance here.
 Thus on—these, and a thousand pleas uncall'd,
 All promise, some ensure, a second scene;
 Which, were it doubtful, would be dearer far
 Than all things else most certain; were it false,
 What truth on earth so precious as the lie?
 This world it gives us, let what will ensue;
 This world it gives, in that high cordial, hope:
 The future of the present is the soul:
 How this life groans, when sever'd from the next!
 Poor, mutilated wretch, that disbelieves!
 By dark distrust his being cut in two,

In both parts perishes ; life void of joy,
Sad prelude of eternity in pain !

Couldst thou persuade me, the next life could fail
Our ardent wishes ; how should I pour out
My bleeding heart in anguish, new, as deep !
Oh ! with what thoughts, thy hope, and my despair,
Abhor'd ANNIHILATION ! blasts the soul,
And wide extends the bounds of human woe !
Could I believe Lorenzo's system true,
In this black channel would my ravings run.

" Grief from the future borrow'd peace, ere-while.

" The future vanish'd ! and the present pain'd !

" Strange import of unprecedented ill !

" Fall, how profound ! like Lucifer's the fall !

" Unequal fate ! his fall, without his guilt !

" From where fond hope built her pavilion high,

" The gods among, hurl'd headlong, hurl'd at once

" To night ! to nothing ! darker still than night.

" If 'twas a dream, why wake me, my worst foe ?

" Lorenzo ! boastful of the name of friend !

" O for delusion ! O for error still !

" Could vengeance strike much stronger than to plant,

" A thinking being in a world like this,

" Not over-rich before, now beggar'd quite ;

" More curst than at the fall ?—The sun goes out !

" The thorns shoot up ! What thorns in every thought !

" Why sense of better ? It embitters worse.

" Why sense ? why life ? if but to sigh, then sink

" To what I was ! Twice nothing ! and much woe !

" Woe, from heaven's bounties ! woe from what was wont

" To flatter most, high, intellectual powers !

" Thought, virtue, knowledge ! blessings, by thy scheme,

" All poison'd into pains. First, knowledge, once

" My soul's ambition, now her greatest dread.

" To know myself, true wisdom ?—No, to shun

" That shocking science. Parent of despair !

" Avert thy mirror : if I see, I die.

" Know my Creator ? climb his blest abode

" By painful speculation, pierce the veil,

" Dive in his nature, read his attributes,

- " And gaze in admiration—on a foe,
 " Obtruding life, with-holding happiness !
 " From the full rivers that surround his throne,
 " Not letting fall one drop of joy on man ;
 " (Man gasping for one drop, that he might cease
 " To curse his birth, nor envy reptiles more !)
 " Ye sable clouds ! ye darkest shades of night !
 " Hide him, for ever hide him, from my thought,
 " Once all my comfort ; source and soul of joy !
 " Now leagu'd with furies, and with thee* against me !
 " Know his achievements ? study his renown ?
 " Contemplate this amazing universe,
 " Dropt from his hand with miracles replete ?
 " For what ? 'mid miracles of nobler name,
 " To find one miracle of misery ?
 " To find the being, which alone can know
 " And praise his works, a blemish on his praise ?
 " Through nature's ample range, in thought to stroll,
 " And start at man, the single mourner there,
 " Breathing high hope ! chain'd down to pangs and death ?
 " Knowing is suffering : and shall virtue share
 " The sigh of knowledge ? virtue shares the sigh.
 " By straining up the steep of excellence,
 " By battles fought, and from temptation, won,
 " What gains she, but the pang of seeing worth,
 " Angelic worth, soon shuffled in the dark
 " With every vice, and swept to brutal dust ?
 " Merit is madness ; virtue is a crime ;
 " A crime to reason, if it costs us pain.
 " Unpaid : what pain, amidst a thousand more,
 " To think the most abandon'd, after days
 " Of triumph o'er their betters, find in death
 " As soft a pillow, nor make fouler clay !
 " Duty ! religion !—These, our duty done,
 " Imply reward. Religion is mistake.
 " Duty !—There's none, but to repel the cheat.
 Ye cheats ! away ! ye daughters of my pride !
 Who feign yourselves the fav'rites of the skies
 Ye towering hopes ! abortive energies !
 That toss, and struggle, in my lying breast,
 To scale the skies, and build presumptions there.

As I were heir of an eternity;
 Vain, vain ambitions ! trouble me no more,
 Why travel far in quest of sure defeat ?
 As bounded as my being, be my wish.
 All is inverted, wisdom is a fool.
 Sense ! take the rein ; blind passion ! drive us on ;
 And ignorance ! befriend us on our way ;
 Ye new, but truest patrons of our peace !
 Yes ; give the pulse full empire ; live the brute,
 Since, as the brute, we die. The sum of man,
 Of godlike man ! to revel, and to rot.
 " But not on equal terms with other brutes :
 Their revels a more poignant relish yield,
 And safer too ; they never poisons choose.
 Instinct, than reason, makes more wholesome meals,
 And sends all-marring murmur far away.
 For sensual life they best philosophize ;
 Theirs, that serene, the sages sought in vain :
 'Tis man alone expostulates with heaven ;
 His, all the power, and all the cause, to mourn.
 Shall human eyes alone dissolve in tears ?
 And bleed in anguish, none but human hearts ?
 The wide-stretch'd realm of intellectual woe,
 Surpassing sensual far, is all our own.
 In life so fatally distinguish'd, why
 Cast in one lot, confounded, lump't, in death ?
 " Ere yet in being, was mankind in guilt ?
 Why thundered this peculiar clause against us ?
 All-mortal, and all-wretched !—Have the skies
 Reasons of state, their subjects may not scan,
 Nor humbly reason, when they sorely sigh ?
 All-mortal, and all-wretched !—'Tis too much ;
 Unparallel'd in nature : 'tis too much
 On being unrequested at thy hands,
 Omnipotent ! for I see nought but power.
 " And why see that ? why thought ? To toil, and eat,
 Then make our bed in darkness, needs no thought.
 What superfluities are reas'ning souls !
 O give eternity ! or thought destroy.
 But without thought our curse were half-unfelt ;
 Its blunted edge would spare the throbbing heart
 And, therefore, 'tis bestow'd. I thank thee, reas'

- " For aiding life's too small calamities,
 " And giving being to the dread of death.
 " Such are thy bounties !—Was it then too much
 " For me, to trespass on the brutal rights ?
 " Too much for heaven to make one emmet more ?
 " Too much for chaos to permit my mass
 " A longer stay with essences unwrought,
 " Unfashion'd, untormented into man ?
 " Wretched preferment to this round of pains !
 " Wretched capacity of frenzy, thought !
 " Wretched capacity of dying, life !
 " Life, thought, worth, wisdom, all (O foul revolt !)
 " Once friends to peace, gone over to the foe.
 " Death, then, has chang'd its nature too : O death !
 " Come to my bosom, thou best gift of heaven !
 " Best friend of man ! since man is man no more.
 " Why in this thorny wilderness so long,
 " Since there's no promis'd land's ambrosial bow'r,
 " To pay me with its honey for my stings ?
 " If needful to the selfish schemes of heaven
 " To sting us sore, why mock'd our misery ?
 " Why this so sumptuous insult o'er our heads ?
 " Why this illustrious canopy display'd ?
 " Why so magnificently lodg'd despair ?
 " At stated periods, sure-returning, roll
 " These glorious orbs, that mortals may compute
 " Their length of labors, and of pains ; nor lose
 " Their misery's full measure ?—Smiles with flowers,
 " And fruits, promiscuous, ever-teeming earth,
 " That man may languish in luxurious scenes,
 " And in an Eden mourn his wither'd joys ?
 " Claim earth and skies man's admiration, due
 " For such delights ? Blest animals ! too wise
 " To wonder ; and too happy to complain !
 " Our doom decreed, demands a mournful scene :
 " Why not a dungeon dark, for the condemn'd ?
 " Why not the dragon's subterraneous den,
 " For man to howl in ? Why not his abode
 " Of the same dismal color with his fate ?
 " Thebes, a Babylon, at vast expence
 " Of time, toil, treasure, art, for owls and adders,
 " As congruous, as, for man, this lofty dome,

Which prompts proud thought, and kindles high
 "desire ;

If, from her humble chamber in the dust,
 While proud thought swells, and high desire inflames,
 The poor worm calls us for her inmates there ;
 And, round us, death's inexorable hand
 Draws the dark curtain close ; undrawn no more.
 " Undrawn no more !—Behind the cloud of death,
 Once, I beheld a sun ; a sun which gilt
 That sable cloud, and turn'd it all to gold :
 How the grave's alter'd ! fathomless, as hell !
 A real hell to those who dreamt of heaven.
 Annihilation ! how it yawns before me !
 Next moment I may drop from thought, from sense,
 The privilege of angels, and of worms,
 An outcast from existence ! And this spirit,
 This all-pervading, this all-conscious soul,
 This particle of energy divine,
 Which travels nature, flies from star to star,
 And visits gods, and emulates their powers,
 For ever is extinguish'd. Horror ! Death !
 Death of that death I fearless once survey'd !—
 When horror universal shall descend,
 And heaven's dark concave urn all human race,
 On that enormous, unrefunding tomb,
 How just this verse ! this monumental sigh !"

Beneath the lumber of demolish'd worlds,
 Deep in the rubbish of the general wreck,
 Swept ignominious to the common mass
 Of matter, never dignify'd with life,
 Here lie proud rationals ; the sons of heaven !
 The lords of earth ! the property of worms !
 Beings of yesterday, and no to-morrow !
 Who liv'd in terror, and in pang's expir'd !
 All gone to rot in chaos ; or, to make
 Their happy transit into blocks or brutes,
 Nor longer sully their Creator's name.

Lorenzo ! hear, pause, ponder, and pronounce.
 Is this history ? If such is man,
 Mankind's historian, though divine, might weep.
 Wouldst thou dares Lorenzo smile ?—I know thee proud :
 But once let pride befriend thee ; pride looks pale
 In such a scene, and sighs for something more.
 And thy boasts, presumptions, and displays,

Thinkst thou omnipotence a naked root,
 Each blossom fair of Deity destroy'd ?
 Nothing is dead ; nay, nothing sleeps ; each soul
 That ever animated human clay,
 Now wakes ; is on the wing : and where, O when
 Will the swarm settle ?—When the trumpet's call
 As sounding brass, collects us, round heaven's th
 Conglob'd we bask in everlasting day,
 (Paternal splendor !) and adhere for ever.
 Had not the soul this outlet to the skies,
 In this vast vessel of the universe,
 How should we gasp, as in an empty void !
 How in the pangs of famish'd hope expire !

How bright my prospect shines ! how gloomy th
 A trembling world ! and a devouring God !
 Earth, but the shambles of omnipotence !
 Heaven's face all stain'd with causeless massacres
 Of countless millions, born to feel the pang
 Of being lost. Lorenzo ! can it be ?
 This bids us shudder at the thoughts of life.
 Who would be born to such a phantom world,
 Where nought substantial, but our misery !
 Where joy (if joy) but heightens our distress,
 So soon to perish, and revive no more ?
 The greater such a joy, the more it pains.
 A world, so far from great (and yet how great
 It shines to thee !) there's nothing real in it ;
 Being, a shadow ! consciousness, a dream !
 A dream, how dreadful ! universal blank
 Before it, and behind ! poor man, a spark
 From non-existence struck by wrath divine,
 Glitt'ring a moment, nor that moment sure,
 'Midst upper, nether, and surrounding night,
 His sad, sure, sudden, and eternal tomb !

Lorenzo ! dost thou feel these arguments ?
 Or is there thought but vengeance can be felt ?
 How hast thou dar'd the Deity dethrone ?
 How dar'd indict him of a world like this ?
 If such the world, creation was a crime ;
 For what is crime, but cause of misery ?
 Retract, blasphemer ! and unriddle this,
 Of endless arguments, above, below,

Without us, and within, the short result—
 “If man’s immortal, there’s a God in heaven.”

But wherefore such redundancy? such waste
 Of argument? one sets my soul at rest;
 One obvious, and at hand, and, Oh!—at heart.
 So just the skies, Philander’s life so pain’d,
 His heart so pure; that or succeeding scenes
 Have palms to give, or ne’er had he been born.

“What an old tale is this!” Lorenzo cries.—
 I grant this argument is old; but truth
 No years impair; and had not this been true,
 Thou never hadst despis’d it for its age.
 Truth is immortal as thy soul; and fable
 As fleeting as thy joys: be wise, nor make Heaven’s highest blessing, vengeance; O be wise!
 Nor make a curse of immortality.

Say, know’st thou what it is? Or what thou art?
 Know’st thou the importance of a soul immortal?
 Behold this midnight glory: worlds on worlds!
 Amazing pomp! Redouble this amaze;
 Ten thousand add; and twice ten thousand more;
 Then weigh the whole; one soul outweighs them all;
 And calls the astonishing magnificence
 Of unintelligent creation poor.

For this, believe not me; no man believe;
 Trust not in words, but deeds; and deeds no less
 Than those of the Supreme; nor his, a few;
 Consult them all; consulted, all proclaim
 Thy soul’s importance: Tremble at thyself;
 For whom omnipotence has wak’d so long:
 Has wak’d, and work’d, for ages; from the birth
 Of nature to this unbelieving hour.

In this small province of his vast domain
 (All nature bow, while I pronounce his name!)
 What has God done, and not for this sole end,
 To rescue souls from death? The soul’s high price
 Is writ in all the conduct of the skies.

The soul’s high price is the creation’s key,
 Unlocks its mysteries, and naked lays
 The genuine cause of every deed divine:
*That, is the chain of ages, which maintains
 Their obvious correspondence, and unites*

Most distant periods in one blest design :
 That, is the mighty hinge, on which have turn'd
 All revolutions, whether we regard
 The nat'ral, civil, or religious, world ;
 The former two, but servants to the third :
 To that their duty done, they both expire,
 Their mass new-cast, forget their deeds renown'd ;
 And angels ask, " Where once they shone so fair ?"

To lift us from this abject, to sublime ;
 This flux, so permanent ; this dark, to day ;
 This foul, to pure ; this turbid, to serene ;
 This mean, to mighty !—for this glorious end
 The Almighty, rising, his long sabbath broke ;
 The world was made ; was ruin'd ; was restor'd ;
 Laws from the skies were publish'd ; were repeal'd ;
 On earth, kings, kingdoms, rose ; kings, kingdoms, fell ;
 Fam'd sages lighted up the Pagan world ;
 Prophets from Sion darted a keen glance
 Thro' distant age ; saints travell'd ; martyrs bled ;
 By wonders sacred nature stood control'd ;
 The living were translated ; dead were rais'd ;
 Angels, and more than angels, came from heaven ;
 And, oh ! for this, descended lower still ;
 Guilt was hell's gloom ; astonish'd at his guest,
 For one short moment Lucifer ador'd :
 Lorenzo ! and wilt thou do less ?—For this,
 That hallow'd page, fools scoff at, was inspir'd,
 Of all these truths thrice venerable code !
 Deists ! perform your quarantine ; and then
 Fall prostrate, ere you touch it, lest you die.

Nor less intensely bent infernal powers
 To mar, than those of light, this end to gain.
 O what a scene is here !—Lorenzo ! wake,
 Rise to the thought ; exert, expand thy soul
 To take the vast idea : it denies
 All else the name of great. Two warring worlds !
 Not Europe against Afric ; warring worlds,
 Of more than mortal ! mounted on the wing !

in ardent wings of energy, and zeal,
 gh-hovering o'er this little brand of strife !
 his sublunary ball.—But strife, for what ?

In their own cause conflicting ? No ; in thine,

In man's. His single interest blows the flame ;
 His the sole stake ; his fate the trumpet sounds,
 Which kindles war immortal. How it burns !
 Tumultuous swarms of deities in arms !
 Force, force opposing, till the waves run high,
 And tempest Nature's universal sphere.
 Such opposites eternal, stedfast, stern,
 Such foes implacable, are good, and ill ;
 Yet man, vain man, would mediate peace between them.

Think not this fiction. " There was war in Heaven."

From Heaven's high crystal mountain, where it hung,
 The Almighty's out-stretch'd arm took down his bow,
 And shot his indignation at the deep :
 Re-thunder'd hell, and darted all her fires.—
 And seems the stake of little moment still ?
 And slumbers man, who singly caus'd the storm ?
 He sleeps.—And art thou shock'd at mysteries ?
 The greatest, thou. How dreadful to reflect,
 What ardor, care, and counsel, mortals cause
 In breasts divine ! how little in their own !

Where'er I turn, how new proofs pour upon me !
 How happily this wond'rous view supports
 My former argument ! how strongly strikes
 Immortal life's full demonstration, here !
 Why this exertion ? why this strange regard
 From heaven's Omnipotent indulg'd to man ?—
 Because, in man, the glorious, dreadful power,
 Extremely to be pain'd, or blest, for ever.
 Duration gives importance ; swells the price.
 An angel, if a creature of a day,
 What would he be ? a trifle of no weight ;
 Or stand, or fall ; no matter which ; he's gone.
 Because immortal, therefore is indulg'd
 This strange regard of deities to dust.
 Hence, heaven looks down on earth with all her eyes :
 Hence, the soul's mighty moment in her sight :
 Hence every soul has partisans above,
 And every thought a critic in the skies :
 Hence, clay, vile clay ! has angels for its guard,
 And every guard a passion for his charge :

Hence, from all age, the cabinet divine
Has held high counsel o'er the fate of man.

Nor have the clouds those gracious counsels hid
Angels undrew the curtain of the throne,
And Providence came forth to meet mankind ;
In various modes of emphasis and awe,
He spoke his will, and trembling nature heard ;
He spoke it loud, in thunder, and in storm.
Witness, thou Sinai !* whose cloud-cover'd height
And shaken basis, own'd the present God :
Witness, ye billows !† whose returning tide,
Breaking the chain that fasten'd it in air,
Swept Egypt, and her menaces to hell :
Witness, ye flames the Assyrian tyrant blew ‡
To seven-fold rage, as impotent, as strong :
And thou, earth ! witness, whose expanding jaws
Clos'd o'er presumption's sacrilegious sons : ||
Has not each element, in turn, subscrib'd
The soul's high price, and sworn it to the wise ?
Has not flame, ocean, æther, earthquake, strove
To strike this truth, through adamantine man ?
If not all-adamant, Lorenzo ! hear ;
All is delusion, nature is wrapt up,
In tenfold night, from reason's keenest eye ;
There's no consistence, meaning, plan, or end,
In all beneath the sun, in all above,
(As far as man can penetrate) or heaven
Is an immense, inestimable prize ;
Or all is nothing, or that prize is all.—
And shall each toy be still a match for heaven ?
And full equivalent for groans below ?
Who would not give a trifle to prevent
What he would give a thousand worlds to cure ?
Lorenzo ! thou hast seen (if thine, to see)
All nature, and her God (by nature's course,
And nature's course control'd) declare for me :
The skies above proclaim " Immortal man !"
And " Man immortal !" all below resounds.
The world's a system of theology,
Read, by the greatest strangers to the schools ;
If honest, learn'd : and sages o'er a plough.

* Exod. xix. 16. † 18. ‡ Exod. xiv. 21. § Dan. iii. 19. || Numb

Is not, Lorenzo ! then, impos'd on thee
This hard alternative ; or, to renounce
Thy reason, and thy sense ; or, to believe ?
What then is unbelief ? 'Tis an exploit ;
A strenuous enterprize : to gain it, man
Must burst through every bar of common sense,
Of common shame, magnanimously wrong.
And what rewards the sturdy combatant ?
His prize, repentance ; infamy his crown.

But wherefore, infamy ?—For want of faith,
Down the steep precipice of wrong he slides ;
There's nothing to support him in the right.
Faith in the future wanting, is, at least
In embryo, every weakness, every guilt ;
And strong temptation ripens it to birth.
If this life's gain invites him to the deed,
Why not his country sold, his father slain ?
'Tis virtue to pursue our good supreme ;
And his supreme, his only good is here.
Ambition, av'rice, by the wise disdain'd,
Is perfect wisdom, while mankind are fools,
And think a turf, or tombstone, covers all :
These find employment, and provide for sense
A richer pasture, and a larger range ;
And sense by right divine ascends the throne,
When virtue's prize and prospect are no more ;
Virtue no more we think the will of heaven.
Would heaven quite beggar virtue, if belov'd ?

“ Has virtue charms ? ”—I grant her heavenly fair ;
But if unportion'd, all will int'rest wed ;
Though that our admiration, this our choice.
The virtues grow on immortality ;
That root destroy'd, they wither and expire.
A DEITY believ'd, will nought avail ;
Rewards and punishments make God ador'd ;
And hopes and fears give conscience all her power.
As in the dying parent dies the child,
Virtue, with immortality, expires.
Who tells me he denies his soul immortal,
Whate'er his boast, has told me, he's a knave.
His duty 'tis, to love himself alone ;
Nor care though mankind perish, if he smiles

Who thinks ere long the man shall wholly die,
Is dead already ; nought but brute survives.

And are there such ?—Such candidates there are
For more than death ; for utter loss of being ;
Being, the basis of the DEITY !

Ask you the cause ?—The cause they will not tell ;
Nor need they : Oh the sorceries of sense !
They work this transformation on the soul,
Dismount her like the serpent at the fall,
Dismount her from her native wing (which soar'd Ere-while ethereal heights,) and throw her down,
To lick the dust and crawl, in such a thought.

Is it in words to paint you ? O ye fall'n !
Fall'n from the wings of reason, and of hope !
Erect in stature, prone in appetite !
Patrons of pleasure, posting into pain !
Lovers of argument, averse to sense !
Boasters of liberty, fast-bound in chains !
Lords of the wide creation, and the shame !
More senseless than the irrationals you scorn !
More base than those you rule ! than those you pity,
Far more undone ! O ye most infamous
Of beings, from superior dignity !
Deepest in woe from means of boundless bliss !
Ye curst by blessings infinite ! because
Most highly favor'd, most profoundly lost !
Ye motly mass of contradiction strong !
And are you, too, convinc'd, your souls fly off
In exhalation soft, and die in air,
From the full flood of evidence against you ?
In the coarse drudgeries and sinks of sense,
Your souls have quite worn out the make of heaven,
By vice new-cast, and creatures of your own :
But though you can deform, you can't destroy ;
To curse, not uncreate, is all your power.

Lorenzo ! this black brotherhood renounce :
Renounce St. Evremont* and read St. Paul.
Ere rapt by miracle, by reason wing'd,
His mounting mind made long abode in heaven.
This is freethinking, unconfin'd to parts,
To send the soul, on curious travel bent,

* An Infidel Writer.

Through all the provinces of human thought,
 To dart her flight through the whole sphere of man;
 Of this vast universe to make the tour;
 In each recess of space, and time, at home;
 Familiar with their wonders; diving deep;
 And, like a prince of boundless int'rests there;
 Still most ambitious of the most remote;
 To look on truth unbroken, and entire;
 Truth in the system, the full orb; where truths
 By truths enlighten'd, and sustain'd, afford
 An arch-like, strong foundation, to support
 The incumbent weight of absolute, complete
 Conviction; here, the more we press, we stand
 More firm; who most examine most believe.
 Parts, like half-sentences, confound: the whole
 Conveys the sense, and God is understood;
 Who not in fragments writes to human race:
 Read his whole volume, sceptic! then reply.

This, this, is thinking-free, a thought that grasps
 Beyond a grain, and looks beyond an hour.
 Turn up thine eye, survey this midnight scene;
 What are earth's kingdoms, to yon boundless orbs,
 Of human souls, one day, the destin'd range?
 And what yon boundless orbs, to godlike man?
 Those numerous worlds that throng the firmament,
 And ask more space in Heaven, can roll at large
 In man's capacious thought, and still leave room
 For ampler orbs; for new creations, there.
 Can such a soul contract itself, or gripe
 A point of no dimension, of no weight?
 It can; it does: the world is such a point:
 And, of that point, how small a part enslaves!

How small a part!—of nothing, shall I say?
 Why not?—Friends, our chief treasure! how they drop!

Lucia, Narcissa fair, Philander, gone!
 The grave, like fabled Cerberus, has op'd
 A triple mouth; and, in an awful voice,
 Loud calls my soul, and utters all I sing.
 How the world falls to pieces round about us!
 And leaves us in a ruin of our joy!
 What says this transportation of my friends!

It bids me love the place where now they dwell,
And scorn this wretched spot, they leave so poor.
Eternity's vast ocean lies Before thee ;
There, there, Lorenzo ! thy Clarissa sails.
Give thy mind sea-room ; keep it wide of earth,
That rock of souls immortal ; cut thy cord ;
Weigh anchor ; spread thy sails ; call every wind ;
Eye thy great pole-star ; make the land of life.

Two kinds of life has double-natur'd man,
And two of death ; the last far more severe.
Life animal is nurtur'd by the sun ;
Thrives on his bounties, triumphs in his beams.
Life rational subsists on higher food,
Triumphant in his beams, who made the day.
When we leave that sun, and are left by this,
(The fate of all who die in stubborn guilt)
'Tis utter darkness ; strictly, double death.
We sink by no judicial stroke of Heaven,
But Nature's course ; as sure as plummets fall.
Since God, or man, must alter, ere they meet,
(For light and darkness blend not in one sphere)
'Tis manifest, Lorenzo ! who must change.

If, then, that double death should prove thy lot,
Blame not the bowels of the Deity ;
Man shall be blest, as far as man permits.
Not man alone, all rationals, Heaven arms
With an illustrious, but tremendous power
To counteract its own most gracious ends ;
And this, of strict necessity, not choice :
That power deny'd, men, angels, were no more,
But passive engines, void of praise, or blame.
A nature rational implies the power
Of being blest, or wretched, as we please ;
Else idle reason would have nought to do ;
And he that would be barr'd capacity
Of pain, courts incapacity of bliss.
Heaven wills our happiness, allows our doom ;
Invites us ardently, but not compels ;
Heaven but persuades, almighty man decrees ;
Man is the maker of immortal fates.
Man falls by man, if finally he falls ;
And fall he must, who learns from death alone

The dreadful secret,—that he lives for ever,—
 Why this to thee ? thee yet, perhaps, in doubt
 Of second life ? But wherefore doubtful still !
 Eternal life, is Nature's ardent wish :
 What ardently we wish, we soon believe ;
 Thy tardy faith declares that wish destroy'd :
 What has destroy'd it ?—Shall I tell thee, what ?
 When fear'd the future, 'tis no longer wish'd ;
 And, when unwish'd, we strive to disbelieve.
 " Thus infidelity our guilt betrays."

Nor that the sole detection ! blush, Lorenzo !
 Blush for hypocrisy, if not for guilt.
 The future fear'd ?—An infidel !—and fear !
 Fear what ? a dream ? a fable ?—How thy dread,
 Unwilling evidence, and therefore strong,
 Affords my cause an undesign'd support !
 How disbelief affirms, what it denies !
 " It, unawares, asserts immortal life."

Surprising ! Infidelity turns out
 A creed, and a confession of our sins :
 Apostates, thus, are orthodox divines.

Lorenzo ! with Lorenzo clash no more ;
 No longer a transparent vizard wear.
 Think'st thou, religion only has the mask ?
 Our infidels are Satan's hypocrites,
 Pretend the worst, and, at the bottom, fail.
 When visited by thought (thought will intrude,)
 Like him they serve, they tremble, and believe.
 Is there hypocrisy so foul as this ?
 So fatal to the welfare of the world ?
 What detestation, what contempt, their due !
 And, if unpaid, be thank'd for their escape
 That Christian candor they strive hard to scorn.
 If not for that asylum, they might find
 A hell on earth ; nor 'scape a worse below.

With insolence, and impotence of thought,
 Instead of racking fancy, to refute,
 Reform thy manners, and the truth enjoy.—
 But shall I dare confess the dire result ?
Can thy proud reason brook so black a brand ?
From purer manners, to sublimer faith,
Is Nature's unavoidable ascent ;

An honest deist, where the Gospel shines,
 Matur'd to nobler, in the Christian ends.
 When that blest change arrives, e'en cast aside
 This song superfluous; life immortal strikes
 Conviction, in a flood of light divine.
 A Christian dwells, like Uriel,* in the sun.
 Meridian evidence puts doubt to flight;
 And ardent hope anticipates the skies.
 Of that bright sun, Lorenzo! scale the sphere;
 'Tis easy; it invites thee: it descends
 From Heaven to woo, and waft thee whence it came!
 Read and revere the sacred page; a page
 Where triumphs immortality; a page
 Which not the whole creation could produce;
 Which not the conflagration shall destroy;
 In Nature's ruins not one letter lost:
 'Tis printed in the mind of gods for ever.

In proud disdain of what e'en gods adore,
 Dost smile?—Poor wretch! thy guardian angel weeps,
 Angels, and men, assent to what I sing;
 Wits smile, and thank me for my midnight dream.
 How vicious hearts fume frenzy to the brain!
 Parts push us on to pride, and pride to shame;
 Pert infidelity is wit's cockade,
 To grace the brazen brow that braves the skies,
 By loss of being, dreadfully secure.
 Lorenzo! if thy doctrine wins the day,
 And drives my dreams, defeated, from the field;
 If this is all, if earth's the final scene,
 Take heed; stand fast; be sure to be a knave;
 A knave in grain! ne'er deviate to the right:
 Should'st thou be good—how infinite thy loss!
 Guilt only makes annihilation gain.
 Blest scheme! which life deprives of comfort, death
 Of hope; and which vice only recommends.
 If so; where, infidels! your bait thrown out
 To catch weak converts? Where your lofty boast
 Of zeal for virtue, and of love to man?
 Annihilation! I confess, in these.

What can reclaim you? Dare I hope profound
 Philosophers the converts of a song?

* See Milton's Paradise Lost.

Yet know, its title* flatters you, not me;
 Yours be the praise to make my title good;
 Mine, to bless Heaven, and triumph in your praise,
 But since so pestilential your disease,
 Though sovereign is the med'cine I prescribe,
 As yet, I'll neither triumph, nor despair;
 But hope, ere long, my midnight dream will wake
 Your hearts, and teach your wisdom—to be wise:
 For why should souls immortal, made for bliss,
 E'er wish (and wish in vain!) that souls should die?
 What ne'er can die, Oh! grant to live; and crown
 The wish, and aim, and labor of the skies;
 Increase, and enter on the joys of Heaven:
 Thus shall my title pass a sacred seal,
 Receive an imprimatur from above,
 While angels shout—An Infidel Reclaim'd!
 To close, Lorenzo! spite of all my pains,
 Still seems it strange, that thou shouldst live for ever?
 Is it less strange, that thou shouldst live at all?
 This is a miracle; and that no more.
 Who gave beginning, can exclude an end.
 Deny thou art: then, doubt if thou shalt be.
 A miracle with miracles inclos'd,
 Is man: and starts his faith at what is strange?
 What less than wonders, from the wonderful;
 What less than miracles from God, can flow?
 Admit a God, that mystery supreme!
 That cause uncaus'd! all other wonders cease;
 Nothing is marvellous for him to do:
 Deny him—all is mystery besides;
 Millions of mysteries! each darker far,
 Than that thy wisdom would, unwisely, shun.
 If weak thy faith, why choose the harder side?
 We nothing know, but what is marvellous;
 Yet what is marvellous, we can't believe.
 So weak our reason, and so great our God,
 What most surprises in the sacred page,
 Or full as strange, or stranger, must be true.
 Faith is not reason's labor, but repose.
 To faith, and virtue, why so backward man?
 From hence;—the present strongly strikes us all;

* The Infidel Reclaimed.

The future, faintly : can we, then, be men ?
 If men, Lorenzo ! the reverse is right.
 Reason is man's peculiar : sense, the brute's.
 The present is the scanty realm of sense ;
 The future, reason's empire unconfin'd :
 On that expending all her godlike power,
 She plans, provides, expatiates, triumphs, there ;
 There builds her blessings ; there expects her praise
 And nothing asks of fortune, or of men.
 And what is reason ? Be she, thus defin'd ;
 Reason is upright stature in the soul.
 Oh ! be a man ;—and strive to be a God.

“ For what ? (thou sayest :) to damp the joys of life
 No ; to give heart and substance to thy joys.
 That tyrant, hope, mark, how she domineers ;
 She bids us quit realities, for dreams ;
 Safety, and peace, for hazard and alarm ;
 That tyrant o'er the tyrants of the soul,
 She bids ambition quit its taken prize,
 Spurn the luxuriant branch on which it sits,
 Tho' bearing crowns, to spring at distant game ;
 And plunge in toils and dangers—for repose.
 If hope precarious, and if things, when gain'd,
 Of little moment, and as little stay,
 Can sweeten toils and dangers into joys ;
 What then, that hope, which nothing can defeat,
 Our leave unask'd ? rich hope of boundless bliss
 Bliss, past man's power to paint it ; time's, to elude
 This hope is earth's most estimable prize :
 This is man's portion, while no more than man :
 Hope, of all passions, most befriends us here ;
 Passions of prouder name befriend us less.
 Joy has her tears ; and transport has her death ;
 Hope, like a cordial, innocent, though strong,
 Man's heart, at once, inspirits, and serenes ;
 Nor makes him pay his wisdom for his joys :
 'Tis all, our present state can safely bear,
 Health to the frame ! and vigor to the mind !
 Joy attempt'd ! a chastis'd delight !
 Like the fair summer-evening, mild, and sweet !
 'Tis man's full cup ; his paradise below !

A blest hereafter, then, or hop'd, or giv'd,
All;—our whole of happiness: full proof,
Choose no trivial or inglorious theme.
I know, ye foes to song! (well-meaning men, ough quite forgotten* half your bible's praise!)
portant truths, in spite of verse, may please:
ive minds you praise; nor can you praise too much:
here is weight in an eternity,
the grave listen;—and be graver still.

* The poetical parts of it.

END OF NIGHT THE SEVENTH

THE
COMPLAINT.

NIGHT VIII.

VIRTUE'S APOLOGY;

OR,

The Man of the World Answered.

In which are considered,

THE LOVE OF THIS LIFE; THE AMBITION AND PLEASURE,
WITH THE WIT AND WISDOM OF THE WORLD.

AND has all nature, then, espous'd my part?
Have I brib'd heaven, and earth, to plead against thee?
And is thy soul immortal! What remains?
All, all Lorenzo; make immortal, blest.
Unblest immortals! What can shock us more?
And yet Lorenzo still affects the world;
There, stows his treasure; thence his title draws,
Man of the world! (for such wouldst thou be call'd.)
And art thou proud of that inglorious style?
Proud of reproach? For a reproach it was,
In ancient days; and christian,—in an age,
When men were men, and not asham'd of heaven,
Fir'd their ambition, as it crown'd their joy.
Sprinkled with dews from the Castalian font,
Fain would I re-baptize thee, and confer
A purer spirit, and a nobler name.

Thy fond attachments fatal, and inflam'd,
oint out my path, and dictate to my song:
O thee, the world how fair! how strongly strikes
Ambition! and gay pleasure stronger still!
Thy triple bane! the triple bolt, that lays

Thy virtue dead ! Be these my triple theme ;
Nor shall thy wit or wisdom, be forgot.

Common the theme ; not so the song ; if she
My song invokes, Urania, deigns to smile.
The charm that chains us to the world, her foe,
If she dissolves, the man of earth, at once,
Starts from his trance, and sighs for other scenes ;
Scenes, where these sparks of night, these stars, shall shine

Unnumber'd suns (for all things as they are,
The blest behold ;) and, in one glory pour
Their blended blaze on man's astonish'd sight ;
A blaze,—the least illustrious object there.

Lorenzo ! since eternal is at hand,
To swallow time's ambitions ; as the vast Leviathan, the bubbles vain, that ride
High on the foaming billow ; what avail
High titles, high descent, attainments high,
If unattain'd our highest ! O Lorenzo !
What lofty thoughts, these elements above,
What towering hopes, what sallies from the sun,
What grand surveys of destiny divine,
And pompons presage of unfathom'd fate,
Should roll in bosoms, where a spirit burns,
Bound for eternity ! In bosoms read
By Him, who foibles in archangels' sees !
On human hearts he bends a jealous eye,
And marks, and in heaven's register inrolls,
The rise, and progress, of each option there ;
Sacred to doomsday ! That the page unfolds,
And spreads us to the gaze of gods and men.

And what an option, O Lorenzo ! thine ?
This world ! and this, unrivall'd by the skies !
A world, where lust of pleasure, grandeur, gold,
Three dæmons that divide its realms between them,
With strokes alternate buffet to and fro
Man's restless heart, their sport, their flying ball ;
Till, with the giddy circle, sick and tir'd,
It pants for peace, and drops into despair.
Such is the world Lorenzo sets above
That glorious promise, angels were esteem'd
Too mean to bring ; a promise, their Ador'd

Descended to communicate, and press,
By counsel, miracle, life, death, on man.
Such is the world Lorenzo's wisdom woos,
And on its thorny pillow seeks repose ;
A pillow, which, like opiates ill-prepar'd,
Intoxicates, but not composes ; fills
The visionary mind with gay chimeras,
All the wild trash of sleep, without the rest ;
What unfeign'd travel, and what dreams of joy !

How frail, men, things ! How momentary both
Fantastic chace, of shadows hunting shades !
The gay, the busy, equal, though unlike ;
Equal in wisdom, differently wise !
Through flowery meadows, and through dreary
One bustling, and one dancing, into death.
There's not a day, but, to the man of thought,
Betrays some secret, that throws new reproach
On life, and makes him sick of seeing more.
The scenes of bus'ness tell us—"What are men
The scenes of pleasure—"What is all beside :"
There, others we despise ; and here, ourselves.
Amid disgust eternal, dwells delight ?
'Tis approbation strikes the strings of joy.

What wondrous prize has kindled this career,
Stuns with the din, and choaks us with the dust,
On life's gay stage, one inch above the grave ?
The proud run up and down in quest of eyes ;
The sensual in pursuit of something worse ;
The grave, of gold ; the politic, of power ;
And all, of other butterflies, as vain !
As eddies draw things frivolous, and light,
How is man's heart by vanity drawn in !
On the swift circle of returning toys,
Whirl'd straw-like, round and round, and the gulph'd,

Where gay delusion darkens to despair !

"This is a beaten track."—Is this a track
Should not be beaten ? Never beat enough,
Till enough learnt the truths it would inspire
Shall truth be silent, because folly frowns ?
Turn the world's history ; what find we there
But fortune's sports, or nature's cruel claim man's artifice, or man's revenge, endless inhumanities on man ?

 s trumpet seldom sounds, but, like the knell,
 gs sad tidings ! how it hourly blows misadventures round the list'ning world !
 s the tale of narrative old time ;
 le ! which high as Paradise begins ;
 the toil of travel to delude,
 stage to stage, in his eternal round,
 ays, his daughters, as they spin our hours
 rtune's wheel, where accident unthought a moment, snaps life's strongest thread, in her turn, some tragic story tells,
 now-and-then, a wretched farce between ;
 ills his chronicle with human woes.
 ne's daughters, true as those of men, deceive us ;
 ne, but puts some cheat on all mankind :
 in their father's bosom, not yet ours, flatter our fond hopes : and promise much iable ; but hold him not o'er-wise, dares to trust them ; and laugh round the year,
 l-confiding, still-confounded man ;
 ling, though confounded ; hoping on,
 ight by trial, unconvinc'd by proof,
 ver-looking for the never-seen :
 o the last, like harden'd felons, lies ;
 owns itself a cheat, till it expires.
 tle joys go out by one and one,
 eave poor man, at length, in perfect night ;
 , darker than what, now, involves the pole.
 Thou, who dost permit these ills to fall, gracious ends, and wouldst that man should mourn !
 ou, whose hand this goodly fabric fram'd, knowst it best, and wouldst that man should know !
 t is this sublunary world ? a vapor !
 or all it holds ; itself, a vapor,
 the damp bed of Chaos, by thy beam
 'd, ordain'd to swim its destin'd hour bient air, then melt, and disappear.
 days are number'd, nor remote her doom ;

As mortal, though less transient, than her sons;
Yet they doat on her, as the world and they
Were both eternal, solid; thou! a dream.

They doat, on what? Immortal views apart,
A region of outsides! a land of shadows!
A fruitful field of flowery promises!
A wilderness of joys! perplex'd with doubts,
And sharp with thorns! A troubled ocean, spread
With bold adventurers, their all on board;
No second hope, if here their fortune frowns;
Frown soon it must. Of various rates they sail,
Of ensigns various; all alike in this,
All restless, anxious; tost with hopes and fears,
In calmest skies obnoxious all to storm!
And stormy the most gen'ral blast of life:
All bound for happiness; yet few provide
The chart of knowledge, pointing where it lies;
Or virtue's helm, to shape the course design'd:
All, more or less, capricious fate lament,
Now lifted by the tide, and now resorb'd;
And farther from their wishes, than before:
All, more or less, against each other dash,
To mutual hurt, by gusts of passion driv'n,
And suff'ring more from folly than from fate.

Ocean! Thou dreadful and tumultuous house
Of dangers, at eternal war with man!
Death's capital, where most he domineers,
With all his chosen terrors frowning round,
(Though lately feasted high at* Albion's cost)
Wide op'ning, and loud roaring still for more!
Too faithful mirror; how dost thou reflect
The melancholy face of human life!
The strong resemblance tempts me farther still:
And, haply, Britain may be deeper struck
By moral truth, in such a mirror seen,
Which nature holds for ever at her eye.
Self-flatter'd, unexperienc'd, high in hope,
When young, with sanguine cheer, and streamers
We cut our cable, launch into the world,
And fondly dream each wind and star our friend:
All, in some darling enterprize embark'd:

* Admiral Batches, &c. ut where is he can fathom its event ?

 mid a multitude of artless hands,
 ruin's sure perquisite ! her lawful prize !
 ome steer aright ; but the black blast blows hard,
 nd puffs them wide of hope : with hearts of proof,
 ull against wind, and tide, some win their way ;
 nd when strong effort has deserv'd the port,
 nd tugg'd it into view, 'tis won ! 'tis lost !
 hough strong their oar, still stronger is their fate :
 hey strike ; and while they triumph, they expire.
 stress of weather, most ; some sink outright ;
 'er them, and o'er their names, the billows close ;
 o-morrow knows not they were ever born.
 Others a short memorial leave behind,
 like a flag floating, when the bark's ingulph'd ;
 floats a moment, and is seen no more :
 ne Cæsar lives ; a thousand are forgot.
 ow few, beneath auspicious planets born,
 Darlings of Providence ! fond fate's elect !
 With swelling sails make good the promis'd port,
 With all their wishes freighted ! Yet ev'n these, reighted with all their wishes, soon complain ;
 ree from misfortune, not from nature free,
 hey still are men ; and when is man secure ?
 s fatal time as storm ! the rush of years eats down their strength ; their numberless escapes
 i ruin end : and, now, their proud success
 ut plants new terrors on the victor's brow :
 What pain to quit the world, just made their own,
 heir nest so deeply down'd, and built so high !
 oo low they build, who build beneath the stars.

Woe then apart (if woe apart can be rom mortal man,) and fortune at our nod, he gay ! rich ! great ! triumphant ! and august !
 What are they ?—The most happy (strange to say !)
 onvince me most of human misery :
 What are they ?—Smiling wretches of to-morrow !
 fore wretched, then, than e'er their slave can be ;
 heir treach'rous blessings, at the day of need,
 like other faithless friends, unmask and sting :
 hen, what provoking indigence in wealth !
 hat aggravated impotence in power !

High titles, then, what insult of their pain !
 If that sole anchor, equal to the waves,
 Immortal hope ! defies not the rude storm,
 Takes comfort from the foaming billow's rage,
 And makes a welcome harbor of the tomb.

Is this a sketch of what thy soul admires ?

" But here (thou say'st) the miseries of life
 " Are huddled in a group. A more distinct
 " Survey, perhaps, might bring thee better news."
 Look on life's stages : they speak plainer still ;
 The plainer they, the deeper wilt thou sigh.
 Look on thy lovely boy ; in him behold
 The best that can befall the best on earth ;
 The boy has virtue by his mother's side :
 Yes, on Florello look : a father's heart
 Is tender, though the man's is made of stone ;
 The truth, through such a medium seen, may make Impression deep, and fondness prove thy friend.

Florello, lately cast on this rude coast
 A helpless infant ; now a heedless child ;
 To poor Clarissa's throes, thy care succeeds ;
 Care full of love, and yet severe as hate !
 O'er thy soul's joy how oft thy fondness frowns !
 Needful austerities his will restrain ;
 As thorns fence in the tender plant from harm.
 As yet, his reason cannot go alone ;
 But asks a sterner nurse to lead it on.
 His little heart is often terrify'd :
 The blush of morning, in his cheek, turns pale ;
 Its pearly dew-drop trembles in his eye ;
 His harmless eye ! and drowns an angel there.
 Ah ! what avails his innocence ? the task
 Injoin'd must discipline his early powers ;
 He learns to sigh, ere he is known to sin ;
 Guiltless, and sad ! a wretch before the fall !
 How cruel this ! more cruel to forbear.

Our nature such, with necessary pains purchase prospects of precarious peace :
 Igh not a father, this might steal a sigh.
 Ipose him disciplin'd aright (if not,
 I sink our poor account to poorer still ;)
 from the tutor, proud of liberty,

He leaps inclosure, bounds into the world ;
 The world is taken, after ten years toil,
 Like ancient Troy, and all its joys his own.
 Alas ! the world's a tutor more severe ;
 Its lessons hard, and ill deserves his pains ;
 Unteaching all his virtuous nature taught,
 Or books (fair virtue's advocates !) inspir'd.

For who receives him into public life ?
 Men of the world, the terræ-filial breed,
 Welcome the modest stranger to their sphere,
 (Which glitter'd long, at distance, in his sight)
 And, in their hospitable arms, inclose :
 Men, who think nought so strong of the romance,
 So rank knight-errant, as a real friend :
 Men, that act up to reason's golden rule,
 All weakness of affection quite subdu'd :
 Men, that would blush at being thought sincere,
 And feign, for glory, the few faults they want ;
 That love a lie, where truth would pay as well ;
 As if, to them, vice shone her own reward.

Lorenzo ! canst thou bear a shocking sight ?
 Such, for Florello's sake, 'twill now appear :
 See, the steel'd files of season'd veterans,
 Train'd to the world, in burnish'd falshood bright ;
 Deep in the fatal stratagems of peace ;
 And soft sensation, in the throng, rubb'd off ;
 All their keen purpose, in politeness, sheath'd ;
 His friends eternal—during interest ;
 His foes implacable—when worth their while ;
 At war with every welfare, but their own ;
 As wise as Lucifer ; and half as good ;
 And by whom none, but Lucifer, can gain—
 Naked, through these (so common fate ordains,)
 Naked of heart, his cruel course he runs,
 Stung out of all, most amiable in life,
 Prompt truth, and open thought, and smiles unfeign'd ;
 Affection, as his species, wide diffus'd ;
 Noble presumptions to mankind's renown ;
 Ingenuous trust, and confidence of love.

*These claims of joy (if mortals joy might claim)
 Will cost him many a sigh ; till time, and pains,
 From the slow mistress of this school, experience*

• And her assistant, pausing, pale distrust,
Purchase a dear-bought clue, to lead his youth.
Through serpentine obliquities of life,
And the dark labyrinth of human hearts.
And happy ! if the clue shall come so cheap ;
For, while we learn to fence with public guilt,
Full oft we feel its foul contagion too,
If less than heavenly virtue is our guard.
Thus, a strange kind of curst necessity,
Brings down the sterling temper of his soul,
By base alloy, to bear the current stamp,
Below call'd wisdom ; sinks him into safety ;
And brands him into credit with the world ;
Where specious titles dignify disgrace ;
And nature's injuries are arts of life ;
Where brighter reason prompts to bolder crimes ;
And heavenly talents make infernal hearts ;
That unsurmountable extreme of guilt !
Poor Machiavel ! who labor'd hard his plan,
Forgot, that genius need not go to school ;
Forgot, that man, without a tutor wise,
His plan had practis'd, long before 'twas writ.
The world's all title-page, there's no contents ;
The world's all face ; the man who shows his heart,
Is hooted for his nudities, and scorn'd.
A man I knew, who liv'd upon a smile ;
And well it fed him ; he look'd plump and fair ;
While rankest venom foam'd through every vein.
Lorenzo ! what I tell thee, take not ill !
Living, he fawn'd on every fool alive ;
And, dying, curst the friend on whom he liv'd,
To such proficients thou art half a saint.
In foreign realms (for thou hast travell'd far).
How curious to contemplate two state-rooks,
Studious their nests to feather in a trice,
With all the necromantics of their art,
Playing the game of faces on each other,
Making court sweet-meats of their latent gall,
In foolish hope, to steal each other's trust ;
Both cheating, both exulting, both deceiv'd ;
And, sometimes, both (let earth rejoice) undone
Their parts we doubt not ; but be that their share

Shall men of talents, fit to rule mankind, *
 Stoop to mean wiles, that would disgrace a fool !
 And lose the thanks of those few friends they serve ?
 For who can thank the man he cannot see ?

Why so much cover ? It defeats itself.

Ye that know all things ! know ye not, men's hearts
 Are therefore known, because they are conceal'd ?
 For why conceal'd ?—The cause they need not tell.
 I give him joy, that's awkward at a lie ;
 Whose feeble nature truth keeps still in awe ;
 His incapacity is his renown.

'Tis great, 'tis manly, to disdain disguise ;
 It shews our spirit, or it proves our strength.
 Thou say'st, 'tis needful : is it therefore right ?
 Howe'er I grant it some small sign of grace,
 To strain at an excuse : and wouldst thou then
 Escape that cruel need ? thou may'st, with ease ;
 Think no post needful that demands a knave.
 When late our civil helm was shifting hands,
 So P—— thought : think better, if you can.

But this, how rare ! the public path of life
 Is dirty :—yet, allow that dirt its due,
 It makes the noble mind more noble still :
 The world's no neuter ; it will wound, or save ;
 Our virtue quench, or indignation fire.
 You say, the world well-known, will make a man :—
 The world, well-known, will give our hearts to heaven,
 Or make us dæmons, long before we die.

To shew how far the world, (thy mistress,) shines,
 Take either part, sure ills attend the choice ;
 Sure, though not equal, detriment ensues.
 Not virtue's self is deify'd on earth ;
 Virtue has her relapses, conflicts, foes ;
 Foes, that ne'er fail to make her feel their hate.
 Virtue has her peculiar set of pains.

True ; friends to virtue, last, and least complain ;
 But if they sigh, can others hope to smile ?

If wisdom has her miseries to mourn,

How can poor folly lead a happy life ?

And if both suffer, what has earth to boast,

Where he's most happy, who the least laments ?

Where much, much patience, the most envied state

And some forgiveness, needs the best of friends;
For friend, or happy life, who looks not higher;
Of neither shall he find the shadow here.

The world's sworn advocate, without a fee,
Lorenzo smartly, with a smile, replies;

"Thus far thy song is right; and all must own,

"Virtue has her peculiar set of pains.—

"And joys peculiar who to vice denies;

"If vice it is, with nature to comply;

"If pride, and sense, are so predominant,

"To check, not overcome them, makes vain;

"Can nature in a plainer voice proclaim

"Pleasure, and glory, the chief good of man?"

Can pride and sensuality, rejoice?

From purity of thought, all pleasure springs;

And, from an humble spirit, all our peace.

Ambition, pleasure! let us talk of these:

Of these, the porch, and academy, talk'd;

Of these, each following age had much to say;

Yet unexhausted, still, the needful theme.

Who talks of these, to mankind all at once

He talks; for where's the saint from either free?

Are these thy refuge?—No; these rush upon thee;

Thy vitals seize, and, vulture-like, devour:

I'll try, if I can pluck thee from thy rock,

Prometheus! from this barren ball of earth;

If reason can unchain thee, thou art free.

And, first, thy Caucasus, ambition calls;

Mountain of torments! Eminence of woes!

Of courted woes! and courted through mistake!

'Tis not ambition charms thee; 'tis a cheat

Will make thee start, as H—— at his moor.

Dost grasp at greatness? first, know what it is:

Think'st thou thy greatness in distinction lies?

Not in the feather, wave it e'er so high,

By fortune stuck to mark us from the throng,

In glory lodg'd: 'tis lodg'd in the reverse;

In that which joins, in that which equals all,

The monarch, and his slave:—"A deathless soul,

"Unbounded prospect, and immortal kin,

"A father, God, and brothers in the skies;"

Older, indeed, in time; but less remote silence, perhaps, than thought by man ;

greater what can fall, than what can rise ?
Oh delirious, now, Lorenzo ! go ;
th thy full-blown brothers of the world,
scorn around thee ; cast it on thy slaves ;
yes, and equals : how scorn cast on them adds on thee ! If man is mean, as man, is he a god ? If fortune makes him so,
the consequence : A maxim that,
draws a monstrous picture of mankind,
in the drapery, the man is lost ;
his flutt'ring, and the soul forgot.
Dearest glory, when dispos'd to boast,
that aloud in which thy servants share.
wisely strip the steed we mean to buy :
we, in their caparisons, of men ?
Nails thee, where, but what, thou art ;
distinctions of this little life
quite cutaneous, foreign to the man.
through death's streights, earth's subtle ser-
pents creep,
wriggle into wealth, or climb renown,
asked Satan the forbidden tree ;
leave their party-color'd robe behind,
that now glitters, while they rear aloft brazen crests, and hiss at us below.
fortune's fucus strip them, yet alive ;
rem of body, too ; nay, closer still,
with all, but moral, in their minds ;
what then remains, impose their name,
since them weak or worthy ; great or mean.
mean that snuff of glory fortune lights,
death puts out ! Dost thou demand a test,
, at once, infallible, and short,) greatness ? That man greatly lives,
'er his fate, or fame, who greatly dies ;
dash'd with hope, where heroes shall despair.
a true criterion, many courts,
ous, might afford but few grandees.
Almighty, from his throne, on earth surveys greater, than an honest humble heart ;
ble heart, his residence ! pronounc'd.

His second seat ; and rival to the skies.
The private path, the secret acts of men,
If made, far the noblest of our lives !
How far above Lorenzo's glory sits
Th' illustrious master of a name unknown ;
Whose worth unrivall'd, and unwitness'd, loves
Life's sacred shades, where gods converse with men ;
And peace, beyond the world's conception, smiles !
As thou ! (now dark,) before we part, shalt see.

But thy great soul this skulking glory scorns.
Lorenzo's sick, but when Lorenzo's seen ;
And when he shrugs at public business, lies ;
Deny'd the public eye, the public voice,
As if he liv'd on others' breath he dies.
Fain would he make the world his pedestal ;
Mankind, the gazers, the sole figure, he.
Knows he, that mankind praise against their will,
And mix as much detraction as they can ?
Knows he, that faithless fame her whisper has,
As well as trumpet ? That his vanity
Is so much tickled from not hearing all ?
Knows this all-knower that from itch of praise,
Or, from an itch more sordid, when he shines,
Taking his country by five-hundred ears,
Senates at once admire him, and despise,
With modest laughter lining loud applause,
Which makes the smile more mortal to his fame ?
His fame, which (like the mighty Cæsar,) crown'd
With laurels, in full senate, greatly falls,
By seeming friends, that honor, and destroy.
We rise in glory, as we sink in pride ;
Where boasting ends, there dignity begins ;
And yet, mistaken beyond all mistake,
The blind Lorenzo's proud—of being proud ;
And dreams himself ascending in his fall.

An eminence, though fancy'd, turns the brain ;
All vice wants hellebore ; but of all vice,
Pride loudest calls, and for the largest bowl ;
Because, all other vice unlike, it flies,
In fact, the point, in fancy most pursu'd.
Who court applause, oblige the world in this ;
They gratify man's passion to refuse.

Superior honor, when assum'd, is lost ;
 Ev'n good men turn banditti, and rejoice,
 Like Kouli-Kan, in plunder of the proud.

Though somewhat disconcerted, steady still
 To the world's cause, with half a face of joy,
 Lorenzo cries—" Be, then, ambition cast ;
 " Ambition's dearer far stands unimpeach'd,
 " Gay pleasure ! proud ambition is her slave ;
 " For her, he soars at great, and hazards ill ;
 " For her, he fights, and bleeds, or overcomes ;
 " And paves his way, with crowns, to reach her smile :
 " Who can resist her charms ?"—Or, should ? Lorenzo !

What mortal shall resist, where angels yield ?
 Pleasure's the mistress of ethereal powers ;
 For her contend the rival gods above :
 Pleasure's the mistress of the world below :
 And well it is for man, that pleasure charms ;
 How would all stagnate, but for pleasure's ray !
 How would the frozen stream of action cease !
 What is the pulse of this so busy world ?
 The love of pleasure : that, through every vein,
 Throws motion, warmth ; and shuts out death from life.

Though various are the tempers of mankind,
 Pleasure's gay family holds all in chains :
 Some most affect the black ; and some the fair ;
 Some honest pleasures court ; and some, obscene.
 Pleasures obscene are various, as the throng
 Of passions, that can err in human hearts ;
 Mistake their objects, or transgress their bounds.
 Think you there's but one whoredom ? whoredom, all,
 But when our reason licences delight.
 Dost doubt, Lorenzo ? thou shalt doubt no more.
 Thy father chides thy gallantries ! yet hugs
 An ugly, common harlot in the dark ;
 A rank adulterer with other's gold ;
 And that hag, vengeance, in a corner, charms.
 Hatred her brothel has, as well as love,
 Where horrid epicures debauch in blood.
 Whate'er the motive, pleasure is the mark :
 For her, the black assassin draws his sword ;

For her, dark statesmen trim their midnight lamp,
To which no single sacrifice may fall ;
For her, the saint abstains ; the miser starves ;
The stoic proud, for pleasure, pleasure scorn'd ;
For her affliction's daughters grief indulge,
And find, or hope, a luxury in tears :
For her, guilt, shame, toil, danger, we defy ;
And, with an aim voluptuous, rush on death ;
Thus universal her despotic power.

And as her empire wide, her praise is just.
Patron of pleasure ! doted on delight !
I am thy rival ; pleasure I profess ;
Pleasure's the purpose of my gloomy song.
Pleasure is nought but virtue's gayer name ;
I wrong her still, I rate her worth too low ;
Virtue the root, and pleasure is the flower ;
And honest Epicurus' foes were fools.
But this sounds harsh, and gives the wise offence ;
If o'erstrain'd wisdom still retains the name,
How knits austerity her cloudy brow,
And blames, as bold, and hazardous, the praise
Of pleasure, to mankind, unprais'd, too dear !
Ye modern stoics ! hear my soft reply :—
Their senses men will trust : we can't impose ;
Or, if we could, is imposition right ?
Own honey sweet ; but, owning, add the sting ;
“ When mix'd with poison, it is deadly too.”
Truth never was indebted to a lie.
Is nought but virtue to be prais'd, as good ?
Why then is health preferr'd before disease ?
What nature loves is good, without our leave,
And where no future drawback cries, “ Beware ;”
Pleasure, though not from virtue, should prevail.
’Tis balm to life, and gratitude to heaven ;
How cold our thanks for bounties unenjoy'd !
The love of pleasure is man's eldest-born,
Born in his cradle, living to his tomb ;
Wisdom, her younger sister, though more grave,
Was meant to minister, and not to mar,
Imperial pleasure, queen of human hearts.
Lorenzo ! thou, her majesty's renown'd,
Though uncoif'd, counsel, learned in the world !

'st thyself a Murray, with disdain look on me. Yet, my Demosthenes !
 thou plead pleasure's cause as well as I ?
 thou her nature, purpose, parentage ?
 my song, and thou shalt know them all ;
 w thyself ; and know thyself to be truth !) the most abstemious man alive.
 Calista ; she will laugh thee dead ;
 hee to her hermitage with L——.
 presumption ! Thou, who never knewest thought ! shalt thou dare dream of joy ?
 e'er found a happy life by chance ;
 d it into being, with a wish ;
 the snout of grov'ling appetite,
 t it out, and grubb'd ti from the dirt.
 is, and must be learnt ; and learnt emitting effort, or be lost ;
 : us perfect blockheads, in our bliss.
 ds may drop down titles and estates ;
 ay seek us ; but wisdom must be sought ;
 fore all ; but (how unlike all else on earth !) 'tis never sought in vain.
 leasure's birth, rise, strength, and grandeur,
 irth by wisdom, nurs'd by discipline,
 e taught, by perseverance crown'd,
 her head majestic ; round her throne,
 the bosom of the just,
 ie, listed, forms her manly guard.
 re virtue's ? (formidable name !)
 : the fountain or defence of joy ?
 , commanded ? Need mankind commands,
 , merit, and to make, their bliss ?—
 slator ! scarce so great, as kind !
 rational, and love delight,
 us law but flatters human choice ;
 isgression lies the penalty ;
 he most indulge, who most obey.
 sure next, the final cause explore ;
 purpose, its important end.
 human, brutal but to build

Divine on human, pleasure came from heaven.
 In aid to reason was the goddess sent ;
 To call up all its strength by such a charm.
 Pleasure, first succors virtue ; in return,
 Virtue gives pleasure an eternal reign.
 What, but the pleasure of food, friendship, faith,
 Supports life nat'ral, civil, and divine ?
 'Tis from the pleasure of repast, we live,
 'Tis from the pleasure of applause, we please ;
 'Tis from the pleasure of belief, we pray ;
 (All prayer would cease, if unbeliev'd the prize :)
 It serves ourselves, our species, and our God ;
 And to serve more is past the sphere of man.
 Glide, then, forever, pleasure's sacred stream !
 Through Eden as Euphrates ran, it runs,
 And fosters every growth of happy life ;
 Makes a new Eden where it flows ;—but such
 As must be lost, Lorenzo ! by thy fall.

“What mean I by thy fall ?”—Thou'lt shortly see
 While pleasure's nature is at large display'd ;—
 Already sung her origin, and ends.
 Those glorious ends, by kind, or by degree,
 When pleasure violates, 'tis then a vice,
 And vengeance too ; it hastens into pain.
 From due refreshment, life, health, reason, joy ;
 From wild excess, pain, grief, distraction, death ;
 Heaven's justice this proclaims, and that her loss.
 What greater evil can I wish my foe,
 Than his full draught of pleasure, from a cask
 Unbroach'd by just authority, ungaug'd
 By temperance, by reason unrefin'd ?
 A thousand dæmons lurk within the lee.
 Heaven, others, and ourselves ! Uninjur'd there,
 Drink deep ; the deeper then, the more divine ;
 Angels are angels from indulgence there ;
 'Tis unrepenting pleasure makes a god.
 Dost think thyself a god from other joys ?
 A victim rather ! shortly sure to bleed.
 The wrong must mourn : can Heaven's appointment fail ?

Can man out-wit Omnipotence ? strike out
 A self-wrought happiness unmeant by him

Who made us, and the world we would enjoy ?
 Who forms an instrument, ordains from whence
 Its dissonance, or harmony, shall rise.
 Heaven bid the soul this mortal frame inspire ;
 Bid virtue's ray divine inspire the soul
 With unprecious flows of vital joy ;
 And, without breathing, man as well might hope
 For life, as, without piety, for peace.

"Is virtue, then, and piety the same?"—

No ; piety is more ; 'tis virtue's source ;
 Mother of every worth, as that of joy.
 Men of the world this doctrine ill digest ;
 They smile at piety ; yet boast aloud
 Good-will to men ; nor know they strive to part
 What nature joins ; and thus confute themselves.
 With piety begins all good on earth ;
 'Tis the first born of rationality.
 Conscience, her first law broken, wounded lies ;
 Enfeebled, lifeless, impotent to good ;
 A feign'd affection bounds her utmost power.
 Some we can't love, but for the Almighty's sake ;
 A foe to God was ne'er true friend to man :
 Some sinister intent taints all he does ;
 And, in his kindest actions, he's unkind.

On piety, humanity is built :
 And, on humanity, much happiness ;
 And yet still more on piety itself.
 A soul in commerce with her God, is heaven ;
 Feels not the tumults and the shocks of life ;
 The whirls of passion, and the strokes of heart.
 A Deity believ'd, is joy begun ;
 A Deity ador'd, is joy advanc'd ;
 A Deity belov'd, is joy matur'd.
 Each branch of piety delight inspires ;
 Faith builds a bridge from this world to the next,
 O'er death's dark gulph, and all its horror hides ;
 Praise, the sweet exhalation of our joy,
 That joy exalts, and makes it sweeter still ;
 Prayer ardent opens heaven, lets down a stream
 Of glory on the consecrated hour
 Of man, in audience with the Deity.

Who worships the great GOD, that instant joins
The first in Heaven, and sets his foot on hell.

Lorenzo ! when wast thou at church before ?
Thou think'st the service long : but is it just ?
Though just, unwelcome : thou hadst rather tread
Unhallow'd ground ; the muse, to win thine ear,
Must take an air less solemn. She complies.

Good conscience ! at the sound the world retires ;
Verse disaffects it, and Lorenzo smiles ;
Yet has she her seraglio full of charms ;
And such as age shall heighten, nor impair.
Art thou dejected ? is thy mind o'ercast ?
Amid her fair ones, thou the fairest choose,
To chase thy gloom.—“ Go, fix some weighty truth ;
“ Chain down some passion ; do some generous good ;
“ Teach ignorance to see, or grief to smile ;
“ Correct thy friend ; befriend thy greatest foe ;
“ Or with warm heart, and confidence divine,
“ Spring up, and lay strong hold on him who made thee.”

—Thy gloom is scatter'd, sprightly spirits flow ;
Though wither'd is thy vine, and harp unstrung.

Dost call the bowl, the viol, and the dance,
Loud mirth, mad laughter ? wretched comforters !
Physicians ! more than half of thy disease.
Laughter, though never censur'd yet as sin,
(Pardon a thought that only seems severe)
Is half-immoral : is it much indulg'd ?
By venting spleen, or dissipating thought,
It shews a scorner, or it makes a fool ;
And sins, as hurting others, or ourselves.
’Tis pride, or emptiness, applies the straw,
That tickles little minds to mirth effuse ;
Of grief approaching, the portentous sign !
The house of laughter makes a house of woe.
A man triumphant is a monstrous sight ;
A man dejected is a sight as mean.

What cause for triumph, where such ills abound ?

What for dejection, where presides a power,

Who call'd us into being to be blest ?

So grieve, as conscious, grief may rise to joy ;
So joy, as conscious, joy to grief may fall.

Most true, a wise man never will be sad ;
But neither will sonorous, bubbling mirth,
A shallow stream of happiness betray :
Too happy to be sportive, he's serene.

Yet wouldst thou laugh (but at thy own expence)
This counsel strange should I presume to give—“Retire, and read thy Bible, to be gay.”

There truths abound of sovereign aid to peace ;
Ah ! do not prize them less, because inspir'd,
As thou, and thine, are apt and proud to do.
If not inspir'd, that pregnant page had stood,
Time's treasure ! and the wonder of the wise !
Thou think'st, perhaps, thy soul alone at stake ;
Alas !—Should men mistake thee for a fool ;—
What man of taste for genius, wisdom, truth,
Though tender of thy fame, could interpose ?
Believe me, sense, here acts a double part,
And the true critic is a Christian too.

But these, thou think'st, are gloomy paths to joy—
True joy in sunshine ne'er was found at first ;
They, first, themselves offend, who greatly please ;
And travel only gives us sound repose.
Heaven sells all pleasure ; effort is the price ;
The joys of conquest, are the joys of man ;
And glory the victorious laurel spreads
O'er pleasure's pure, perpetual, placid stream.

There is a time, when toil must be preferr'd,
Or joy, by mis-tim'd fondness is undone.

A man of pleasure is a man of pains.

Thou wilt not take the trouble to be blest.

False joys, indeed, are born from want of thought ;
From thought's full bent, and energy, the true ;
And that demands a mind in equal poize,
Remote from gloomy grief, and glaring joy.
Much joy not only speaks small happiness,
But happiness that shortly must expire.

Can joy, unbottom'd in reflection, stand ?

And, in a tempest, can reflection live ?

Can joy, like thine, secure itself an hour ?

Can joy, like thine, meet accident unshock'd ?

Or ope the door to honest poverty ?

Or talk with threatening death, and not turn pale ?

In such a world, and such a nature, these
 Are needful fundamentals of delight :
 These fundamentals give delight indeed ;
 Delight, pure, delicate, and durable ;
 Delight, unshaken, masculine, divine ;
 A constant, and a sound, but serious joy.

Is joy the daughter of severity ?
 It is :—Yet far my doctrine from severe.
 “ Rejoice for ever ;” it become a man ;
 Exalts, and sets him nearer to the gods.
 “ Rejoice for ever,” nature cries, “ rejoice ;”
 And drinks to man, in her nectarious cup,
 Mixt up of delicacies for every sense ;
 To the great founder of the bounteous feast,
 Drinks glory, gratitude, eternal praise ;
 And he that will not pledge her, is a churl.
 Ill firmly to support, good fully taste,
 Is the whole science of felicity :
 Yet sparing pledge : her bowl is not the best
 Mankind can boast.—A rational repast ;
 “ Exertion, vigilance, a mind in arms,
 “ A military discipline of thought,
 “ To foil temptation in the doubtful field ;
 “ And ever-waking ardor for the right ;”
 ’Tis these, first give, then guard, a cheerful heart.
 Nought that is right, think little ; well aware,
 What reason bids, God bids ; by his command
 How aggrandiz’d, the smallest thing we do !
 Thus, nothing is insipid to the wise ;
 To thee, insipid all, but what is mad ;
 Joy’s season’d high, and tasting strong of guilt.
 “ Mad ? (thou reply’st, with indignation fir’d)
 “ Of ancient sages proud to tread the steps,
 “ I follow nature.”—Follow nature still,
 But look it be thine own : Is conscience, then,
 No part of nature ? is she not supreme ?
 Thou regicide ! O raise her from the dead !
 Then, follow nature ; and resemble God.

When spite of conscience, pleasure is purr’d,
 Man’s nature is unnaturally pleas’d :
 And what’s unnatural, is painful too
 At intervals, and must disgust ev’n thee !

The fact thou know'st ; but, not, perhaps, the cause.
Virtue's foundations with the world's were laid ;
Heaven mixt her with our make, and twisted close
Her sacred int'rests with the strings of life.
Who breaks her awful mandate, shocks himself,
His better self : And is it greater pain,
Our soul should murmur, or our dust repine ?
And one, in their eternal war, must bleed.

If one must suffer, which should least be spar'd ?
The pains of mind surpass the pains of sense.
Ask, then, the gout, what torment is in guilt.
The joys of sense to mental joys are mean :
Sense on the present only feeds ; the soul
On past, and future, forages for joy.
'Tis her's, by retrospect, through time to range ;
And forward time's great sequel to survey.
Could human courts take vengeance on the mind,
Axes might rust, and racks, and gibbets, fall :
Guard then, thy mind, and leave the rest to fate.

Lorenzo ! wilt thou never be a man ?
The man is dead who for the body lives,
Lur'd, by the beating of his pulse to list
With every lust, that wars against his peace ;
And sets him quite at variance with himself.
Thyself, first know ; then love : a self there is
Of virtue fond, that kindles at her charms.
A self there is, as fond of every vice,
While every virtue wounds it to the heart ;
Humility degrades it, justice robs,
Blest bounty beggars it, fair truth betrays,
And godlike magnanimity destroys.
This self, when rival to the former, scorns ;
When not in competition, kindly treat,
Defend it, feed it :—But when virtue bids,
Toss it, or to the fowls, or to the flames.
And why ? 'tis love of pleasure bids thee bleed ;
Comply, or own self-love extinct, or blind.

For what is vice ? self-love in a mistake ;
A poor blind merchant buying joys too dear,
And virtue, what ? 'tis self-love in her wits,
Quite skilful in the market of delight.
Self-love's good sense is love of that dread power,

From whom she springs, and all she can enjoy.
Other self-love is but disguis'd self-hate ;
More mortal than the malice of our foes ;
A self-hate, now, scarce felt ; then felt full-sore,
When being, curst ; extinction, loud-implor'd ;
And every thing preferr'd to what we are.

Yet this self-love Lorenzo makes his choice ;
And in this choice triumphant, boasts of joy.
How is his want of happiness betray'd,
By disaffection to the present hour !
Imagination wanders far a-field :
The future pleases : Why ? the present pains.—
“ But that's a secret.”—Yes, which all men know ;
And know from thee, discover'd unawares.
Thy ceaseless agitation, restless rolls
From cheat to cheat, impatient of a pause ;
What is it ?—'tis the cradle of the soul,
From instinct sent, to rock her in disease,
Which her physician, reason, will not cure.
A poor expedient ! yet thy best ; and while
It mitigates thy pain, it owns it too.

Such are Lorenzo's wretched remedies !
The weak have remedies ; the wise have joys.
Superior wisdom is superior bliss.
And what sure mark distinguishes the wise ?
Consistent wisdom ever wills the same ;
Thy fickle wish is ever on the wing,
Sick of herself, is folly's character ;
As wisdom's is, a modest self-applause.
A change of evils is thy good supreme ;
Nor, but in motion, canst thou find thy rest.
Man's greatest strength is shewn in standing still.
The first sure symptom of a mind in health,
Is rest of heart, and pleasure felt at home.
False pleasure from abroad her joys imports ;
Rich from within, and self-sustain'd the true.
The true is fix'd, and solid as a rock ;
Slipp'ry the false, and tossing, as the wave.
This, a wild wanderer on earth, like Cain,
That, like the fabled, self-enamour'd boy,
Home-contemplation her supreme delight.

She dreads an interruption from without,
Smit with her own condition ; and the more
Intense she gazes, still it charms the more.

No man is happy, till he thinks, on earth
There breathes not a more happy than himself :
Then envy dies, and love o'erflows on all ;
And love o'erflowing makes an angel here.
Such angels all, entitled to repose

On him who governs fate : though tempest frowns,
Though nature shakes, how soft to lean on heaven !
To lean on him, on whom archangels lean !
With inward eyes, and silent as the grave,
They stand collecting every beam of thought,
Till their hearts kindle with divine delight ;
For all their thoughts, like angels, seen of old
In Israel's dream, come from, and go to, heaven :
Hence, are they studious of sequest' red scenes ;
While noise, and dissipation, comfort thee.

Were all men happy, revellings would cease,
That opiate for inquietude within.
Lorenzo ! never man was truly blest,
But it compos'd, and gave him such a cast,
As folly might mistake for want of joy.
A cast, unlike the triumph of the proud ;
A modest aspect, and a smile at heart.
O for a joy from thy Philander's spring !
A spring perennial, rising in the breast,
And permanent as pure ! no turbid stream
Of rapt'rous exultation, swelling high ;
Which like land-floods, impetuous pour awhile,
Then sink at once, and leave us in the mire.
What does the man, who transient joy prefers ?
What, but prefer the bubbles to the stream ?

Vain are all sudden sallies of delight ;
Convulsions of a weak distemper'd joy.
Joy's a fix'd state ; a tenure, not a start.
Bliss there is none, but unprecious bliss ;
That is the gem : Sell all, and purchase that.
Why go a begging to contingences,
Not gain'd with ease, nor safety lov'd, if gain'd ?
At good fortunes, draw back, and pause ;

Suspect it ; what thou canst ensure, enjoy ;
And nought but what thou giv'st thyself, is sure.
Reason perpetuates joy that reason gives,
And makes it as immortal as herself :

To mortals, nought immortal, but their worth.

Worth, conscious worth ! should absolutely reign ;
And other joys ask leave for their approach ;
Nor unexamined, ever leave obtain.

Thou art all anarchy ; a mob of joys

Wage war, and perish in intestine broils ;

Not the least promise of internal peace !

No bosom-comfort but unborrow'd bliss !

Thy thoughts are vagabonds : all outward-bound,
'Mid sands, and rocks, and storms, to cruise for pleasure ;

If gain'd dear-bought ; and better miss'd than gain'd.

Much pain must expiate, what much pain procur'd.

Fancy, and sense, from an infected shore,

Thy cargo bring ; and pestilence the prize.

Then, such thy thirst (insatiable thirst !

By fond indulgence but inflam'd the more !)

Fancy still cruises, when poor sense is tir'd.

Imagination is the Paphian shop,

Where feeble happiness, like Vulcan, lame,

Bids foul ideas, in their dark recess,

And hot as hell (which kindled the black fires),

With wanton art, those fatal arrows form,

Which murder all thy time, health, wealth, and fame.

Wouldst thou receive them, other thoughts there are,

On angel-wing descending from above,

Which these, with art divine, would counter-work,

And form celestial armor for thy peace.

In this is seen imaginations guilt ;

But who can count her follies ? She betrays thee,

To think in grandeur there is something great.

For works of curious art, and ancient fame,

Thy genius hungers, elegantly pain'd ;

And foreign climes must cater for thy taste.

Hence, what disaster ?—Though the price was paid,

That persecuting priest, the Turk of Rome,

Whose foot (ye gods !) though cloven, must be seen

Detain'd thy dinner on the Latian shore ;

Such is the fate of honest protestants !)
 And poor magnificence is starv'd to death.
 Hence just resentment, indignation, ire !—
 Be pacify'd ; if outward things are great,
 'Tis magnanimity great things to scorn ;
 Pompous expences, and parades august,
 And courts ; that insalubrious soil to peace.
 True happiness ne'er enter'd at an eye ;
 True happiness resides in things unseen.
 No smiles of fortune ever blest the bad,
 Nor can her frowns rob innocence of joys ;
 That jewel wanting, triple crowns are poor ;
 To tell his Holiness,* and be reveng'd.

Pleasure, we both agree, is man's chief good ;
 Our only contest, what deserves the name.
 Give pleasure's name to nought, but what has pass'd.
 The authentic seal of reason (which, like Yorke, Demurs on what it passes,) and defies.
 The tooth of time ; when past, a pleasure still ;
 Dearer on trial, lovelier for its age,
 And doubly to be priz'd, as it promotes
 Our future, while it forms our present joy.
 Some joys the future overcast ; and some
 Throw all their beams that way, and gild the tomb.
 Some joys endear eternity ; some give
 Abhor'd annihilation dreadful charms.
 Are rival joys contending for thy choice ?
 Consult thy whole existence, and be safe ;
 That oracle will put all doubt to flight.
 Short is the lesson, though my lecture long.
 Be good—and let heaven answer for the rest.

Yet, with a sigh o'er all mankind, I grant,
 In this our day of proof, our land of hope,
 The good man has his clouds that intervene ;
 Clouds, that obscure his sublunary day,
 But never conquer : ev'n the best must own,
 Patience, and resignation, are the pillars
 Of human peace on earth. The pillars, these ;
 But those of Seth not more remote from thee,
 Till this heroic lesson thou hast learnt ;
 To frown at pleasure, and to smile in pain.

* The Pope.

Fir'd at the prospect of unclouded bliss,
 Heaven, in reversion, like the sun, as yet
 Beneath the horizon, cheers us in this world ;
 It sheds, on souls susceptible of light,
 The glorious dawn of our eternal day.

 " And lays his labor level with the world ?"

Themselves men make their comment on manki
 And think nought is but what they find at home :
 Thus, weakness to chimera turns the truth.
 Nothing romantic has the muse prescrib'd.

* Above, Lorenzo saw the man of earth,
 The mortal man ; and wretched was the sight.
 To balance that, to comfort, and exalt,
 Now see the man immortal : Him, I mean,
 Who lives as such ; whose heart, full bent on heav
 Leans all that way, his bias to the stars.
 The world's dark shades, in contrast set, shall rais
 His lustre more ; though bright without a foil :
 Observe his awful portrait, and admire ;
 Nor stop at wonder ; imitate, and live.

Some angel guide my pencil, while I draw,
 What nothing less than angel can exceed,
 A man on earth devoted to the skies :
 Like ships at sea, while in, above the world.

With aspect mild, and elevated eye,
 Behold him seated on a mount serene,
 Above the fogs of sense, and passion's storm ;
 All the black cares, and tumults, of this life,
 (Like harmless thunders, breaking at his feet,)
 Excite his pity, not impair his peace.
 Earth's genuine sons, the scepter'd and the slave,
 A mingled mob ! a wand'ring herd ! he sees,
 Bewilder'd in the vale ! in all unlike !

His full reverse in all ! What higher praise ?
 What stronger demonstration of the right ?

The present all their care ; the future his.
 When public welfare calls, or private want,

* In a former Night.

They give to fame ; his bounty he conceals.
 Their virtues varnish nature ; his, exalt.
 Mankind's esteem they court ; and he, his own.
 Theirs the wild chase of false felicities ;
 His, the compos'd possession of the true.
 Alike throughout is his consistent piece,
 All of one color, and an even thread ;
 While party-color'd shreds of happiness,
 With hideous gaps between, patch up for them
 A madman's robe ; each puff of fortune blows
 The tatters by, and shews their nakedness.

He sees with other eyes than theirs : where they Behold a sun, he spies a deity ;
 What makes them only smile, makes him adore.
 Where they see mountains, he but atoms sees ;
 An empire, in his balance, weighs a grain.
 They things terrestrial worship, as divine ;
 His hopes immortal blow them by, as dust,
 That dims his sight, and shortens his survey,
 Which longs in infinite, to lose all bound.
 Titles and honors (if they prove his fate)
 He lays aside to find his dignity ;
 No dignity they find in ought besides.
 They triumph, in externals (which conceal Man's real glory,) proud of an eclipse.
 Himself too much he prizes to be proud,
 And nothing thinks so great in man, as man.
 Too dear he holds his int'rest, to neglect
 Another's welfare, or his right invade ;
 Their int'rest, like a lion, lives on prey.
 They kindle at the shadow of a wrong ;
 Wrong he sustains with temper, looks on heav'n,
 Nor stoops to think his injurer his foe ;
 Nought, but what wounds his virtue, wounds his peace.

A cover'd heart their character defends ;
 A cover'd heart denies him half his praise.
 With nakedness his innocence agrees ;
 While their broad foliage testifies their fall.
 Their no-joys end, where his full feast begins :
 His joys create, theirs murder, future bliss.
 To triumph in existence, his alone ;

And his alone, triumphantly to think
His true existence is not yet begun.
His glorious course was, yesterday, complete;
Death, then, was welcome; yet life still is sweet.

But nothing charms Lorenzo, like the firm,
Undaunted breast—And whose is that high prize?
They yield to pleasure, though they danger know,
And shew no fortitude, but in the field;
If there they shew it, 'tis for glory shewn;
Nor will that cordial always man their hearts.
A cordial his sustains, that cannot fail:
By pleasure unsubdu'd, unbroke by pain,
He shares in that Omnipotence he trusts.
All-bearing, all-attempting, till he falls;
And when he falls, writes VICI* on his shield.
From magnanimity, all fear above;
From nobler recompence, above applause;
Which owes to man's short out-look all its charms.

Backward to credit what he never felt,
Lorenzo cries,—Where shines this miracle?
“From what root rises this immortal man?”
A root that grows not in Lorenzo's ground;
The root dissect, nor wonder at the flower.

He follows nature, (not like † thee) and shews
An uninverted system of a man.
His appetite wears reason's golden chain,
And finds, in due restraint, its luxury.
His passion, like an eagle well-reclaim'd,
Is taught to fly at nought, but infinite.
Patient his hope, un-anxious is his care,
His caution fearless, and his grief (if grief
The gods ordain) a stranger to despair.
And why?—Because affection, more than most,
His wisdom leaves not disengag'd from Heaven.
Those secondary goods that smile on earth,
He, loving, in proportion, loves in peace.
They most the world enjoy, who least admire.
His understanding 'scapes the common cloud
Of fumes, arising from a boiling breast;
His head is clear, because his heart is cool,
By worldly competitions uninflam'd.

* I have conquer'd.

† See page 184, line 103.

The moderate movements of his soul admit
 Distinct ideas, and matur'd debate,
 An eye impartial, and an even scale;
 Whence judgment sound, and unrepenting choice.
 Thus, in a double sense, the good are wise;
 On its own dunghill, wiser than the world.
 What, then, the world? It must be doubly weak;
 Strange truth! as soon would they believe the creed.

Yet thus it is; nor otherwise can be;
 So far from aught romantic what I sing.
 Bliss has no being, virtue has no strength,
 But from the prospect of immortal life.
 Who thinks earth all, or (what weighs just the same)
 Who cares no farther, must prize what it yields:
 Fond of its fancies, proud of its parades.
 Who thinks earth nothing, can't its charms admire;
 He can't a foe, though most malignant, hate,
 Because that hate would prove his greater foe.
 'Tis hard for them (yet who so loudly boast
 Good-will to men?) to love their dearest friend;
 For may not he invade their good supreme,
 Where the least jealousy turns love to gall?
 All shines to them, that for a season shines.
 Each act, each thought, he questions, "What its weight,

"Its color what, a thousand ages hence?"—
 And what it there appears, he deems it now.
 Hence, pure are the recesses of his soul.
 The god-like man has nothing to conceal.
 His virtue, constitutionally deep,
 His habit's firmness, and affection's flame;
 Angels, ally'd, descend to feed their fire;
 And death, which others slays, makes him a god.

And now, Lorenzo! bigot of this world!
 Wont to disdain poor bigots caught by heaven!
 Stand by thy scorn, and be reduc'd to nought:
 For what art thou?—thou boaster! while thy glare,
 Thy gaudy grandeur, and mere worldly worth,
 Like a broad mist, at distance strikes us most;
 And, like a mist, is nothing when at hand.
 His merit, like a mountain, on approach,
 Swells more, and rises nearer to the skies.

By promise, now; and by possession, soon,
(Too soon, too much, it cannot be) his own.

From this thy just annihilation rise,
Lorenzo! rise to something, by reply.

The world, thy client, listens, and expects;
And longs to crown thee with immortal praise:
Canst thou be silent? No; for wit is thine;
And wit talks most, when least she has to say,
And reason interrupts not her career.

She'll say—That mists above the mountains rise
And, with a thousand pleasantries, amuse:
She'll sparkle, puzzle, flutter, raise a dust,
And fly conviction, in the dust she rais'd.

Wit, how delicious to man's dainty taste!
'Tis precious, as the vehicle of sense;
But, as its substitute, a dire disease.

Pernicious talent! Flatter'd by the world,
By the blind world, which thinks the talent rare
Wisdom is rare, Lorenzo! wit abounds;
Passion can give it; sometimes wine inspires
The lucky flash: and madness rarely fails.

Whatever cause the spirit strongly stirs,
Confers the bays, and rivals thy renown.

For thy renown, 'twere well, was this the worst
Chance often hits it, and, to pique thee more,
See dullness, blundering on vivacities,
Shakes her sage head at the calamity,
Which has expos'd, and let her down to thee.

But wisdom, awful wisdom! which inspects,
Discerns, compares, weighs, separates, infers,
Seizes the right, and holds it to the last;

How rare! in senates, synods, sought in vain;
Or if there found, 'tis sacred to the few;

While a lewd prostitute to multitudes,
Frequent, as fatal, wit: in civil life,

Wit makes an enterprizer; sense a man.
Wit hates authority; commotion loves,

And thinks herself the lightning of the storm.
In states, 'tis dangerous; in religion, death;

Shall wit turn Christian, when the dull believe
Sense is our helmet, wit is but the plume;

The plume exposes, 'tis our helmet saves.

Sense is the diamond, weighty, solid, sound ;
 When cut by wit, it casts a brighter beam ;
 Yet, wit apart, it is a diamond still.
 Wit, widow'd of good sense, is worse than nought :
 It hoists more sail to run against a rock.
 Thus, a half-Chesterfield is quite a fool ;
 Whom dull fools scorn, and bless their want of wit.

How ruinous the rock I warn thee shun,
 Where syrens sit, to sing thee to thy fate !
 A joy, in which our reason bears no part,
 Is but a sorrow tickling, ere it stings.
 Let not the cooings of the world allure thee :
 Which of her lovers ever found her true ?
 Happy ! of this bad world who little know !—
 And yet, we much must know her, to be safe.
 To know the world, not love her, is thy point ;
 She gives but little, nor that little, long.
 There is, I grant, a triumph of the pulse ;
 A dance of spirits, a mere froth of joy,
 Our thoughtless agitation's idle child,
 That mantles high, that sparkles, and expires,
 Leaving the soul more vapid than before.

An animal ovation ! such as holds
 No commerce with our reason, but subsists
 On juices, through the well-ton'd tubes, well-strain'd :
 A nice machine ! scarce ever tun'd aright ;
 And when it jars—thy syrens sing no more ;
 Thy dance is done ; the demi-god is thrown (Short apotheosis !) beneath the man,
 In coward gloom immers'd, or fell despair.

Art thou yet dull enough despair to dread,
 And startle at destruction ? If thou art,
 Accept a buckler, take it to the field ;
 (A field of battle is this mortal life !)

When danger threatens, lay it on thy heart ;
 A single sentence proof against the world.

Soul, body, fortune ! every good pertains
 To one of these ; but prize not all alike ;
 The goods of fortune to thy body's health,
 Body to soul, and soul submit to God."

Would'st thou build lasting happiness ? do this :
 The inverted pyramid can never stand.

Is this truth doubtful? it outshines the sun;
 Nay, the sun shines not, but to shew us this;
 The single lesson of mankind on earth.
 And yet—yet what? no news! mankind is mad;
 Such mighty numbers list against the right,
 (And what can't numbers, when bewitch'd, achieve?)
 They talk themselves to something like belief,
 That all earth's joys are theirs: as Athens' fool
 Grinn'd from the port, on every sail his own.

They grin, but wherefore? and how long the laugh!
 Half ignorance their mirth; and half, a lie;
 To cheat the world, and cheat themselves, they smile.
 Hard either task! the most abandon'd own,
 That others, if abandon'd, are undone:

Then, for themselves, the moment reason wakes,
 (And Providence denies it long repose)

O how laborious is their gaiety!
 They scarce can swallow their ebullient spleen,
 Scarce muster patience to support the farce,
 And pump sad laughter, till the curtain falls.
 Scarce, did I say? Some cannot bit it out;
 Oft their own daring hands, the curtain draw,
 And shew us what their joy, by their despair.

The clotted hair! gor'd breast! blaspheming eye!
 Its impious fury still alive in death!—

Shut, shut the shocking scene.—But Heaven denies
 A cover to such guilt; and so, should man.

Look round! Lorenzo! see the reeking blade,
 The invenom'd phial, and the fatal ball;
 The strangling cord, and suffocating stream;
 The loathsome rottenness, and soul decays
 From raging riot (slower suicides!)

And pride in these, more execrable still!—
 How horrid all to thought!—But horrors, these,
 That vouch the truth; and aid my feeble song.

From vice, sense, fancy, no man can be blest;
 Bliss is too great, to lodge within an hour:

When an immortal being aims at bliss,

Duration is essential to the name.

O for a joy from reason! joy from that,
 Which makes man, man; and, exercis'd aright,
 Will make him more: a bounteous joy! that gives

And promises ; that weaves, with art divine,
 The richest prospect into present peace :
 A joy ambitious ! joy in common held
 With thrones ethereal, and their greater far :
 A joy high-privileg'd from chance, time, death !
 A joy, which death shall double ! judgment crown !
 Crown'd higher, and still higher, at each stage,
 Through blest eternity's long day ; yet still,
 Not more remote from sorrow than from him,
 Whose lavish hand, whose love stupendous, pours
 So much of deity on guilty dust.

There, O my Lucia ! may I meet thee there,
 Where not thy presence can improve my bliss !

Affect not this the sages of the world ?

Can nought affect them, but what fools them too ?

Eternity, depending on an hour,
 Makes serious thought man's wisdom, joy, and praise.
 Nor need you blush (though sometimes your designs
 May shun the light) at your designs on heaven :
 Sole point ! where over-bashful is your blame.

Are you not wise ?—You know you are : yet hear
 One truth, amid your numerous schemes, mislaid,
 Or overlook'd, or thrown aside, if seen ;

“ Our schemes to plan by this world, or the next,
 “ Is the sole difference between wise and fool.”

All worthy men will weigh you in this scale ;
 What wonder then, if they pronounce you light ?
 Is their esteem alone not worth your care ?

Accept my simple scheme of common sense :

Thus, save your fame, and make two worlds your own.

The world replies not ;—but the world persists,

And puts the cause off to the longest day,

Planning evasions for the day of doom.

So far, at that re-hearing, from redress,

They then turn witnesses against themselves.

Hear that, Lorenzo ! nor be wise to-morrow.

Haste, haste ! a man by nature is in haste ;

For who shall answer for another hour ?

'Tis highly prudent, to make one sure friend ;

And that thou canst not do, this side the skies.

Ye sons of earth ! (nor willing to be more !)

Since verse you think from priestcraft somewhat free

Thus, in an age so gay, the muse plain truths (Truths, which, at church, you might have hear prose)

Has ventur'd into light ; well pleas'd the verse
Should be forgot, if you the truths retain ;
And crown her with your welfare, not your praise
But praise she need not fear : I see my fate ;
And headlong leap, like Curtius, down the gulph
Since many an ample volume, mighty tome,
Must die, and die unwept : O thou minute,
Devoted page ! go forth among thy foes ;
Go, nobly proud of martyrdom for truth,
And die a double death : mankind, incens'd,
Denies thee long to live : ner shalt thou rest,
When thou art dead ; in stygian shades arraign'd
By Lucifer, as traitor to his throne ;
And bold blasphemer of his friend,—the world ;
The world, whose legions cost him slender pay,
And volunteers, around his banner swarm ;
Prudent as Prussia, in her zeal for Gaul.

“ Are all, then, fools ? ” Lorenzo cries—yes, all
But such as hold this doctrine (new to thee !)

“ The mother of true wisdom is the will ; ”

The noblest intellect, a fool without it.

World-wisdom much has done, and more may do

In arts and sciences, in wars and peace ;

But art and science, like thy wealth, will leave thee

And make thee twice a beggar at thy death.

This is the most indulgence can afford ;—

“ Thy wisdom all can do, but—make thee wise.

Nor think this censure is severe on thee ;

Satan, thy master, I dare call a dunce.

END OF NIGHT THE EIGHTH.

THE CONSOLATION.

NIGHT IX.

Containing, among other things,

1. A MORAL SURVEY OF THE NOCTURNAL HEAVENS.
2. A NIGHT ADDRESS TO THE DEITY.

Inscribed to his Grace
THE DUKE OF NEWCASTLE,
One of his Majesty's principal Secretaries of State.

....Pecunia contraria fata repellens. Virg.

S when a traveller, a long day past
In painful search of what he cannot find,
Night's approach, content with the next cot,
ere ruminates awhile, his labor lost ;
en cheers his heart with what his fate affords,
d chants his sonnet to deceive the time,
l the due season calls him to repose :
us I, long travell'd in the ways of men,
d dancing, with the rest, the giddy maze,
ere disappointment smiles at hope's career ;
arn'd by the languor of life's evening ray,
length have hous'd me in an humble shed ;
here, future wand'ring banish'd from my thought,
d waiting, patient, the sweet hour of rest ;
hase the moments with a serious song.
ng soothes our pains ; and age has pains to soothe.
When age, care, crime, and friends embrac'd at heart,
on from my bleeding breast, and death's dark shade,
hich hovers o'er me, quench the ethereal fire ;
nst thou, O night ! indulge one labor more ?
e labor more indulge ! Then sleep, my strain !
haply, wak'd by Raphael's golden lyre,

Where night, death, age, care, crime, and sorrow, cease

To bear a part in everlasting lays ;
Though far, far higher set, in aim, I trust,
Symphonious to this humble prelude here.

Has not the muse asserted pleasures pure,
Like those above ; exploding other joys ?
Weigh what was urg'd, Lorenzo ! fairly weigh ;
And tell me, hast thou cause to triumph still ?
I think thou wilt forbear a boast so bold.
But if, beneath the favor of mistake,
The smile's sincere ; not more sincere can be
Lorenzo's smile, than my compassion for him.
The sick in body call for aid ; the sick
In mind are covetous of more disease ;
And when at worst, they dream themselves quite well.
To know ourselves diseas'd, is half our cure.
When nature's blush by custom is wip'd off,
And conscience deaden'd by repeated strokes,
Has into manners naturaliz'd our crimes ;
The curse of curses is, our curse to love ;
To triumph in the blackness of our guilt,
(As Indians glory in the deepest jet) ;
And throw aside our senses with our peace.

But, grant no guilt, no shame, no least alloy ;
Grant joy and glory, quite unsully'd shone ;
Yet, still, it ill deserves Lorenzo's heart.
No joy, no glory, glitters in thy sight,
But through the thin partition of an hour,
I see its sables wove by destiny ;
And that in sorrow bury'd ; this in shame ;
While howling furies ring the doleful knell ;
And conscience, now so soft thou scarce canst bear
Her whisper, echoes their eternal peal.

Where, the prime actors of the last year's scenes
Their port so proud, their buskin, and their plume
How many sleep, who kept the world awake
With lustre, and with noise ! Has death proclaim'd
A truce, and hung his fated lance on high ?
'Tis brandish'd still, nor shall the present year
Be more tenacious of her human leaf,
Or spread of feeble life a thinner fall.

needless, monuments to wake the thought ;
 ayest scenes speak man's mortality ;
 in a style more florid, full as plain,
 soleums, pyramids, and tombs.
 re our noblest ornaments, but deaths flatterers of life, in paint or marble, ill-stain'd canvas, or the featur'd stone !
 hers grace, or rather haunt, the scene.
 opeles her pavilion from the dead.
 fess'd diversions ! cannot these escape ?"—
 n it, these present us with a shroud ;
 k of death, like garlands o'er a grave.
 e bold plunderers, for bury'd wealth, sack tombs for pastime ; from the dust
 the sleeping hero ; bid him tread ne for our amusement : how like gods and, wrapt in immortality,
 n'rous tears on wretches born to die ;
 ite deploring, to forget our own !
 t, all the pomps and triumphs of our lives,
 icies in blossom ! Our lean soil,
 at grown, and rank in vanities,
 iends interr'd beneath ; a rich manure !
 her worms, we banquet on the dead ;
 her worms, shall we crawl on, nor know sent frailties, nor approaching fate ?
 nzo ! such the glories of the world !
 s the world itself ? Thy world ?—A grave.
 is the dust that has not been alive ?
 ade, the plough, disturb our ancestors ;
 uman mould we reap our daily bread.
 obe around earth's hollow surface shakes,
 the ceiling of her sleeping sons.
 vastation we blind revels keep ;
 bury'd towns support the dancer's heel.
 ist of human frame the sun exhales ;
 scatter, through the mighty void, the dry ;
 epossesses part of what she gave,
 e freed spirit mounts on wings of fire ;
 ement partakes our scatter'd spoils ;
 re, wide, our ruins spread ; man's death
 all things, but the thought of man.

Nor man alone; his breathing bust expires,
 His tomb is mortal; empires die: where, now,
 The Roman? Greek? they stalk, an empty name!
 Yet few regard them in this useful light;
 Though half our learning is their epitaph.
 When down thy vale, unlockt by midnight thought,
 That loves to wander in thy sunless realms,
 O death! I stretch my views; what visions rise!
 What triumphs! toils imperial! arts divine!
 In wither'd laurels glide before my sight!
 What lengths of far-fam'd ages, billow'd high
 With human agitation, roll along
 In unsubstantial images of air!
 The melancholy ghosts of dead renown,
 Whisp'ring faint echoes of the world's applause;
 With penitential aspect, as they pass,
 All point at earth, and hiss at human pride,
 The wisdom of the wise, and prancings of the great.

But, O Lorenzo! far the rest above,
 Of ghastly nature, and enormous size,
 One form assaults my sight, and chills my blood,
 And shakes my frame. Of one departed world
 I see the mighty shadow: oozy wreath
 And dismal sea-weed crown her;* o'er her urn
 Reclin'd, she weeps her desolated realms,
 And bloated sons; and, weeping, prophesies
 Another's dissolution, soon, in flames.
 But, like Cassandra, prophesies in vain;
 In vain, to many; not, I trust, to thee.

For, know'st thou not, or art thou loth to know,
 The great decree, the counsel of the skies?
 Deluge and conflagration, dreadful powers!
 Prime ministers of vengeance! chain'd in caves
 Distinct, apart the giant furies roar;
 Apart; or, such their horrid rage for ruin,
 In mutual conflict would they rise, and wage
 Eternal war, till one was quite devour'd.
 But not for this, ordain'd their boundless rage:
 When heaven's inferior instruments of wrath,
 War, famine, pestilence, are found too weak
 To scourge a world for her enormous crimes,

* The deluge, referr'd to Genesis vii. 22.

These are let loose, alternate : down they rush,
 Swift and tempestuous, from the eternal throne,
 With irresistible commission arm'd,
 The word, in vain corrected, to destroy,
 And ease creation of the shocking scene.

Seest thou, Lorenzo ! what depends on man ?
 The fate of nature ; as, for man, her birth.
 Earth's actors change earth's transitory scenes,
 And make creation groan with human guilt.
 How must it groan, in a new deluge whelm'd,
 But not of waters ! At the destin'd hour,
 By the loud trumpet summon'd to the charge,
 See all the formidable sons of fire,
 Eruptions, earthquakes, comets, lightnings, play
 Their various engines ; all at once disgorge
 Their blazing magazines ; and take by storm,
 This poor terrestrial citadel of man.

Amazing period ! when each mountain-height
 Out-burns Vesuvius ; rocks eternal pour
 Their melted mass, as rivers once they pour'd ;
 Stars rush ; and final ruin fiercely drives
 Her ploughshare o'er creation !—While aloft,
 More than astonishment ! if more can be !
 Far other firmament than e'er was seen,
 Than e'er was thought by man ! far other stars !
 Stars animate, that govern these of fire ;
 Far other sun !—A sun, O how unlike
 The babe at Bethle'm ! how unlike the man
 That groan'd on Calvary ! yet he it is ;
 That man of sorrows ! O how chang'd ! what pomp !
 In grandeur terrible, all heaven descends !
 And gods, ambitious, triumph in his train.
 A swift archangel, with his golden wing,
 As blots and clouds, that darken and disgrace
 The scene divine, sweeps stars and suns aside.
 And now, all dross remov'd heavens own pure day,
 Full on the confines of our æther, flames.
 While (dreadful contrast !) far, how far beneath !
 Hell bursting, belches forth her blazing seas,
 And storms sulphureous ; her voracious joys
 Expanding wide, and roaring for her prey.

Lorenzo ! welcome to this scene ; the last
 In nature's course ; the first in wisdom's thought.
 This strikes, if aught can strike thee ; this awakes
 The most supine ; this snatches man from death.
 Rouse, rouse, Lorenzo, then, and follow me,
 Where truth, the most momentous man can hear,
 Loud calls my soul, and ardor wings her flight.
 I find my inspiration in my theme ;
 The grandeur of my subject is my muse.

At midnight, when mankind is wrapt in peace,
 And worldly fancy feeds on golden dreams ;
 To give more dread to man's most dreadful hour,
 At midnight, 'tis presum'd, this pomp will burst
 From tenfold darkness ; sudden as the spark
 From smitten steel ; from nitrous grain, the blaze.
 Man, starting from his couch, shall sleep no more !
 The day is broke, which never more shall close !
 Above, around, beneath, amazement all !
 Terror and glory join'd in their extremes !
 Our God in grandeur, and our world on fire !
 All nature struggling in the pangs of death !
 Dost thou not hear her ? Dost thou not deplore
 Her strong convulsions, and her final groan ?
 Where are we now ? Ah me ! the ground is gone
 On which we stood, Lorenzo ! while thou may'st
 Provide more firm support, or sink for ever !
 Where ? how ? from whence ? Vain hope ! it is too late !

Where, where, for shelter, shall the guilty fly,
 When consternation turns the good man pale ?
 Great day ! for which all other days were made ;
 For which earth rose from chaos, man from earth ;
 And an eternity, the date of gods,
 Descended on poor earth-created man ?
 Great day of dread, decision, and despair !
 At thought of thee each sublunary wish
 Lets go its eager grasp, and drops the world ;
 And catches at each reed of hope in heaven.
 At thought of thee !—And art thou absent then ?
 Lorenzo ! No ; 'tis here ;—it is begun ;—
 Already is begun the grand assize,
 In thee, in all : deputed conscience scales

The dread tribunal, and forestals our doom :
 Forestals : and, by forestalling, proves it sure.
 Why on himself should man void judgment pass ?
 Is idle nature laughing at her sons ?

Who conscience sent, her sentence will support,
 And God above assert that God in man.

Thrice happy they ! that enter now the court
 Heaven opens in their bosom : but, how rare !

Ah me ! that magnanimity, how rare !

What hero, like the man who stands himself ;

Who dares to meet his naked heart alone ;

Who hears, intrepid, the full charge it brings ;

Resolv'd to silence future murmur there ?

The coward flies ; and, flying, is undone.

(Art thou a coward ? No :) the coward flies ;

Thinks, but thinks slightly ; asks, but fears to know ;

Asks, " What is truth ? " with Pilate ;* and retires ;

Dissolves the court, and mingles with the throng ;

Asylum sad ! from reason, hope, and heaven !

Shall all, but man, look out with ardent eye,
 For that great day, which was ordain'd for man ?

O day of consummation ! mark supreme

(If men are wise) of human thought ! nor least,

Or in the sight of angels, or their KING !

Angels, whose radiant circles, height o'er height,

Order o'er order, rising, blaze o'er blaze,

As in a theatre, surround this scene,

Intent on man, and anxious for his fate.

Angels look out for thee ; for thee, their LORD,

To vindicate his glory ; and for thee,

Creation universal calls aloud,

To dis-involve the moral world, and give

To nature's renovation brighter charms.

Shall man alone, whose fate, whose final fate,
 Hangs on that hour, exclude it from his thought ?

I think of nothing else ; I see ! I feel it !

All nature, like an earthquake, trembling round !

All deities, like summer's swarms, on wing !

All basking in the full meridian blaze !

I see the Judge enthron'd ! the flaming guard !

The volume open'd ! open'd ev'ry heart !

A sun-beam pointing out each secret thought !
 No patron ! intercessor none ! now past
 The sweet, the clement-mediatorial hour !
 For guilt no plea ! to pain, no pause ! no bound !
 Inexorable, all ! and all, extreme !

Nor man alone ; the foe of God and man,
 From his dark den, blaspheming, drags his chain,
 And rears his brazen front, with thunder scar'd,
 Receives his sentence, and begins his hell.
 All vengeance past, now, seems abundant grace ;
 Like meteors in a stormy sky, how roll
 His baleful eyes ! he curses whom he dreads ;
 And deems it the first moment of his fall.

'Tis present to my thought !—and yet where is it ?
 Angels can't tell me ; angels cannot guess
 The period ; from created beings lock'd
 In darkness. But the process, and the place,
 Are less obscure ; for these may man inquire.
 Say, thou great close of human hopes and fears !
 Great key of hearts ! great finisher of fates !
 Great end ! and great beginning ! say, where art thou
 Art thou in time, or in eternity ?
 Nor in eternity nor time I find thee.

These, as two monarchs, on their borders meet,
 (Monarchs of all elaps'd, or unarriv'd !)
 As in debate, how best their powers ally'd
 May swell the grandeur, or discharge the wrath
 Of HIM, whom both their monarchies obey.

Time, this vast fabric for him built (and doom'd
 With him to fall) now bursting o'er his head ;
 His lamp, the sun, extinguish'd ; from beneath
 The frown of hideous darkness, calls his sons
 From their long slumber ; from earth's heaving womb
 To second birth ; contemporary throng !
 Rous'd at one call, upstarting from one bed,
 Prest in one croud, appall'd with one amazement,
 He turns them o'er, eternity ! to thee.
 Then (as a king depos'd disdains to live)
 He falls on his own scythe ; nor falls alone
 His greatest foe falls with him ; time, and he
 Who murder'd all time's offspring, death, expires
 TIME was ! ETERNITY now reigns alone !

Awful eternity ! offended queen !
 And her resentment to mankind, how just !
 With kind intent, soliciting access,
 How often has she knock'd at human hearts !
 Rich to repay their hospitality,
 How often call'd ! and with the voice of God !
 Yet bore repulse, excluded as a cheat !
 A dream ! while foulest foes found welcome there !
 A dream, a cheat, now all things, but her smile.

For, lo ! her twice ten thousand gates thrown wide,
 As thrice from Indus to the frozen pole,
 With banners, streaming as the comet's blaze !
 And clarions, louder than the deep in storms,
 Sonorous as immortal breath can blow,
 Pour forth their myriads, potentates, and powers,
 Of light, of darkness ; in a middle field,
 Wide, as creation ! populous, as wide !
 A neutral region ! there to mark the event
 Of that great drama, whose preceding scenes
 Detain'd them close spectators, through a length
 Of ages, rip'ning to this grand result :
 Ages, as yet unnumber'd, but by God ;
 Who now, pronouncing sentence, vindicates
 The rights of virtue, and his own renown.

ETERNITY, the various sentence past,
 Assigns the sever'd throng distinct abodes,
 Sulphureous, or ambrosial : what ensues ?
 The deed predominant ! the deed of deeds !
 Which makes a hell of hell, a heaven of heaven.
 The goddess, with determin'd aspect, turns
 Her adamantinæ key's enormous size
 Through destiny's inextricable wards,
 Deep-driving every bolt, on both their fates.
 Then, from the crystal battlements of heaven,
 Down, down, she hurls it through the dark profound,
 Ten thousand thousand fathom ; there to rest,
 And ne'er unlock her resolution more.
 The deep resounds, and hell, through all her glooms,
 Returns, in groans, the melancholy roar.

O how unlike the chorus of the skies !
 O how unlike those shouts of joy, that shake
 The whole ethereal ! How the concave rings !

Nor strange! when deities their voice exalt;
 And louder far than when creation rose,
 To see creation's godlike aim, and end,
 So well accomplish'd! so divinely clos'd!
 To see the mighty dramatist's last act
 (As meet) in glory rising o'er the rest.
 No fancy'd god, a God indeed, descends,
 To solve all knots; to strike the moral home;
 To throw full day on darkest scenes of time;
 To clear, commend, exalt, and crown the whole.
 Hence, in one peal of loud, eternal praise,
 The charm'd spectators thunder their applause;
 And the vast void beyond, applause resounds.

What then am I?—

Amidst applauding worlds,
 And worlds celestial, is there found on earth,
 A peevish, dissonant, rebellious string,
 Which jars in the grand chorus, and complains?
 Censure on thee, Lorenzo! I suspend,
 And turn it on myself; how greatly due!
 All, all is right, by God ordain'd or done;
 And who, but God, resum'd the friends he gave?
 And have I been complaining, then, so long,
 Complaining of his favors; pain, and death?
 Who, without pain's advice, would e'er be good?
 Who, without death, but would be good in vain?
 Pain is to save from pain; all punishment,
 To make for peace; and death, to save from death;
 And second death, to guard immortal life;
 To rouse the careless, the presumptuous awe,
 And turn the tide of souls another way;
 By the same tenderness divine ordain'd,
 That planted Eden, and high-bloom'd for man,
 A fairer Eden, endless, in the skies.

Heaven gives us friends to bless the present scene;
 Resumes them, to prepare us for the next.
 All evils natural are moral goods;
 All discipline, indulgence, on the whole.
 None are unhappy; all have cause to smile,
 But such as to themselves that cause deny.
 Our faults are at the bottom of our pains;
 Error, in act, or judgment, is the source.

Of endless sighs : we sin, or we mistake,
 And nature tax, when false opinion stings.
 Let impious grief be banish'd, joy indulg'd,
 But chiefly then, when grief puts in her claim.
 Joy from the joyous, frequently betrays,
 Oft lives in vanity, and dies in woe.
 Joy, amidst ills, corroborates, exalts ;
 'Tis joy, and conquest ; joy, and virtue too.
 A noble fortitude in ills delights
 Heaven, earth, ourselves ; 'tis duty, glory, peace.
 Affliction is the good man's shining scene ;
 Prosperity conceals his brightest ray ;
 As night to stars, woe lustre gives to man.
 Heroes in battle, pilots in the storm,
 And virtue in calamities, admire.
 The crown of manhood is a winter-joy ;
 An evergreen, that stands the northern blast,
 And blossoms in the rigor of our fate.

'Tis a prime part of happiness, to know
 How much unhappiness must prove our lot ;
 A part which few possess ! I'll pay life's tax,
 Without one rebel murmur, from this hour,
 Nor think it misery to be a man ;
 Who thinks it is, shall never be a god.
 Some ills we wish for, when we wish to live.

What spoke proud passion ?—"Wish my being lost !"
 Presumptuous ! blasphemous ! absurd ! and false !
 The triumph of my soul is,—That I am ;
 And therefore that I may be—What ? Lorenzo !
 Look inward, and look deep ; and deeper still ;
 Unfathomably deep our treasure runs
 In golden veins, through all eternity !
 Ages, and ages, and succeeding still
 New ages where this phantom of an hour,
 Which courts, each night, dull slumber, for repair,
 Shall wake, and wonder, and exult, and praise,
 And fly through infinite, and all unlock ;
 And (if deserv'd) by heaven's redundant love,
 Made half-adorable itself, adore ;
 And find, in adoration, endless joy !
 Where thou, not master of a moment here,

* Referring to the First Night.

Frail as the flower, and fleeting as the gale,
 May'st boast a whole eternity, enrich'd
 With all a kind Omnipotence can pour.
 Since Adam fell, no mortal, uninspir'd,
 Has ever yet conceiv'd, or ever shall,
 How kind is God, how great (if good) is man.
 No man too largely from heaven's love can hope,
 If what is hop'd he labors to secure.

Ills ?—there are none : All-gracious ! none from thee !
 From man full many ! num'rous is the race
 Of blackest ill, and those immortal too,
 Begot by madness on fair liberty ;
 Heaven's daughter, hell-debauch'd ! her hand alone
 Unlocks destruction to the sons of men,
 Fast barr'd by thine ; high-wall'd with adamant,
 Guarded with terrors reaching to this world,
 And cover'd with the thunders of thy law ;
 Whose threats are mercies, whose injunctions, guide,
 Assisting, not restraining, reason's choice ;
 Whose sanctions, unavoidable results
 From nature's course, indulgently reveal'd ;
 If unreveal'd, more dang'rous, nor less sure.
 Thus, an indulgent father warns his sons,
 " Do this ; fly that "—nor always tells the cause,
 Pleas'd to reward, as duty to his will,
 A conduct needful to their own repose.

Great GOD of wonders ! (if thy love survey'd, Aught else the name of wonderful retains)
 What rocks are these, on which to build our trust ?
 Thy ways admit no blemish ; none I find ;
 Or this alone—" That none is to be found."
 Not one, to soften censure's hardy crime ;
 Not one, to palliate peevish grief's complaint,
 Who like a demon, murm'ring, from the dust,
 Dares into judgment call her judge.—Supreme !
 For all I bless thee ; most, for thee severe ;
 * Her death—my own at hand—the fiery gulph,
 That flaming bound of wrath omnipotent !
 It thunders ; but it thunders to preserve ;
 It strengthens what it strikes ; its wholesome threat
 Averts the dreaded pain ; its hideous gommage

Join heaven's sweet hallelujahs in thy praise,
Great source of good alone ! how kind in all !
In vengeance kind ! pain, death, gehenna, save.

Thus in thy world material, mighty mind !
Not that alone which solaces, and shines,
The rough and gloomy, challenges our praise.
The winter is as needful as the spring :
The thunder as the sun ; a stagnate mass
Of vapors breeds a pestilential air :
Nor more propitious the Favonian breeze
To nature's health, than purifying storms ;
The dread volcano ministers to good.
Its smother'd flames might undermine the world.
Loud Ætnas fulminate in love to man ;
Comets good omens are, when duly scann'd ;
And, in their use, eclipses learn to shine.

Man is responsible for ills receiv'd ;
Those we call wretched are a chosen band,
Compell'd to refuge in the right, for peace.
Amid my list of blessings infinite,
Stand this the foremost, " That my heart has bled."'
'Tis heaven's last effort of good-will to man ;
When pain can't bless, heaven quits us in despair.
Who fails to grieve, when just occasion calls,
Or grieves too much, deserves not to be blest ;
Inhuman, or effeminate, his heart ;
Reason absolves the grief, which reason ends.
May heaven ne'er trust my friend with happiness,
Till it has taught him how to bear it well,
By previous pain ; and made it safe to smile !
Such smiles are mine, and such may they remain ;
Nor hazard their extinction, from excess.
My change of heart a change of style demands ;
The Consolation cancels the Complaint,
And makes a convert of my guilty song.

As when o'er-labor'd, and inclin'd to breathe,
A panting traveller, some rising ground,
Some small ascent, has gain'd, he turns him round,
And measures with his eye the various vale,
The fields, woods, meads, and rivers, he has past ;
And, satiate of his journey, thinks of home,
Endear'd by distance, not affected more toil.

Thus I, though small indeed, is that ascent
 The muse has gain'd, review the paths she trod ;
 Various, extensive, beaten but by few ;
 And conscious of her prudence in repose,
 Pause ; and with pleasure meditate an end,
 Though still remote ; so fruitful is my theme.
 Through many a field of moral, and divine,
 The muse has stray'd ; and much of sorrow seen
 In human ways ; and much of false and vain ;
 Which none who travel this bad road can miss.
 O'er friends deceas'd full heartily she wept ;
 Of love divine the wonders she display'd ;
 Prov'd man immortal ; shew'd the source of joy ;
 The grand tribunal rais'd ; assign'd the bounds
 Of human grief : in few, to close the whole,
 The moral muse has shadow'd out a sketch,
 Though not in form, nor with a Raphael-stroke,
 Of most our weakness needs believe, or do,
 In this our land of travel, and of hope,
 For peace on earth, or prospect of the skies.

What then remains ?—Much ! much ! a mighty deal
 To be discharg'd : these thoughts, O night ! are thine
 From thee they came, like lovers' secret sighs,
 While others slept. So Cynthia (poets feign,)
 In shadows veil'd, soft sliding from her sphere,
 Her shepherd cheer'd ; of her anamour'd less,
 Than I of thee.—And art thou still unsung,
 Beneath whose brow, and by whose aid, I sing ?
 Immortal silence !—where shall I begin ?
 Where end ? or how steal music from the spheres,
 To soothe their goddess ?

O majestic night !
 Nature's great ancestor ! day's elder-born !
 And fated to survive the transient sun !
 By mortals, and immortals, seen with awe !
 A starry crown thy raven brow adorns,
 And azure zone, thy waist ; clouds, in heaven's loom
 Wrought through varieties of shape and shade,
 In ample folds of drapery divine,
 Thy flowing mantle form ; and heaven throughout,
 Voluminously pour thy pompous train.
 Thy gloomy grandeur (nature's most august,

Inspiring aspect !) claim a grateful verse ;
 And, like a sable curtain start'd with gold,
 Drawn o'er my labors past, shall close the scene.

And what, O man ! so worthy to be sung ?
 What more prepares us for the songs of heaven ?
 Creation of archangels is the theme !

What, to be sung, so needful ? What so well
 Celestial joys prepares us to sustain ?

The soul of man, his face design'd to see,
 Who gave these wonders to be seen by man,
 Has here a previous scene of objects great,
 On which to dwell ; to stretch to that expanse
 Of thought, to rise to that exalted height
 Of admiration, to contract that awe,

And give her whole capacities that strength,
 Which best may qualify for final joy,
 The more our spirits are enlarg'd on earth,
 The deeper draught shall they receive of heaven.

Heaven's KING ! whose face unveil'd consummates
 bliss :

Redundant bliss ! which fills that mighty void,
 The whole creation leaves in human hearts !

Thou who didst touch the lip of Jesse's son,*

Rapt in sweet contemplation of these fires,

And set his harp in concert with the spheres !

While of thy works material the supreme

I dare attempt, assist my daring song.

Loose me from earth's inclosure, from the sun's

Contracted circle set my heart at large ;

Eliminate my spirit, give it range

Through provinces of thought yet unexplor'd ;

Teach me, by this stupendous scaffolding,

Creation's golden steps, to climb to THEE.

Teach me with art great nature to control,

And spread a lustre o'er the shades of night.

Feel I thy kind intent ? and shall the sun

Be seen at midnight, rising in my song ?

Largely come, and warm that : thou whose heart,

Whose little heart, is lodg'd within a hook

Of this obscure terrestrial anchor weigh,

Another ocean calls, a nobler port :

* David, 1 Samuel xvi. - 18. 24.

I am thy pilot, I thy prosp'rous gale.
 Gainful thy voyage through yon azure main ;
 Main, without tempest, pirate, rock, or shore :
 And whence thou may'st import eternal wealth ;
 And leave to beggar'd minds the pearl and gold.
 Thy travels dost thou boast o'er foreign realms ?
 Thou stranger to the world ! thy tour begin ;
 Thy tour through nature's universal orb.
 Nature delineates her whole chart at large,
 On soaring souls, that sail among the spheres ;
 And man how purblind, if unknown the whole !
 Who circles spacious earth, then travels here,
 Shall own, he never was from home before !
 Come, my *Prometheus, from thy pointed rock
 Of false ambition, if unchain'd, we'll mount ;
 We'll innocently steal celestial fire,
 And kindle our devotion at the stars ;
 A theft, that shall not chain, but set thee free.

Above our atmosphere's intestine wars,
 Rain's fountain-head, the magazine of hail ;
 Above the northern nests of feather'd snows,
 The brew of thunders, and the flaming forge
 That forms the crooked lightning ; 'bove the caves
 Where infant tempests wait their growing wings,
 And tune their tender voices to that roar,
 Which soon, perhaps shall shake a guilty world ;
 Above misconstru'd omens of the sky,
 Far travell'd comets' calculated blaze,
 Elance thy thought, and think of more than man.
 Thy soul, till now, contracted, wither'd, shrunk,
 Blighted by blasts of earth's unwholesome air,
 Will blossom here ; spread all her faculties
 To these bright ardors ; every power unfold,
 And rise into sublimities of thought.
 Stars teach, as well as shine. At nature's birth,
 Thus their commission ran—"Be kind to man."
 Where art thou, poor benighted traveller !
 The stars will light thee ; tho' the moon should fail.
 Where art thou, more benighted ! more astray !
 In ways immoral ? The stars call thee back ;
 And, if obey'd their counsel, set thee right.

This prospect vast, what is it?—Weigh'd aright,
 'Tis nature's system of divinity,
 And every student of the night inspires.
 'Tis elder scripture, writ by God's own hand;
 Scripture authentic! uncorrupt by man.
 Lorenzo! with my radius (the rich gift
 Of thought nocturnal!) I'll point out to thee
 Its various lessons; some that may surprise
 An un-adept in mysteries of night;
 Little, perhaps, expected in her school,
 Nor thought to grow on planet, or on star.
 Bulls, lions, scorpions, monsters here we feign;
 Ourselves more monstrous, not to see what here
 Exists indeed;—a lecture to mankind.

What read we here?—The existence of a GOD?
 —Yes; and of other beings, man above;
 Natives of æther! sons of higher climes!
 And, what may move Lorenzo's wonder more,
 Eternity is written in the skies.
 And whose eternity?—Lorenzo! thine;
 Mankind's eternity. Nor faith alone,
 Virtue grows here; here springs the sov'reign cure
 Of almost every vice; but chiefly thine;
 Wrath, pride, ambition, and impure desire.

Lorenzo! thou canst wake at midnight too,
 Though not on morals bent: ambition, pleasure!
 Those tyrants I for thee so *lately fought,
 Afford their harrass'd slaves but slender rest.
 Thou, to whom midnight is immoral noon,
 And the sun's noon-tide blaze, prime dawn of day;
 Not by thy climate, but capricious crime,
 Commencing one of our antipodes!
 In thy nocturnal rove, one moment halt,
 'Twixt stage and stage, of riot, and cabal;
 And lift thine eye (if bold an eye to lift,
 If bold to meet the face of injur'd heaven)
 To yonder stars: for other ends they shine,
 Than to light revellers from shame to shame,
 And, thus, be made accomplices in guilt.

Why from yon arch, that infinite of space,
 With infinite of lucid orbs inspire,

Which set the living firmament on fire,
 At the first glance, in such an overwhelm
 Of wonderful, on man's astonish'd sight,
 Rushes Omnipotence?—To curb our pride;
 Our reason rouse, and lead it to that power,
 Whose love lets down these silver chains of light,
 To draw up man's ambition to himself,
 And bind our chaste affections to his throne;
 Thus the three virtues, least alive on earth,
 And welcom'd on heaven's coast with most applause,
 An humble, pure, and heavenly-minded heart,
 Are here inspir'd:—And canst thou gaze too long?

Nor stands thy wrath depriv'd of its reproach,
 Or un-upbraided by this radiant choir.
 The planets of each system represent
 Kind neighbors; mutual amity prevails;
 Sweet interchange of rays, receiv'd, return'd;
 Enlight'ning, and enlighten'd! All, at once,
 Attracting, and attracted! Patriot-like,
 None sins against the welfare of the whole;
 But their reciprocal, unselfish aid,
 Affords an emblem of millennial love.
 Nothing in nature, much less conscious being,
 Was e'er created solely for itself:
 Thus man his sov'reign duty learns in this Material picture of benevolence.

And know, of all our supercilious race,
 Thou most inflammable; thou wasp of men!
 Man's angry heart, inspected, would be found
 As rightly set, as are the starry spheres;
 'Tis nature's structure, broke by stubborn will,
 Breeds all that un-celestial discord there.
 Wilt thou not feel the bias nature gave?
 Canst thou descend from converse with the skies,
 And seize thy brother's throat?—for what?—a clod,
 An inch of earth? The planets cry, "Forbear."
 They chase our double darkness; nature's gloom,
 And (kinder still!) our intellectual night.

And see, day's amiable sister sends
 Her invitation, in the softest rays
 Of mitigated lustre; courts thy sight,
 Which suffers from her tyrant brother's blaze.

grants thee the full freedom of the skies,
 udely reprimands thy lifted eye ;
 gain, and joy, she bribes thee to be wise.
 opes the noblest scenes, and sheds an awe,
 h gives those venerable scenes full weight,
 eep reception, in the intender'd heart ;
 : light peeps through the darkness, like a spy,
 arkness shews its grandeur by the light.
 : the profit greater than the joy,
 nan hearts at glorious objects glow,
 admiration can inspire delight.
 at speak I more, than I, this moment feel ?
 pleazing stupor first the soul is struck or ordain'd to make her truly wise !)
 into transport starting from her trance, love, and admiration, how she glows !
 gorgeous apparatus ! this display !
 ostentation of creative power !
 heatre !—what eye can take it in ?
 at divine enchantment was it rais'd, inds of the first magnitude to launch lless speculation, and adore ?
 un by day, by night ten thousand shine ;
 light us deep into the DEITY ;
 boundless in magnificence and might !
 at a confluence of ethereal fires,
 urns unnumber'd, down the steep of heaven,
 ns to a point, and centres in my sight !
 arries there ; I feel it at my heart.
 eart, at once, it humbles and exalts ;
 it in dust, and calls it to the skies.
 sees it unexalted ? or unaw'd ?
 sees it, and can stop at what is seen ?
 rial offspring of Omnipotence !
 mate, all-animating birth !
 : worthy Him who made it ! worthy praise !
 raise ! praise more than human ! nor deny'd praise divine ! But though man drown'd in sleep, holds his homage, not alone I wake ;
 it legions swarm unseen, and sing, unheard ortal ear, the glorious Architect, is his universal temple hung

With ~~l~~estres, with innumerable lights,
That shed religion on the soul ; at once.
The temple and the preacher ! O how loud
It calls devotion ! genuine growth of night !

Devotion ! daughter of astronomy !

An undevout astronomer is mad.

True ; all things speak a God ; but in the small,
Men trace him out ; in great, he seizes man ;
Seizes, and elevates, and wraps, and fills
With new enquiries, 'mid associates new.
Tell me, ye stars ! ye planets ! tell me, all
Ye starr'd, and planeted inhabitants ! what is it ?
What are these sons of wonder ? say, proud arch !
(Within whose azure palaces they dwell)

Built with divine ambition ! in disdain
Of limit built ! built in the taste of heaven !
Vast concave ! ample dome ! wast thou design'd
A meet apartment for the DEITY ?—

Not so ; that thought alone thy state impairs,
Thy lofty sinks, and shallows thy profound,
And streightens thy diffusive ; dwarfs the whole,
And makes an universe an orrery.

But when I drop mine eye, and look on man,
Thy right regain'd, thy grandeur is restor'd,
O nature ! wide flies off the expanding round.
As when whole magazines, at once, are fir'd,
The smitten air is hollow'd by the blow ;
The vast disposure dissipates the clouds ;
Shock'd æther's billows dash the distant skies ;
Thus (but far more) the expanding round flies off,
And leaves a mighty void, a spacious womb
Might teem with new creation ; re-inflam'd
Thy luminaries triumph, and assume Divinity themselves. Nor was it strange,

That latter high-wrought to such surprising pomp,
Which godlike glory, stole the style of gods,
From ages dark, obtuse, and steep'd in sense ;
For, sure, to sense, they truly are divine,
And half absolv'd idolatry from guilt ;
Which, turn'd it into virtue. Such it was

That those, who put forth all they had of man
Unlost, to lift their thought, nor mounted higher

But, weak of wing, on planets perch'd ; and thought,
What was their highest, must be their ador'd.

But they how weak, who could no higher mount !

And are there, then, Lorenzo ! those to whom

Unseen, and unexistent are the same ?

And if incomprehensible is join'd,

Who dare pronounce it madness to believe ?

Why has the mighty Builder thrown aside

All measure in his work ; stretch'd out his line

So far, and spread amazement o'er the whole ?

Then (as he took delight in wide extremes)

Deep in the bosom of his universe,

Dropt down that reasoning mite, that insect, man,

To crawl, and gaze, and wonder at the scene ?—

That man might ne'er presume to plead amazement

For disbelief of wonders in himself.

Shall God be less miraculous, than what

His hand has form'd ? Shall mysteries descend

From un-mysterious ? things more elevate,

Be more familiar ? uncreated lie

More obvious than created, to the grasp

Of human thought ? The more of wonderful

Is heard in Him, the more we should assent.

Could we conceive Him, God he could not be ;

Or He not God, or we could not be men.

A God alone can comprehend a God ;

Man's distance how immense ! On such a theme,

Know this, Lorenzo ! (seem it ne'er so strange)

Nothing can satisfy, but what confounds ;

Nothing, but what astonishes, is true.

The scene thou seest, attests the truth I sing,

And every star sheds light upon thy creed.

These stars, this furniture, this cost of heaven,

If but reported, thou hadst ne'er believ'd ;

But thine eye tells thee, the romance is true.

The grand of nature is the Almighty oath,

In reason's court, to silence unbelief.

How my mind, opening at this scene, imbibes

The moral emanations of the skies ;

While nought, perhaps, Lorenzo less admires !

Has the Great Sovereign sent ten thousand worlds

To tell us, He resides above them all,

In glory's unapproachable recess?
 And dare earth's bold inhabitants deny
 The sumptuous, the magnific embassy
 A moment's audience? Turn we, nor will bear
 From whom they come, or what they would impart
 For man's emolument; sole cause that stoops
 Their grandeur to man's eye? Lorenzo! rouse;
 Let thought, awaken'd, take the lightning's wing,
 And glance from east to west, from pole to pole.
 Who sees, but is confounded, or convinc'd;
 Renounces reason, or a God adores?
 Mankind was sent into the world to see:
 Sight gives the science needful to their peace;
 That obvious science asks small learning's aid.
 Wouldst thou on metaphysic pinions soar?
 Or wound thy patience amid logic thorns?
 Or travel history's enormous round?
 Nature no such hard task enjoins: she gave
 A make to man directive of his thought;
 A make set upright, pointing to the stars,
 As who should say, "Read thy chief lesson there."
 Too late to read this manuscript of Heaven,
 When, like a parchment-scroll, shrunk up by flames,
 It folds Lorenzo's lesson from his sight.

Lesson how various! not the God alone,
 I see His ministers; I see, diffus'd
 In radiant orders, essences sublime,
 Of various offices, of various plume,
 In heavenly liveries, distinctly clad,
 Azure, green, purple, pearl, or downy gold,
 Or all commix'd; they stand, with wings outspread,
 List'ning to catch the master's least command,
 And fly through Nature, ere the moment ends;
 Numbers innumerable!—Well conceiv'd
 By Pagan, and by Christian! O'er each sphere
 Presides an angel, to direct its course,
 And feed, or fan, its flames; or to discharge
 Other high trusts unknown. For who can see
 Such pomp of matter, and imagine, mind,
 For which alone inanimate was made,
 More sparingly dispens'd? that noble Son,
 Far liker the great Sire!—'Tis thus the skies

Inform us of superiours numberless,
 As much, in excellence, above mankind,
 As above earth, in magnitude, the spheres.
 These, as a cloud of witnesses, hang o'er us;
 In a throng'd theatre are all our deeds;
 Perhaps a thousand demi-gods descend
 On every beam we see, to walk with men.
 Awful reflection! strong restraint from ill!

Yet, here, our virtue finds still stronger aid
 From these ethereal glories sense surveys.
 Something like magic strikes from this blue vault;
 With just attention is it view'd? We feel
 A sudden succor, unimplor'd, unthought;
 Nature herself does half the work of man.
 Seas, rivers, mountains, forests, deserts, rocks,
 The promontory's height, the depth profound
 Of subterranean, excavated grotts,
 Black-brow'd, and vaulted high, and yawning wide
 From nature's structure, or the scoop of time;
 If ample of dimension, vast of size.
 Even these an aggrandizing impulse give;
 Of solemn thought enthusiastic heights
 Even these infuse.—But what of vast in these?
 Nothing;—or we must own the skies forgot.
 Much less in art.—Vain art! thou pigmy-power!
 How dost thou swell, and strut, with human pride,
 To shew thy littleness! What childish toys
 Thy watery columns squirted to the clouds!
 Thy bason'd rivers, and imprison'd seas!
 Thy mountains moulded into forms of men!
 Thy hundred-gated capitals! or those
 Where three days travel left us much to ride;
 Gazing on miracles by mortals wrought,
 Arches triumphal, theatres immense,
 Or nodding gardens pendent in mid-air!
 Or temples proud to meet their gods half-way!
 Yet these affect us in no common kind.
 What then the force of such superior scenes?
 Enter a temple, it will strike an awe:
 What awe from this, the Deity has built!
 A good man seen, though silent, counsel gives;
 The touch'd spectator wishes to be wise;

In a bright mirror his own hands have made,
 Here we see something like the face of God.
 Seems it not then enough, to say, Lorenzo !
 To man abandon'd, "Hast thou seen the skies?"

And yet, so thwarted nature's kind design
 By daring man, he makes her sacred awe
 (That guard from ill) his shelter, his temptation
 To more than common guilt, and quite inverts
 Celestial arts intent. The trembling stars
 See crimes gigantic, stalking through the gloom
 With front erect, that hide their head by day,
 And making night still darker by their deeds.
 Slumb'ring in covert, till the shades descend,
 Rapine and murder, link'd, now prowl for prey.
 The miser earth's his treasure; and the thief,
 Watching the mole, half-beggars him e'er morn.
 Now plots, and foul conspiracies, awake;
 And muffling up their horrors from the moon,
 Havoc and devastation they prepare,
 And kingdoms tott'ring in the field of blood.
 Now sons of riot in mid-revel rage.
 What shall I do? suppress it? or proclaim?—
 Why sleeps the thunder? Now, Lorenzo! now,
 His best friend's couch the rank adulterer
 Ascends secure; and laughs at gods and men.
 Prepost'rous madmen, void of fear or shame,
 Lay their crimes bare to these chaste eyes of heaven;
 Yet shrink, and shudder at a mortal's sight.
 Were moon, and stars, for villains only made?
 To guide, yet screen them with tenebrious-light?
 No; they were made to fashion the sublime
 Of human hearts, and wiser make the wise.

Those ends were answer'd once; when mortals
 Of stronger wing, of aquiline ascent
 In theory sublime. O how unlike
 Those vermin of the night, this moment sung,
 Who crawl on earth, and on her venom feed!
 Those ancient sages, human stars! they met
 Their brothers of the skies, at midnight hour;
 Their counsel ask'd; and what they ask'd, obey'd.
 He Stagirite, and Plato, he who drank
 The poison'd bowl, and he of Tusculum.

With him of Corduba (immortal names !)
 In these unbounded, and Elysian, walks,
 An area fit for gods, and godlike men,
 They took their nightly round, through radiant paths
 By seraphs trod ; instructed, chiefly, thus,
 To tread in their bright footsteps here below ;
 To walk in worth still brighter than the skies.
 There, they contracted their contempt of earth ;
 Of hopes eternal kindled, there, the fire ;
 There, as in near approach, they glow'd, and grew
 (Great visitants !) more intimate with God,
 More worth to men, more joyous to themselves.
 Through various virtues, they, with ardor, ran
 The zodiac of their learn'd, illustrious lives.

In Christian hearts, O for a Pagan zeal !
 A needful, but opprobrious prayer ! As much
 Our ardor less, as greater is our light.
 How monstrous this in morals ! scarce more strange
 Would this phenomenon in nature strike,
 A sun, that froze us, or a star, that warm'd.

What taught these heroes of the moral world ?
 To these thou giv'st thy praise, give credit too ;
 These doctors ne'er were pension'd to deceive thee ;
 And pagan tutors are thy taste.—They taught,
 That, narrow views betray to misery :
 That, wise it is to comprehend the whole :
 That, virtue rose from nature, ponder'd well,
 The single base of virtue built to heaven :
 That, God and nature, our attention claim.
 That, nature is the glass reflecting God.
 As, by the sea, reflected is the sun,
 Too glorious to be gaz'd on in his sphere :
 That, mind immortal loves immortal aims :
 That, boundless mind affects a boundless space :
 That, vast surveys, and the sublime of things,
 The soul assimilate, and make her great :
 That, therefore, heaven her glories, as a fund
 Of inspiration, thus spreads out to man.
 Such are their doctrines ; such the night inspir'd.

And what more true ? what truth of greater weight ?
 The soul of man was made to walk the skies ;
 Delightful outlet of her prison here !

There, disincumber'd from her chains, the ties
 Of toys terrestrial, she can rove at large;
 There, freely can respire, dilate, extend;
 In full proportion let loose all her powers;
 And, undeluded, grasp at something great.
 Nor, as a stranger, does she wander there;
 But, wonderful herself, through wonder strays;
 Contemplating their grandeur, finds her own;
 Dives deep in their œconomy divine,
 Sits high in judgment on their various laws,
 And, like a master, judges not amiss.
 Hence greatly pleas'd, and justly proud, the soul
 Grows conscious of her birth celestial; breathes
 More life, more vigor, in her native air;
 And feels herself at home among the stars;
 And, feeling, emulates her country's praise.

What call we, then, the firmament, Lorenzo?
 As earth the body, since, the skies sustain
 The soul with food, that gives immortal life,
 Call it, the noble pasture of the mind;
 Which there expatiates, strengthens, and exults,
 And riots through the luxuries of thought.
 Call it, the garden of the Deity,
 Blossom'd with stars, redundant in the growth
 Of fruit ambrosial; moral fruit to man.
 Call it, the breast-plate of the true high-priest,
 Ardent with gems oracular, that give,
 In points of highest moment, right response;
 And ill neglected, if we prize our peace.

Thus, have we found a true astrology;
 Thus, have we found a new, and noble sense
 In which alone stars govern human fates.
 O that the stars (as some have feign'd) let fall
 Bloodshed, and havock, on embattled realms,
 And rescu'd monarchs from so black a guilt!
 Bourbon! this wish how gen'rous in a foe!
 Wouldst thou be great, wouldst thou become a god,
 And stick thy deathless name among the stars,
 For mighty conquests on a needle's point?
 Instead of forging chains for foreigners,
 Bastile thy tutor: grandeur all thy aim?
 As yet thou know'st not what it is: how great,

How glorious, then, appears the mind of man,
When in it all the stars, and planets, roll !
And what it seems, it is : great objects make Great minds, enlarging as their views enlarge ;
Those still more god-like, as these more divine.

And more divine than these thou canst not see.
Dazzled, o'erpower'd, with the delicious draught
Of miscellaneous splendors, how I reel
From thought to thought, inebriate, without end !
An Eden this ! a Paradise unlost !

I meet the Deity in ev'ry view,
And tremble at my nakedness before him !
O that I could but reach the tree of life !
For here it grows, unguarded from our taste ;
No flaming sword denies our entrance here :
Would man but gather, he might live for ever.

Lorenzo ! much of moral hast thou seen.
Of curious arts art thou more fond ? then mark
The mathematic glories of the skies,
In number, weight, and measure, all ordain'd.
Lorenzo's boasted builders, chance, and fate,
Are left to finish his aërial towers :

Wisdom, and choice, their well-known characters
Here deep-impress ; and claim it for their own.
Though splendid all, no splendor void of use ;
Use rivals beauty : art contends with power ;
No wanton waste, amid effuse expence ;
The great œconomist adjusting all
To prudent pomp, magnificently wise.
How rich the prospect ! and for ever new !
And newest to the man that views it most ;
For newer still in infinite succeeds.

Then, these aërial racers, O how swift !
How the shaft loiters from the strongest string !
Spirit alone can distance the career.
Orb above orb ascending without end !
Circle in circle, without end, inclos'd !
Wheel within wheel : Ezekiel ! like to thine !*
Like thine, it seems a vision, or a dream ;
Though seen, we labor to believe it true !
What involution ! what extent ! what swarms

* Ezekiel, x. 9, 10.

Of worlds, that laugh at earth ! immensely great !
 Immensely distant from each other's spheres !
 What, then, the wond'rous space thro' which they roll !

At once it quite ingulphs all human thought ;
 'Tis comprehension's absolute defeat.

Nor think thou seest a wild disorder here ;
 Through this illustrious chaos to the sight,
 Arrangement neat, and chastest order, reign.
 The path prescrib'd, inviolably kept,
 Upbraids the lawless sallies of mankind.
 Worlds, ever thwarting, never interfere ;
 What knots are ty'd ! how soon are they dissolv'd,
 And set the seeming married planets free !
 They rove for ever, without error rove ;
 Confusion unconfus'd ! nor less admire
 This tumult untumultuous ; all on wing !
 In motion, all ! yet what profound repose !
 What fervid action, yet no noise ! as aw'd
 To silence, by the presence of their Lord ;
 Or hush'd, by his command, in love to man,
 And bid let fall soft beams on human rest,
 Restless themselves. On yon cœrulean plain,
 In exultation to their God and thine,
 They dance, they sing eternal jubilee,
 Eternal celebration of his praise.

But, since their song arrives not at our ear,
 Their dance perplex'd exhibits to the sight
 Fair hieroglyphic of his peerless power.
 Mark, how the labyrinthian turns they take,
 The circles intricate, and mystic maze,
 Weave the grand cypher of omnipotence ;
 To gods, how great ! how legible to man !

Leaves so much wonder greater wonder still ?
 Where are the pillars that support the skies ?
 What more than Atlantean shoulder props
 The incumbent load ? what magic, what strange art,
 In fluid air these pond'rous orbs sustains ?
 Who would not think them hung in golden chain
 And so they are ; in the high will of heaven,
 Which fixes all ; makes adamant of air,

Or air of adamant ; makes all of nought,
Or nought of all ; if such the dread decree.

Imagine from their deep foundations torn
The most gigantic sons of earth, the broad
And tow'ring Alps, all tost into the sea !
And, light as down, or volatile as air,
Their bulks enormous dancing on the waves,
In time, and measure, exquisite ; while all
The winds, in emulation of the spheres,
Tune their sonorous instruments aloft ;
The concert swell, and animate the ball,
Would this appear amazing ? what, then, worlds
In a far thinner element sustain'd,
And acting the same part, with greater skill,
More rapid movement, and for noblest ends ?

More obvious ends to pass, are not these stars
The seats majestic, proud imperial thrones,
On which angelic delegates of heaven,
At certain periods, as the Sov'reign nods,
Discharge high trusts of vengeance, or of love ;
To cloathe, in outward grandeur, grand design,
And acts most solemn still more solemnize ?

Ye citizens of air ! what ardent thanks,
What full effusion of the grateful heart,
Is due from man indulg'd in such a sight !
A sight so noble ! and a sight so kind !
It drops new truths at every new survey !
Feels not Lorenzo something stir within,
That sweeps away all period ? as these spheres
Measure duration, they no less inspire
The god-like hope of ages without end.
The boundless space, thro' which these rovers take
Their restless roam, suggests the sister-thought
Of boundless time. Thus, by kind nature's skill,
To man unlabor'd, that important guest,
Eternity, finds entrance at the sight :
And an eternity, for man ordain'd,
Or these his destin'd midnight counsellors,
The stars, had never whisper'd it to man.
Nature informs, but ne'er insults, her sons.
Could she then kindle the most ardent wish
To disappoint it ?—that is blasphemy.

Thus, of thy creed a second article,
Momentous, as the existence of a GOD,
Is found (as I conceive) where rarely sought ;
And thou may'st read thy soul immortal, here.

Here, then, Lorenzo ! on these glories dwell ;
Nor want the gilt, illuminated, roof,
That calls the wretched gay to dark delights.
Assemblies ?—this is one divinely bright ;
Here, unendanger'd in health, wealth, or fame,
Range through the fairest, and the Sultan scorn.
He, wise as thou, no crescent holds so fair,
As that, which on his turban awes a world ;
And thinks the moon is proud to copy him.
Look on her, and gain more than worlds can give,
A mind superior to the charms of power.
Thou muffled in delusions of this life !
Can yonder moon turn ocean in his bed,
From side to side, in constant ebb, and flow,
And purify from stench his watery realms ?
And fails her moral influence ? Wants she power
To turn Lorenzo's stubborn tide of thought
From stagnating on earth's infected shore,
And purge from nuisance his corrupted heart ?
Fails her attraction, when it draws to heav'n ?
Nay, and to what thou valu'st more, earth's joy ?
Minds elevate, and panting for unseen,
And defecate from sense, alone obtain
Full relish of existence undeflower'd,
The life of life, the zest of worldly bliss.
All else on earth amounts—to what ? To this :
“ Bad to be suffer'd ; blessings to be left : ”
Earth's richest inventory boasts no more.

Of higher scenes be, then, the call obey'd.
O let me gaze !—of gazing there's no end.
O let me think !—thought too is wilder'd here ;
In mid-way flight imagination tires ;
Yet soon re-prunes her wings to soar anew,
Her point unable to forbear or gain ;
So great the pleasure, so profound the plan !
A banquet this, where men and angels meet
Eat the same manna, mingle earth and heav'n
How distant some of these nocturnal suns !

So distant (says the sage,*) 'twere not absurd
 To doubt, if beams, set out at nature's birth,
 Are yet arriv'd at this so foreign world ;
 Though nothing half so rapid as their flight.
 An eye of awe and wonder let me roll,
 And roll for ever : who can satiate sight
 In such a scene ? in such an ocean wide
 Of deep astonishment ? where depth, height, breadth,
 Are lost in their extremes ; and where to count
 The thick-sown glories in this field of fire,
 Perhaps a seraph's computation fails.
 Now, go, ambition ! boast thy boundless might
 In conquest, o'er the tenth part of a grain.

And yet Lorenzo calls for miracles,
 To give his tott'ring faith a solid base.
 Why call for less than is already thine ?
 Thou art no novice in theology ;
 What is a miracle ?—'tis a reproach,
 'Tis an implicit satire, on mankind ;
 And while it satisfies, it censures too.
 To common-sense, great nature's course proclaims
 A DEITY : when mankind falls asleep,
 A miracle is sent, as an alarm,
 To wake the world, and prove him o'er again,
 By recent argument, but not more strong.
 Say, which imports more plenitude of power,
 Or nature's laws to fix, or to repeal ?
 To make a sun, or stop his mid-career ?
 To countermand his orders, and send back
 The flaming courier to the frighted east,
 Warm'd, and astonish'd, at his ev'ning ray ?
 Or bid the moon, as with her journey tir'd,
 In Ajalon's soft, flowery vale repose ?†
 Great things are these ; still greater, to create.
 From Adam's bow'r look down thro' the whole train
 Of miracles ;—resistless is their power
 They do not, cannot, more amaze the mind,
 Than this, call'd un-miraculous survey,
 If duly weigh'd, if rationally seen,
 If seen with human eyes. The brute, indeed,
 Sees nought but spangles here ; the fool, no more.

* Hugenius.† Joshua x. 12, 13.

Say'st thou, "the course of nature govern's all?"
 The course of nature is the art of GOD.
 The miracles thou call'st for, this attest;
 For say, could nature nature's course control?

But miracles apart, who sees HAM not,
 Nature's controler, author, guide, and end?
 Who turns his eye on nature's midnight face,
 But must inquire—"What hand behind the scene,
 "What arm almighty, put these wheeling globes
 "In motion, and wound up the vast machine?
 "Who rounded in his palm these spacious orbs?
 "Who bowl'd them flaming thro' the dark profound,
 "Num'rous as glitt'ring gems of morning dew,
 "Or sparks from populous cities in a blaze,
 "And set the bosom of old night on fire?
 "Peopled her desert, and made horror smile?"
 Or, if the military style delights thee,
 (For stars have fought their battles, leagu'd with man)
 "Who marshals this bright host? enrolls their names?
 "Appoints their posts, their marches, and returns
 "Punctual, at stated periods? who disbands
 "These veteran troops, their final duty done,
 "If e'er disbanded?"—HE, whose potent word,
 Like the loud trumpet, levy'd first their powers
 In night's inglorious empire, where they slept
 In beds of darkness; arm'd them with fierce flames
 Arrang'd, and disciplin'd, and cloath'd in gold;
 And call'd them out of Chaos to the field,
 Where now they war with vice and unbelief.
 O let us join this army! joining these,
 Will give us hearts intrepid, at that hour,
 When brighter flames shall cut a darker night;
 When these strong demonstrations of a GOD
 Shall hide their heads, or tumble from their spheres,
 And one eternal curtain cover all!

Struck at that thought, as new-awak'd, I felt
 A more enlighten'd eye, and read the stars
 To man still more propitious; and their aid
 (Though guiltless of idolatry) implore;
 Nor longer rob them of their noblest name.
 O ye dividers of my time! ye bright
 Accountants of my days, and months,

In your fair kalendar distinctly mark'd !
 Since that authentic, radiant register,
 Tho' man inspects it not, stands good against him ;
 Since you, and years, roll on, tho' man stands still ;
 Teach me my days to number, and apply
 My trembling heart to wisdom ; now beyond
 All shadows of excuse for fooling on.

Age smooths our path to prudence ; sweeps aside
 The snares, keen appetite, and passion, spread
 To catch stray souls ; and woo to that grey head,
 Whose folly would undo, what age has done !
 Aid, then, aid, all ye stars !—much rather, too,
 Great Artist ! Thou, whose finger set aright
 This exquisite machine, with all its wheels,
 Though intervolv'd, exact ; and pointing out
 Life's rapid, and irrevocable flight,
 With such an index fair, as none can miss,
 Who lifts an eye, nor sleeps till it is clos'd.
 Open mine eye, dread DEITY ! to read
 The tacit doctrine of thy works ; to see
 Things as they are, unalter'd through the glass
 Of worldly wishes. Time, eternity !
 ('Tis these, mis-measured, ruin all mankind).
 Set them before me ; let me lay them both
 In equal scale, and learn their various weight.
 Let time appear a moment, as it is ;
 And let eternity's full orb, at once,
 Turn on my soul, and strike it into heaven.
 When shall I see far more than charms me now ?
 Gaze on creation's model in thy breast,
 Unveil'd, nor wonder at the transcript more ?
 When, this vile, foreign, dust, which smothers all
 That travel earth's deep vale, shall I strike off ?
 When shall my soul her incarnation quit,
 And, re-adopted to thy blest embrace,
 Obtain her apotheosis in mine ?

Dost think, Lorenzo, this is wandering while ?
 No, 'tis directly striking at the mark.
 To wake thy dead devotion, and thy faith,
 And how I bless night's consecration,
 Which to a temple turns our senses,
 Fill us with godly thoughts, and fill our hearts

And antidote the pestilential earth !
 In every storm, that either frowns, or falls,
 What an asylum has the soul in prayer !
 And what a fane is this, in which to pray !
 And what a GOD must dwell in such a fane !
 O what a genius must inform the skies !
 And is Lorenzo's salamander-heart
 Cold, and untouch'd, amid these sacred fires ?
 O ye nocturnal sparks ! ye glowing embers,
 On heaven's broad hearth ! who burn, or burn no
 more,

Who blaze, or die, at great JEHOVAH's breath
 Or blows you, or forbears ! assist my song ;
 Pour your whole influence ; exercise his heart,
 So long possess ; and bring him back to man.

And is Lorenzo a demurrer still ?
 Pride in thy parts provokes thee to contest
 Truths, which contested, put thy parts to shame.
 Nor shame they more Lorenzo's head than heart ;
 A faithless heart, how despicably small !
 Too streight, aught great, or generous, to receive !
 Fill'd with an atom ! fill'd, and foul'd, with self !
 And self mistaken ! self that lasts an hour !
 Instincts and passions, of the nobler kind,
 Lie suffocated there ; or they alone,
 Reason apart, would wake high hope ; and open,
 To ravish'd thought, that intellectual sphere,
 Where order, wisdom, goodness, providence,
 Their endless miracles of love display,
 And promise all the truly great desire.
 The mind that would be happy, must be great ;
 Great, in its wishes ; great, in its surveys.
 Extended views a narrow mind extend ;
 Push out its corrugate, expansive make,
 Which, ere long, more than planets shall embrace.
 A man of compass makes a man of worth ;
 Divine contemplate, and become divine.

As man was made for glory, and for bliss,
 All littleness is an approach to woe ;
 Open thy bosom, set thy wishes wide,
 And let in manhood ; let in happiness ;
 Admit the boundless theatre of thought.

From nothing, up to God; which makes a man.
 Take God from nature, nothing great is left;
 Man's mind is in a pit, and nothing sees;
 Man's heart is in a jakes, and loves the mire.
 Emerge from thy profound; erect thine eye!
 See thy distress! how close art thou besieg'd!
 Besieg'd by nature, the proud sceptic's foe!
 Inclos'd by these innumerable worlds,
 Sparkling conviction on the darkest mind,
 As in a golden net of Providence.
 How art thou caught, sure captive of belief!
 From this thy blest captivity, what art,
 What blasphemy to reason, sets thee free!
 This scene is heaven's indulgent violence:
 Canst thou bear up against this tide of glory?
 What is earth bosom'd in these ambient orbs,
 But, faith in God impos'd and press'd on man?
 Dar'st thou still litigate thy desp'rate cause,
 Spite of these numerous, awful, witnesses,
 And doubt the deposition of the skies?
 O how laborious is thy way to ruin!

Laborious? 'Tis impracticable quite;
 To sink beyond a doubt, in this debate,
 With all his weight of wisdom, and of will,
 And crime flagitious, I defy a fool.
 Some wish they did; but no man disbelieves.
 God is a spirit; spirit cannot strike
 These gross material organs! God by man
 As much is seen, as man a God can see,
 In these astonishing exploits of power.
 What order, beauty, motion, distance, size!
 Concertion of design, how exquisite?
 How complicate, in their divine police!
 Apt means! great ends! consent to general good!—
 Each attribute of these material gods,
 So long (and that with specious pleas) ador'd,
 A separate conquest gains o'er rebel thought,
 And leads in triumph the whole mind of man.

Lorenzo! this may seem harangue to thee;
 Such all is apt to seem, that thwarts our will.
 And dost thou, then, demand a simple proof
 Of this great master-moral of the skies,

Unskill'd, or disinclin'd, to read it there?

Since, 'tis the basis, and all drops without it,

Take it, in one compact, unbroken chain.

Such proof insists on an attentive ear;

'Twill not make one amid a mob of thoughts,

And, for thy notice, struggle with the world.

Retire;—the world shut out;—thy thoughts call home;—

Imagination's airy wing repress;—

Lock up thy senses;—let no passion stir;—

Wake all to reason;—let her reign alone;—

Then in thy soul's deep silence, and the depth

Of nature's silence, midnight, thus inquire,

As I have done: and shall inquire no more.

In nature's channel, thus the questions run.

“What am I? and from whence?—I nothing know,

“But that I am; and, since I am, conclude

“Something eternal: had there e'er been nought,

“Nought still had been; eternal there must be.—

“But what eternal?—Why not human race?

“And Adam's ancestors without an end?—

“That's hard to be conceiv'd; since every link

“Of that long chain'd succession is so frail;

“Can every part depend, and not the whole?

“Yet grant it true; new difficulties rise;

“I'm still quite out at sea; nor see the shore.

“Whence earth, and these bright orbs?—Eternal too—

“Grant matter was eternal; still these orbs

“Would want some other father;—much design

“Is seen in all their motions, all their makes;

“Design implies intelligence, and art:

“That can't be from themselves—or man; that art

“Man scarce can comprehend, could man bestow?

“And nothing greater, yet allow'd, than man.—

“Who, motion, foreign to the smallest grain,

“Shot through vast masses of enormous weight?

“Who bid brute matter's restive lump assume

“Such various forms, and gave it wings to fly?

“Has matter innate motion? Then each atom,

“Asserting its indisputable right

“To dance, would form an universe of dust;

“Has matter none? Then whence these glorious forms?

" And boundless flights, from shapeless, and repos'd ?
 " Has matter more than motion ? Has it thought,
 " Judgment, and genius ? Is it deeply learn'd
 " In mathematics ? Has it fram'd such laws,
 " Which, but to guess, a Newton made immortal ?—
 " If so, how each sage atom laughs at me,
 " Who think a clod inferior to a man !
 " If art, to form ; and counsel to conduct ;
 " And that with greater far, than human skill ;
 " Resides not in each block ; a Godhead reigns.—
 " Grant, then, invisible, eternal, Mind :
 " That granted, all is solv'd.—But, granting that,
 " Draw I not o'er me a still darker cloud ?
 " Grant I not that which I can ne'er conceive ?
 " A being without origin, or end !—
 " Hail, human liberty ! there is no GOD—
 " Yet why ? On either scheme that not subsists ;
 " Subsist it must, in GOD, or human race ;
 " If in the last, how many knots beside,
 " Indissoluble all ?—Why chuse it there,
 " Where, chosen, still subsist ten thousand more ?
 " Reject it, where, that chosen, all the rest
 " Dispers'd, leave reason's whole horizon clear ?
 " This is not reason's dictate ; reason says,
 " Close with the side where one grain turns the scale ;
 " What vast preponderance is here ! can reason
 " With louder voice exclaim—believe a GOD ?
 " And reason heard, is the sole mark of man.
 " What things impossible must man think true,
 " On any other system ! and how strange
 " To disbelieve, through mere credulity !"

If, in this chain, Lorenzo finds no flaw,
 Let it forever bind him to belief.

And where's the link, in which a flaw he finds ?
 And, if a GOD there is, that GOD how great ?
 How great that power, whose providential care
 Through these bright orbs dark centres darts a ray !
 Of Nature universal threads the whole !

And hangs creation, like a precious gem,
 Though little, on the footstool of his throne !

That little gem, how large ? A weight let fall
 From a fixt star, in ages can it reach

This distant earth? Say, then, Lorenzo! where,
 Where ends this mighty building? where, begin
 The suburbs of creation? where the wall—
 Whose battlements look o'er into the vale
 Of non-existence? Nothing's strange abode!
 Say, at what point of space JEHOVAH dropp'd
 His slacken'd line, and laid his balance by;
 Weigh'd worlds, and measur'd infinite, no more?
 Where rears his terminating pillar high
 Its extra-mundane head? and says, to gods,
 In characters illustrious as the sun,

I stand, the plan's proud period; I pronounce
 The work accomplish'd; the creation clos'd;
 Shout, all ye gods! nor shout, ye gods alone;
 Of all that lives, or, if devoid of life,
 That rests, or rolls, ye heights, and depths, resound!
 Resound! resound! ye depths, and heights, resound!

Hard are those questions?—answer harder still.
 Is this the sole exploit, the single birth,
 The solitary son of power divine?
 Or has the Almighty Father, with a breath,
 Impregnated the womb of distant space?
 Has he not bid, in various provinces,
 Brother-creations the dark bowels burst
 Of night primæval; barren, now, no more?
 And he the central son, transpiereing all
 Those giant generations, which disport,
 And dance, as motes, in his meridian ray;
 That ray withdrawn, benighted, or absorb'd,
 In that abyss of horror, whence they sprung;
 While chaos triumphs, repossess of all
 Rival creation ravish'd from his throne?
 Chaos! of nature both the womb, and grave!

Think'st thou, my scheme, Lorenzo, spread wide?

Is this extravagant?—No; this is just;
 Just, in conjecture, though 'twere false in fact.
 If 'tis an error, 'tis an error sprung,
 From noble root, high thought of the Most High.
 But wherefore error? who can prove it such?
 He that can set Omnipotence a bound.
 Can man conceive beyond what God can do?
 Nothing, but quite impossible, is hard.

He summons into being, with like ease,
 A whole creation, and a single grain.
 Speaks he the word? a thousand worlds are born!—
 A thousand worlds? there's space for millions more;
 And in what space can his great fiat fail?
 Condemn me not, cold critic! but indulge
 The warm imagination: why condemn?
 Why not indulge such thoughts, as swell our hearts
 With fuller admiration of that power,
 Who gives our hearts with such high thoughts to swell?

Why not indulge in his augmented praise?
 Darts not his glory a still brighter ray,
 The less is left to chaos, and the realms
 Of hideous night, where fancy strays aghast;
 And, though most talkative, makes no report?

Still seems my thought enormous? Think again;—
 Experience' self shall aid thy lame belief.

Glasses (that revelation to the sight!)
 Have they not led us deep in the disclose
 Of fine-spun nature, exquisitely small,
 And, though demonstrated, still ill-conceiv'd?
 If, then, on the reverse, the mind would mount
 In magnitude, what mind can mount too far,
 To keep the balance, and creation poise?

Defect alone can err on such a theme;
 What is too great, if we the cause survey?
 Stupendous Architect! Thou, thou art all!
 My soul flies up and down in thoughts of thee,
 And finds herself but at the centre still!

I AM, thy name! Existence, all thine own!
 Creation's nothing; flatter'd much, if styl'd
 "The thin, the fleeting atmosphere of GOD."

O for the voice—of what? of whom?—What voice
 Can answer to my wants, in such ascent,
 As dares to deem one universe too small?
 Tell me, Lorenzo! (for now fancy glows, Fir'd in the vortex of Almighty power)
 Is not this home creation, in the map
 Of universal nature, as a speck,
Like fair Britannia in our little ball;
Exceeding fair, and glorious, for its size,

But, elsewhere, far out-measur'd, far outshone?
In fancy (for the fact beyond us lies)
Canst thou not figure it, an isle, almost Too small for notice, in the vast of being;
Sever'd by mighty seas of unbuilt space,
From other realms; from ample continents
Of higher life, where nobler natives dwell;
Less northern, less remote from DEITY,
Glowing beneath the line of the Supreme;
Where souls in excellence make haste, put forth
Luxuriant growths; nor the late autumn wait
Of human worth, but ripens soon to gods?

Yet why drown fancy in such depths as these?
Return, presumptuous rover! and confess
The bounds of man; nor blame them, as too small.
Enjoy we not full scope in what is seen?
Full ample the dominions of the sun!
Full glorious to behold! How far, how wide,
The matchless monarch, from his flaming throne,
Lavish of lustre, throws his beams about him,
Farther and faster, than a thought can fly,
And feeds his planets with eternal fires!
This Heliopolis, by greater far,
Than the proud tyrant of the Nile, was built;
And he alone, who built it, can destroy.
Beyond this city, why strays human thought?
One wonderful, enough for man to know!
One infinite, enough for man to range!
One firmament, enough for man to read!
O what voluminous instruction here!
What page of wisdom is deny'd him? none;
If learning his chief lesson makes him wise.
Nor is instruction, here, our only gain;
There dwells a noble pathos in the skies,
Which warms our passions, proselytes our hearts.
How eloquently shines the glowing pole!
With what authority it gives its charge,
Remonstrating great truths in style sublime,
Though silent, loud I heard earth around; above
The planets heard; and not unheard in hell;
Hell has her wonder, though too proud to prize.

Is earth, then more infernal? has she those,
Who neither praise (Lorenzo!) nor admire?

Lorenzo's admiration, pre-engag'd,
Ne'er ask'd the moon one question; never held
Least correspondence with a single star;
Ne'er rear'd an altar to the Queen of Heaven
Walking in brightness; or her train ador'd.
Their sublunary rivals have long since
Engross'd his whole devotion; stars malign,
Which made their fond astronomer run mad;
Darken his intellect, corrupt his heart!
Cause him to sacrifice his fame and peace
To momentary madness, call'd delight.
Idolater, more gross than ever kiss'd
The lifted hand to Luna, or pour'd out
The blood to Jove!—O Thou, to whom belongs
All sacrifice! O Thou, great Jove unfeign'd!
Divine Instructor? thy first volume, this,
For man's perusal; all in capitals!
In moon and stars (Heaven's golden alphabet!)
Emblaz'd to seize the sight; who runs may read;
Who reads, can understand. 'Tis unconfined
To Christian land, or Jewry; fairly writ,
In language universal, to mankind:
A language, lofty to the learn'd; yet plain
To those that feed the flock, or guide the plough,
Or, from its husk, strike out the bounding grain.
A language, worthy the great mind, that speaks!
Preface, and comment, to the sacred page!
Which oft refers its readers to the skies,
As pre-supposing his first lesson there,
And scripture self a fragment, that unread.
Stupendous book of wisdom, to the wise!
Stupendous book! and open'd, night! by thee.
By thee much open'd, I confess, O night!
Yet more I wish; but how shall I prevail?
Say, gentle night! whose modest maiden beams,
Give us a new creation, and present
The world's great picture soften'd to the sight;
Nay, kinder far, far more indulgent still,
Say, thou, whose mild dominion's silver key
Unlocks our hemisphere, and sets to view

Worlds beyond number ; worlds conceal'd by day
 Behind the proud, and envious star of noon !
 Canst thou now draw a deeper scene ?—and shew
 The mighty Potentate, to whom belong
 These rich regalia pompously display'd
 To kindle that high hope ? Like him of Uz,
 I gaze around ; I search on ev'ry side—
 O for a glimpse of Him my soul adores !
 As the chas'd hart, amid the desert waste,
 Pants for the living stream ; for Him who made her,
 So pants the thirsty soul, amid the blank
 Of sublunary joys. Say, goddess ! where ?
 Where, blazes his bright court ? where burns his throne ?

Thou know'st ; for thou art near him ; by thee, round
 His grand pavilion, sacred fame reports
 The sable curtains drawn. If not, can none
 Of thy fair daughter-train, so swift of wing,
 Who travel far, discover where he dwells ?
 A star his dwelling pointed out below.
 Ye Pleiades ! Arcturus ! Mazaroth !
 And thou, Orion ! of still keener eye !
 Say ye, who guide the wilder'd in the waves,
 And bring them out of tempest into port !
 On which hand must I bend my course to find him ?
 These courtiers keep the secret of their King ;
 I wake whole nights, in vain, to steal it from them.
 I wake ; and, waking, climb night's radiant scale,
 From sphere to sphere ; the steps by nature set
 For man's ascent ; at once to tempt and aid,
 To tempt his eye, and aid his towering thought ;
 Till it arrives at the great goal of all.

In ardent contemplation's rapid car,
 From earth, as from my barrier, I set out.
 How swift I mount ! diminish'd earth recedes !
 I pass the moon ; and from her farther side,
 Pierce heaven's blue curtain ; strike into remote ;
 Where, with his lifted tube, the subtle sage
 His artificial, airy journey takes,
 And to celestial lengthens human sight.
 I pause at every planet on my road,
 And ask for him who gives their orbs to roll,

Their foreheads fair to shine. From Saturn's ring,
 In which, of earths an army might be lost,
 With the bold comet, take my bolder flight,
 Amid those sov'reign glories of the skies,
 Of independent, native lustre, proud !
 The souls of systems, and the lords of life,
 Through their wide empires !—what behold I now ?
 A wilderness of wonders burning round ;
 Where larger suns inhabit higher spheres ;
 Perhaps the villas of descending Gods !
 Nor halt I here ; my toil is but begun ;
 'Tis but the threshold of the Deity ;
 Or, far beneath it, I am grov'ling still.
 Nor is it strange ; I built on a mistake ;
 The grandeur of his works, whence folly sought
 For aid, to reason sets his glory higher ;
 Who built thus high for worms : (mere worms to him)
 O where, Lorenzo ! must the builder dwell ?
 Pause, then ; and, for a moment, here respire—
 If human thought can keep its station here,
 Where am I ? where is earth ?—nay, where art thou,
 O sun ?—is the sun turn'd recluse ?—and are
 His boasted expeditions short to mine ?—
 To mine, how short ! on nature's Alps I stand,
 And see a thousand firmaments beneath !
 A thousand systems ! as a thousand grains ;
 So much a stranger, and so late arriv'd.
 How can man's curious spirit not inquire
 What are the natives of this world sublime,
 Of this so foreign, un-terrestrial sphere,
 Where mortal, untranslated, never stray'd ?
 “ O ye, as distant from my little home,
 “ As swiftest sun-beams in an age can fly !
 “ Far from my native element I roam,
 “ In quest of new, and wonderful, to man.
 “ What province this, of his immense domain,
 “ Whom all obeys ? or mortals here, or gods ?
 “ Ye bord'ers on the coasts of bliss ! what are you ?
 “ A colony from heaven ? or, only rais'd,
 “ By frequent visit from heaven's neighboring realm.
 “ To secondary gods, and half-divine ?—
 “ Whate'er your nature, this is past dispute,

- " Far other life you live, far other tongue
 " You talk, far other thought, perhaps, you think,
 " Than man. How various are the works of God !
 " But say, what thought ? is reason here inthron'd,
 " And absolute ? or sense in arms against her ?
 " Have you two lights ? or need you no reveal'd ?
 " Enjoy your happy realms their golden age ?
 " And had your Eden an abstemious Eve ?
 " Our Eve's fair daughters prove their pedigree,
 " Ask their Adams—Who would not be wise ?
 " Or, if your mother fell, are you redeem'd ?
 " And if redeem'd—is your Redeemer scorn'd ?
 " Is this your final residence ? if not,
 " Change you your scene, translated ? or by death ?
 " And if by death ; what death ?—know you disease ?
 " Or horrid war ?—with war, this fatal hour,
 " Europa groans (so call we a small field,
 " Where kings run mad.) In our world, death deputed
 " Intemperance to do the work of age ;
 " And, hanging up the quiver nature gave him,
 " As slow of execution, for dispatch
 " Sends forth imperial butchers ; bids them slay
 " Their sheep (the silly sheep they fleec'd before,)
 " And toss him twice ten thousand at a meal.
 " Sit all your executioners on thrones ?
 " With you, can rage for plunder make a god ?
 " And bloodshed wash out every other stain ?
 " But you, perhaps, can't bleed : from matter gross
 " Your spirits clean, are delicately clad
 " In fine-spun æther, privileg'd to soar,
 " Unloaded, uninfected ! how unlike
 " The lot of man ! how few of human race
 " By their own mud unmurder'd ! how we wage
 " Self-war eternal !—Is your painful day
 " Of hardy conflict o'er ? or, are you still
 " Raw candidates at school ? and have you those " Who disaffect reversions, as with us ?—
 " But what are we ? you never heard of man,
 " Or earth ; the bedlam of the universe !
 " Where reason (undiseas'd with you) runs mad,
 " And nurses folly's children as her own ;
 " Fond of the foulest. In the sacred mount

" Of holiness, where reason is pronounc'd
 " Infallible ; and thunders, like a god ;
 " Ev'n there, by saints, the dæmons are outdone ;
 " What these think wrong, our saints refine to right ;
 " And kindly teach dull hell her own black arts ;
 " Satan, instructed, o'er their morals smiles.—
 " But this, how strange to you, who know not man
 " Has the least rumor of our race arriv'd ?
 " Call'd her Elijah, in his flaming car ?*
 " Past by you the good Enoch,† on his road
 " To those fair fields, whence Lucifer was hurl'd ;
 " Who brush'd, perhaps, your sphere, in his descent,
 " Stain'd your pure crystal æther, or let fall
 " A short eclipse from his portentous shade ?
 " O ! that the fiend had lodg'd on some broad orb
 " Athwart his way ; nor reach'd his present home,
 " Then blacken'd earth with footsteps foul'd in hell,
 " Nor wash'd in ocean, as from Rome he past
 " To Britain's isle ; too, too, conspicuous there !"

But this is all digression : where is he,
 That o'er heaven's battlements the felon hurl'd
 To groans, and chains, and darkness ? where is He,
 Who sees creation's summit in a vale ?
 Hé, whom, while man is man, he can't but seek ;
 And if he finds, commences more than man ?
 O for a telescope his throne to reach !
 Tell me, ye learn'd on earth, or blest above !
 Ye searching, ye Newtonian angels ! tell,
 Where, your great master's orb ? His planets, where ?
 Those conscious satellites, those morning-stars,
 First-born of Deity ! from central love,
 By veneration most profound, thrown off ;
 By sweet attraction, no less strongly drawn ;
 Aw'd, and yet raptur'd ; raptur'd, yet serene ;
 Past thought, illustrious, but with borrow'd beams ;
 In still approaching circles, still remote,
 Revolving round the sun's eternal Sire ?
 Or sent, in lines direct, on embassies
 To nations—in what latitude ?—Beyond
 Terrestrial thought's horizon !—and on what
 High errands sent ?—here human effort ends ;

* 2 Kings 2, 11,

† Genesis 5, 24.

And leaves me still a stranger to his throne.—
 Full well it might ! I quite mistook my road.
 Born in an age more curious than devout ;
 More fond to fix the place of heaven, or hell,
 Than studious this to shun, or that secure.
 'Tis not the curious, but the pious path,
 That leads me to my point : Lorenzo ! know,
 Without or star, or angel, for their guide,
 Who worship GOD, shall find him. Humble love,
 And not proud reason, keeps the door of heaven ;
 Love finds admission, where proud science fails.
 Man's science is the culture of his heart :
 And not to lose his plumbet in the depths
 Of nature, or the more profound of GOD :
 Either to know, is an attempt that sets
 The wisest on a level with the fool.
 To fathom nature (ill-attempted here !)
 Past doubt is deep philosophy above ;
 Higher degrees in bliss archangels take,
 As deeper learn'd ; the deepest, learning still.
 For, what a thunder of Omnipotence
 (So might I dare to speak) is seen in all !
 In man ! in earth ! in more amazing skies !
 Teaching this lesson, pride is loth to learn—
 “ Not deeply to discern, not much to know,
 “ Mankind was born to wonder and adore.”
 And is there cause for higher wonder still,
 Than that which struck us from our past surveys ?
 Yes : and for deeper adoration too.
 From my late airy travel unconfin'd,
 Have I learn'd nothing ?—yes, Lorenzo ! this ;
 Each of these stars is a religious house ;
 I saw their altars smoke, their incense rise,
 And heard hosannas ring through every sphere ;
 A seminary fraught with future gods.
 Nature all o'er is consecrated ground,
 Teeming with growths, immortal, and divine !
 The great proprietor's all-bounteous hand
 Leaves nothing waste ; but sows those fiery fields
 With seeds of reason, which to virtues rise
 Beneath his genial ray ; and, if escap'd
 The pestilential blasts of stubborn will,

When grown mature, are gather'd for the skies.
And is devotion thought too much on earth,
When beings, so superior, homage boast,
And triumph in prostrations to the throne?

But wherefore more of planets, or of stars?
Ætherial journeys, and, discover'd there,
Ten thousand worlds, ten thousand ways devout,
All nature sending incense to the throne,
Except the bold Lorenzos' of our sphere?
Op'ning the solemn sources of my soul,
Since I have pour'd, like feign'd Eridanus,
My flowing numbers o'er the flaming skies,
Nor see, of fancy, or of fact, what more
Invites the muse—Here turn we, and review
Our past nocturnal landscape wide:—then say,
ay, then, Lorenzo! with what burst of heart,
The whole, at once, revolving in his thought,
Just man exclaim, adoring, and aghast?

O what a root! O what a branch is here!
O what a father! what a family!
Worlds! systems! and creations!—And creations,
In one agglomerated cluster, hung,
* Great Vine on Thee, on Thee the cluster hangs;
The filial cluster! infinitely spread
In glowing globes, with various being fraught;
And drinks (nectareous draught!) immortal life.
Or, shall I say (for who can say enough?)
A constellation of ten thousand gems,
And, O! of what dimension! of what weight!
Set in one signet, flames on the right hand
Of Majesty divine! the blazing seal,
That deeply stamps, on all created mind,
Indelible, His sov'reign attributes,
Omnipotence, and love! That passing bound:
And this surpassing that. Nor stop we here,
For want of power in God, but thought in man.
Even this acknowledg'd, leaves us still in debt;
If greater aught, that greater all is thine,
Dread Sire!—Accept this miniature of Thee;
And pardon an attempt from mortal thought,
In which archangels might have fail'd, unblam'd."

How such ideas of the Almighty's power,
 And such ideas of the Almighty's plan,
 (Ideas not absurd) distend the thought
 Of feeble mortals ! nor of them alone !
 The fulness of the Deity breaks forth
 In inconceivables to men, and gods.
 Think, then, O think ; nor ever drop the thought ;
 How low must man descend, when gods adore !—
 Have I not, then, accomplish'd my proud boast ?
 Did I not tell thee, " we would mount, Lorenzo !
 " And kindle our devotion at the stars ?"

And have I fail'd ? and did I flatter thee ?
 And art all adamant ? and dost confute
 All urg'd, with one irrefragable smile ?
 Lorenzo ! mirth how miserable here !
 Swear by the stars, by Him who made them, swear,
 Thy heart, henceforth, shall be as pure as they !
 Then thou, like them, shalt shine ; like them, shalt rise
 From low to lofty ; from obscure to bright ;
 By due gradation, nature's sacred law.
 The stars, from whence ?—Ask Chaos—he can tell.
 These bright temptations to idolatry,
 From darkness, and confusion, took their birth ;
 Sons of deformity ! from fluid dregs
 Tartarean, first they rose to masses rude ;
 And then, to spheres opaque ; then dimly shone ;
 Then brighten'd ; then blaz'd out in perfect day.
 Nature delights in progress ; in advance
 From worse to better : but, when minds ascend,
 Progress, in part, depends upon themselves.
 Heaven aids exertion ; greater makes the great ;
 The voluntary little lessens more.
 O be a man ! and thou shalt be a god !
 And half self-made !—ambition how divine !
 O thou, ambitious of disgrace alone !
 Still undevout ! unkindled !—though high-taught,
 School'd by the skies ; and pupil of the stars ;
 Rank coward to the fashionable world !
 Art thou ashamed to bend thy knee to heaven ?
 Curs'd fume of pride, exhal'd from deepest hell !
 Pride in religion is man's highest praise.
 Bent on destruction ! and in love with death !

Not all these luminaries, quench'd at once,
 Were half so sad, as one benighted mind,
 Which gropes for happiness, and meets despair.
 How like a widow in her weeds, the night,
 Amid her glimm'ring tapers, silent sits !
 How sorrowful, how desolate, she weeps
 Perpetual dews, and saddens nature's scene !
 A scene more sad sin makes the darken'd soul,
 All comfort kills, nor leaves one spark alive.

Though blind of heart, still open is thine eye :
 Why such magnificence in all thou seest ?
 Of matter's grandeur, know, one end is this,
 To tell the rational, who gazes on it—
 " Though that immensely great, still greater He,
 " Whose breast capacious, can embrace, and lodge,
 " Unburden'd nature's universal scheme ;
 " Can grasp creation with a single thought ;
 " Creation grasp ; and not exclude its Sire"—
 To tell him farther—" It behoves him much
 " To guard the important, yet depending, fate
 " Of being, brighter than a thousand suns :
 " One single ray of thought outshines them all."
 And if man hears obedient, soon he'll soar
 Superior heights, and on his purple wing,
 His purple wing bedrop'd with eyes of gold,
 Rising, where thought is now deny'd to rise,
 Look down triumphant on these dazzling spheres.
 Why then persist ?—No mortal ever liv'd
 But, dying, he pronounc'd (when words are true !)
 The whole that charms thee, absolutely vain !
 Vain, and far worse !—Think thou, with dying men ;
 O condescend to think as angels think !
 O tolerate a chance for happiness !
 Our nature such, ill choice ensures ill fate ;
 And hell had been, though there had been no God.
 Dost thou not know, my new astronomer !
 Earth turning from the sun, brings night to man ?
 Man, turning from his God, brings endless night ;
 Where thou canst read no morals, find no friend,
 Amend no manners, and expect no peace.
 How deep the darkness ! and the groan how loud !
 And far, how far, from lambent are the flames !

Such is Lorenzo's purchase ! such his praise !
 The proud, the politic, Lorenzo's praise !
 Though in his ear, and level'd at his heart,
 I've half read o'er the volume of the skies.

For think not thou hast heard all this from me,
 My song but echoes what great nature speaks.
 What has she spoken ? Thus the goddess spoke,
 Thus speaks for ever :—" Place at nature's head,
 " A sov'reign, which o'er all things rolls his eye,
 " Extends his wing, promulgates his commands,
 " But above all, diffuses endless good ;
 " To whom, for sure redress the wrong'd may fly,
 " The vile, for mercy ; and the pain'd, for peace ;
 " By whom, the various tenants of these spheres,
 " Diversify'd in fortunes, place, and powers,
 " Rais'd in enjoyment, as in worth they rise,
 " Arrive at length (if worthy such approach)
 " At that blest fountain-head, from which they stream,
 " Where conflict past redoubles present joy ;
 " And present joy looks forward on increase ;
 " And that, on more ; no period ! every step
 " A double boon ! a promise, and a bliss."

How easy sits this scheme on human hearts !
 It suits their make ; it soothes their vast desires ;
 Passion is pleas'd ; and reason asks no more ;
 'Tis rational ! 'tis great !—But what is thine ?
 It darkens ! shocks ! excruciates ! and confounds !
 Leaves us quite naked, both of help, and hope.
 Sinking from bad to worse ; few years, the sport
 Of fortune ; then, the morsel of despair.

Say, then, Lorenzo ! (for thou know'st it well)
 What's vice ?—Mere want of compass in our thoughts
 Religion, what ?—the proof of common-sense.
 How art thou hooted, where the least prevail !
 Is it my fault, if these truths call thee fool ?
 And thou shalt never be miscall'd by me.
 Can neither shame, nor terror, stand thy friend ?
 And art thou still an insect in the mire ?
 How, like thy guardian angel, have I flown,
 Snatch'd thee from earth ; escorted thee through
 The ethereal armies ; walk'd thee, like a god,
 Through splendours of first magnitude, across

On either hand ; clouds thrown beneath thy feet ;
 Close-cruis'd on the bright paradise of God ;
 And almost introduc'd thee to the throne !
 And art thou still carousing, for delight,
 Rank poison ; first, fermenting to mere froth,
 And then subsiding into final gall ?
 To beings of sublime, immortal make,
 How shocking is all joy, whose end is sure !
 Such joy more shocking still, the more it charms !
 And dost thou chuse what ends, ere well-begun ;
 And infamous, as short ? and dost thou chuse
 (Thou, to whose palate glory is so sweet)
 To wade into perdition, through contempt,
 Not of poor bigots only, but thy own ?
 For I have peep'd into thy cover'd heart,
 And seen it blush beneath a boastful brow ;
 For by strong guilt's most violent assault,
 Conscience is but disabled, not destroy'd.

O thou most awful being ! and most vain ;
 Thy will how frail ! how glorious is thy power !
 Though dread eternity has sown her seeds
 Of bliss, and woe, in thy despotic breast ;
 Though heaven, and hell, depend upon thy choice ;
 A butterfly comes cross, and both are fled.
 Is this the picture of a rational ?
 This horrid image, shall it be more just ?
 Lorenzo ! no : it cannot,—shall not be,
 If there is force in reason ; or in sounds,
 Chanted beneath the glimpses of the moon,
 A magic, at this planetary hour,
 When slumber locks the general lip, and dreams
 Through senseless mazes hunt souls un-inspir'd.
 Attend—The sacred mysteries begin—
 My solemn night-born adjuration hear ;
 Hear, and I'll raise thy spirit from the dust :
 While the stars gaze on this enchantment new ;
 Enchantment, not infernal, but divine !

“ By silence, death's peculiar attribute ;
 “ By darkness, guilt's inevitable doom ;
 “ By darkness, and by silence, sisters dread !
 “ That draw the curtain round night's chaste thought,
 “ And raise ideas solemn as the scene !

" By night, and all of awful, night presents
 " To thought, or sense (of awful much, to both,
 " The goddess brings !) by these her trembling
 " Like Vesta's, ever-burning ; and, like hers,
 " Sacred to thoughts immaculate, and pure !
 " By these bright orators, that prove and praise,
 " And press thee to revere, the Deity ;
 " Perhaps, too, aid thee, when rever'd awhile,
 " To reach his throne ; as stages of the soul,
 " Through which, at diff'rent periods, she shall
 " Refining gradual, for her final height,
 " And purging off some dross at ev'ry sphere !
 " By this dark pall thrown o'er the silent world !
 " By the world's kings, and kingdoms, most renowned,
 " From short ambition's zenith set for ever ;
 " Sad presage to vain boasters, now in bloom !
 " By the long list of swift mortality,
 " From Adam downward to this ev'ning keel,
 " Which midnight waves in fancy's startled eyes,
 " And shocks her with an hundred centuries
 " Round death's black banner throng'd in her
 " thought !
 " By thousands, now, resigning their last breath,
 " And calling thee—wert thou so wise to hear !
 " By tombs o'er tombs arising ; human earth
 " Ejected, to make room for—human earth ;
 " The monarch's terror ! and the sexton's trade !
 " By pompous obsequies, that shun the day,
 " The torch funereal, and the nodding plume,
 " Which makes poor man's humiliation proud,
 " Boast of our ruin ! triumph of our dust !
 " By the damp vault that weeps o'er royal honours,
 " And the pale lamp, that shews the ghastly dead,
 " More ghastly, through the thick incumbent gloom,
 " By visits (if there are) from darker scenes,
 " The gliding spectre ! and the groaning grove !
 " By groans, and graves, and miseries that grow
 " For the grave's shelter ! by desponding men,
 " Senseless to pains of death, from pangs of guilt,
 " By guilt's last audit ! by yon moon in blood,
 " The rocking firmament, the falling stars,
 " And thunder's last discharge, great nature's

"By second Chaos ; and eternal night."—
 Be wise—nor let Philander blame my charm ;
 But own not ill-discharg'd my double debt,
 Love to the living ; duty to the dead.

For know, I'm but executor ; he left
 This moral legacy ; I make it o'er
 By his command ; Philander hear in me ;
 And heaven in both.—If deaf to these, oh ! hear
 Florello's tender voice ; his weal depends
 On thy resolve ; it trembles at thy choice ;
 For his sake—love thyself : example strikes
 All human hearts, a bad example more ;
 More still a father's ; that ensures his ruin.
 As parent of his being, wouldst thou prove
 The unnatural parent of his miseries,
 And make him curse the being which thou gav'st ?
 Is this the blessing of so fond a father ?
 If careless of Lorenzo ! spare, Oh ! spare
 Florello's father, and Philander's friend ;
 Florello's father ruin'd, ruins him ;
 And from Philander's friend the world expects
 A conduct, no dishonor to the dead.
 Let passion, do, what nobler motive should ;
 Let love, and emulation, rise in aid
 To reason, and persuade thee to be—blest.

This seems not a request to be deny'd ;
 Yet (such the infatuation of mankind !)
 'Tis the most hopeless, man can make to man.
 Shall I, then, rise in argument, and warmth ?
 And urge Philander's posthumous advice,
 From topics yet unbroach'd ?
 But oh ! I faint ! my spirits fail !—nor strange !
 So long on wing, and in no middle clime ;
 To which my great Creator's glory call'd ;
 And calls—but now, in vain. Sleep's dewy wand
 Has strok'd my drooping lids, and promises
 My long arrears of rest ; the downy god
 (Wont to return with our returning peace)
 Will pay, ere long, and bless me with repose.
 Haste, haste, sweet stranger ! from the peasant's cot,
 The ship-boy's hammock, or the soldier's straw,
 Whence sorrow never chas'd thee ; with thee bring,

Not hideous visions, as of late ; but draughts
 Delicious of well tasted, cordial, rest ;
 Man's rich restorative ; his bakny bath,
 That supple, lubricates, and keeps in play,
 The various movements of this nice machine,
 Which asks such frequent periods of repair
 When tir'd with vain rotations of the day,
 Sleep winds us up for the succeeding dawn ;
 Fresh we spin on, till sickness clogs our wheels,
 Or death quite breaks the spring, and motion ends.
 When will it end with me ?

* Exodus iii. 2

 " Father of all that is or heard, or hears!
 " Father of all that is or seen, or sees!
 " Father of all that is, or shall arise!
 " Father of this immeasurable mass
 " Of matter multiform; or dense, or rare;
 " Opaque, or lucid; rapid, or at rest!
 " Minute, or passing bound! in each extreme
 " Of like amazé, and mystery, to man.
 " Father of these bright millions of the night!
 " Of which the least full Godhead had proclaim'd,
 " And thrown the gazer on his knee—or, say,
 " Is appellation higher still, thy choice?
 " Father of matter's temporary lords!
 " Father of spirits! nobler offspring! sparks
 " Of high paternal glory; rich endow'd
 " With various measures, and with various modes
 " Of instinct, reason, intuition! beams
 " More pale or bright from day divine, to break
 " The dark of matter organiz'd (the ware
 " Of all created spirit;) beams, that rise
 " Each over other in superior light,
 " Till the last ripens into lustre strong,
 " Of next approach to Godhead. Father fond " Of intellectual beings! Beings blest

 " With powers to please thee; not of passive ply
 " To laws they know not; beings lodg'd in seats
 " Of well-adapted joys, in different domes
 " Of this imperial palace for thy sons;
 " Of this proud, populous, well-policy'd,
 " Though boundless habitation, plann'd by Thee;
 " Whose several clans their several climates suit;
 " And transposition, doubtless, would destroy.
 " Or, oh! indulge, immortal King! indulge
 " A title less, august indeed, but more
 " Endearing; ah! how sweet in human ears!
 " Sweet in our ears, and triumph in our hearts!
 " Father of immortality to man!
 " A theme that* lately set my soul on fire.—
 " And thou the next! yet equal! Thou by whom

" Through radiant ranks of essences unknown ;
 " Through hierarchies from hierarchies detach'd
 " Round various banners of Omnipotence,
 " With endless change of rapturous duties fir'd ;
 " Through wonderous beings interposing swarms,
 " All clustering at the call, to dwell in Thee ;
 " Through this wide waste of worlds ; this vista vast,
 " All sanded o'er with suns : suns turn'd to night
 " Before thy feeblest beam—Look down—down—down,
 " On a poor breathing particle in dust,
 " Or, lower,—an immortal in his crimes.
 " His crimes forgive ! forgive his virtues too !
 " Those smaller faults, half-converts to the right.
 " Nor let me close these eyes, which never more
 " May see the sun (though night's descending scale
 " Now weighs up morn) unpity'd, and unblest !
 " In thy displeasure dwells eternal pain ;
 " Pain, our aversion ; pain, which strikes me now ;
 " And, since all pain is terrible to man,
 " Though transient, terrible ; at thy good hour,
 " Gently, ah gently, lay me in my bed,
 " My clay-cold bed ! by nature, now, so near ;
 " By nature, near ; still nearer by disease !
 " Till then, be this, an emblem of my grave :
 " Let it out-preach the preacher : every night
 " Let it out-cry the boy at Philip's ear ;
 " That tongue of death ! that herald of the tomb !
 " And when (the shelter of thy wing implor'd)
 " My senses, sooth'd, shall sink in soft repose ;
 " O sink this truth still deeper in my soul,
 " Suggested by my pillow, sign'd by fate,
 " First, in fate's volume, at the page of man—
 " Man's sickly soul, though turn'd and toss'd for ever,
 " From side to side, can rest on nought but Thee,
 " Here, in full trust ; hereafter, in full joy ;
 " On Thee, the promis'd, sure, eternal down
 " Of spirits, toil'd in travel through this vale.
 " Nor of that pillow shall my soul despond :
 " For—love almighty ! Love almighty ! (Sing,
 " Exult, creation !) Love almighty, reigns !

" That death of death ! that cordial of despair
 " And loud eternity's triumphant song !
 " Of whom, no more :—For O thou Patron—
 " Thou God and mortal ! Thence more God to " Man's theme eternal ! Man's eternal theme !

 " Uninjur'd from our praise can He escape,
 " Who, disembosom'd from the Father, bows
 " The heaven of heavens, to kiss the distant ear
 " Breathes out in agonies a sinless soul !
 " Against the cross, death's iron sceptre breaks
 " From famish'd ruin plucks her human prey !
 " Throws wide the gates celestial to his foes !
 " Their gratitude, for such a boundless debt,
 " Deputes their suff'ring brothers to receive !
 " And, if deep human guilt in payment fails,
 " As deeper guilt prohibits our despair !
 " Injoins it, as our duty, to rejoice !
 " And (to close all) omnipotently kind,
 " * Takes his delight among the sons of men."

What words are these ?—And did they come heaven ?

And were they spoke to man ? to guilty man ?
 What are all mysteries to love like this ?
 The song of angels, all the melodies,
 Of choral gods, are wafted in the sound ;
 Heal, and exhilarate the broken heart,
 Though plung'd, before, in horrors dark as night,
 Rich prelibation of consummate joy !
 Nor wait we dissolution to be blest.

This final effort of the moral muse,
 How justly titled ! † nor for me alone ;
 For all that read ; what spirit of support,
 What heights of consolation, crown my song !

Then, farewell NIGHT ! of darkness now, no
 Joy breaks ; shines ; triumphs ; 'tis eternal day !
 Shall that which rises out of nought complain
 Of a few evils, paid with endless joys ?

My soul ! henceforth, in sweetest union join
 The two supports of human happiness,
 Which some, erroneous, think can never meet

* Prov. Chap. viii.

† The Consolation

*Then farewell Night: Of darkness, now no more:
Joy breaks, shines, triumphs in eternal day.*

True taste of life, and constant thought of death ;
 The thought of death, sole victor of its dread !
 Hope be thy joy ; and probity thy skill ;
 Thy patron He, whose diadem has dropp'd
 Yon gems of heaven ; eternity thy prize :
 And leave the racers of the world their own,
 Their feather, and their froth, for endless toils :
 They part with all for that which is not bread ;
 They mortify, they starve, on wealth, fame, power ;
 And laugh to scorn the fools that aim at more.
 How must a spirit, late escap'd from earth,
 Suppose Philander's, Lucia's, or Narcissa's,
 The truth of things new-blazing in its eye,
 Look back, astonish'd, on the ways of men,
 Whose lives, whole drift is to forget their graves !
 And when our present privilege is past,
 To scourge us with due sense of its abuse,
 The same astonishment will seize us all.
 What then must pain us, would preserve us now.
 Lorenzo ! 'tis not yet too late : Lorenzo !
 Seize wisdom, ere 'tis torment to be wise ;
 That is, seize wisdom, ere she seizes thee.
 For what, my small philosopher, is hell ?
 'Tis nothing, but full knowledge of the truth,
 When truth, resisted long, is sworn our foe ;
 And calls eternity to do her right.

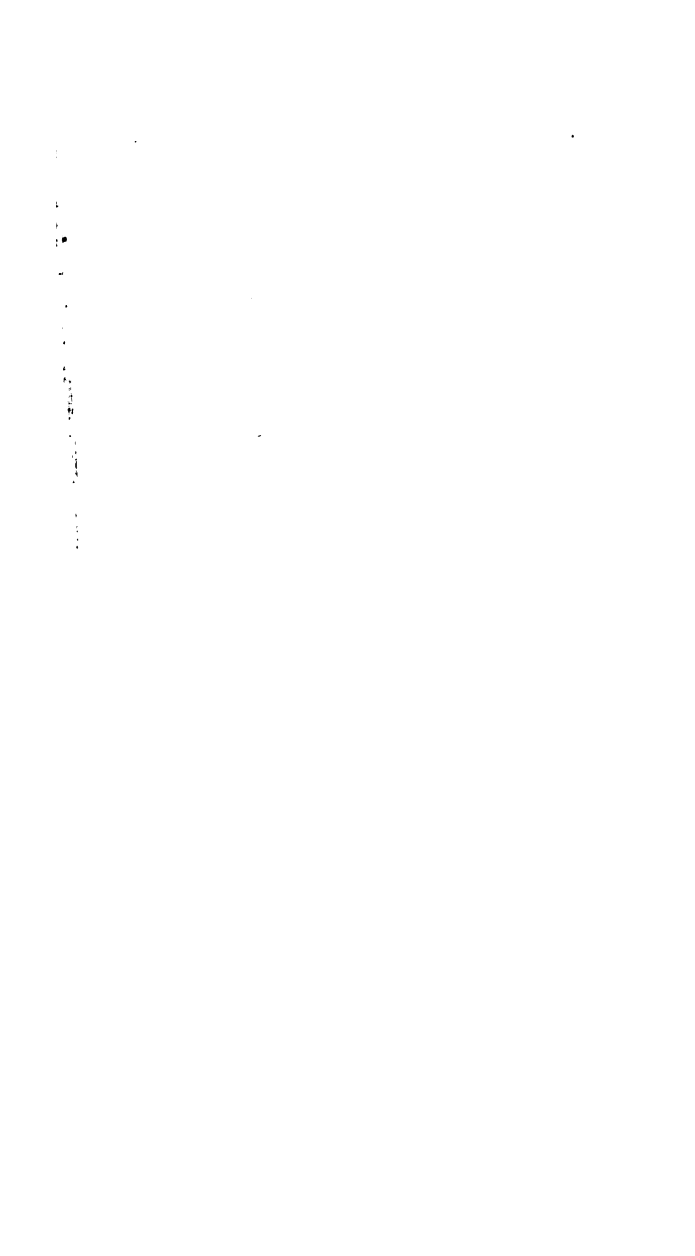

Thus darkness aiding intellectual light,
 And sacred silence whispering truths divine,
 And truths divine converting pain to peace,
 My song the midnight raven has outwing'd,
 And shot, ambitious of unbounded scenes,
 Beyond the flaming limits of the world,
 Her gloomy flight. But what avails the flight
 Of fancy, when our hearts remain below ?
 Virtue abounds in flatterers, and foes ;
 'Tis pride to praise her ; penance, to perform.
 To more than words, to more than worth of tongue,
 Lorenzo ! rise, at this auspicious hour :
 An hour, when heaven's most intimate with man ;
 When, like a falling star, the ray divine
 Glides swift into the bosom of the just ;
 And just are all, determin'd to reclaim ;

Which sets that title high, within thy reach.
Awake, then : thy Philander calls : Awake !
Thou, who shalt wake, when the creation sleeps ;
When, like a taper, all these suns expire ;
When time, like him of Gaza in his wrath,
Plucking the pillars that support the world,
In nature's ample ruins lies intomb'd ;
And midnight, universal midnight ! reigns.
